Russia-Japan-Danger.
Twelve Billions? Not Much.
Stratosphere Meteors.
Kidnapers Learn.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE JAPANESE-RUSSIAN situation becomes more dangerous. A warning published in Moscow by the head of the Communist party says:

"We must be prepared for an attack by Japan at any moment."

Mr. Kaganovitch, the Communist head, adds:

"If the Japanese generals dare to move against our frontiers, they will feel the power and might of our Red army. They must remember the Soviet Union is not czarist Russia of 1904."

THE JAPANESE, if war comes, will remember it very distinctly for many years after the war ends. Today's Russians, fighting for a country which they believe belongs to them, owning the land on which they work, instead of fighting as slaves for czars and grand dukes, will do some real fighting.

ON SUNDAY, Moscow celebrated two anniversaries, closely connected. One, the tenth anniversary of the death of Lenin, the other the anniversary of "bloody Sunday," when miserable, half-starved Russians, crowding to the imperial palace to beg for bread, were shot down.

Some that tearfully recall the brutal murder of the czar and his family quite forget the unnecessary and cruel massacre of the half-starved beggars at the palace. The Russians did not forget.

THOSE THAT criticize the President's program in regard to spending of twelve thousand million dollars in 1934, providing employment and starting up industry, do not know all the interesting figures, or they would not criticize the amount.

In 1933 American workers received in wages thirty-two thousand million dollars LESS than they received in 1929, when conditions were good. And those most severely affected are men working for low wages.

The government proposes to spend only one-third of the drop in wages. The total national income dropped from eighty-one thousand millions in 1929 to forty-nine thousand millions in 1932.

CHARLES M. BOLDEN and Lloyd B. Cox, two colored veterans of the war, members of the American Legion, have bought an endurance plane, to fly non-stop from New York to Paris in June.

Their manner of going from New York to Europe forms an interesting contrast with the way in which their ancestors came from Africa to the United States, in the hold of a slave ship.

SCIENTISTS planning balloon ascensions into the stratosphere, to study cosmic rays, and the Germans building a plane to fly five hundred miles an hour through the unresisting, thin stratosphere air, will be interested in an article by Hans Christian Adamson, published in the "March of Events" section of Mr. Hearst's Sunday newspapers.

Mr. Adamson warns travelers in the stratosphere that they may meet an uncomfortable number of meteors, not yet melted by contact with the thick lower atmosphere.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Claude Fisher, curator of astronomy at the American Museum of Natural History, no fewer than four hundred million meteors are drawn by gravity into the earth's atmosphere every day, some small, some big. The total number of meteors striking the earth amounts to more than a hundred and forty-six thousand millions in a year.

An airplane flies from Washington, D. C., to New York in fifty minutes. A meteor would make the trip in fifteen seconds. Passing through the thicker atmosphere, meteors are raised to a temperature of 3,000 degrees. A small one would destroy any airplane.

Incidentally, meteors add every year one hundred thousand tons to the weight of the earth, and have been doing that for millions of years.

BATES AND BAILEY, undergoing life imprisonment at Leavenworth Penitentiary for kidnaping, have changed their minds about leaving the world by starving themselves.

Their jailers said that they must remain, and fed them forcibly with milk, through the nose. Each convict had a gallon of milk forced into his stomach each day, and each is reported to fight desperately against this most uncomfortable feeding.

It is regrettable that anybody should undergo discomfort, but the two men convicted of kidnaping may realize that victims "snatched" by them, having their mouths and eyes closed with adhesive tape, hands and wrists bound with wire, also underwent periods of discomfort.

SMITH STIRS IRE WITH SHAKEUP THREAT

Henry Still Angry Over Safety Job Confusion

His Honor the Mayor did and said things today.

His Honor substituted as a police magistrate on the South Side and Mt. Washington and spoke German, Greek, Italian, English and—for all his audience knew—a bit of Esperanto.

Then Mayor McNair returned to his office in the City-County Building and became quite mad. He became mad because his new public safety director, Ralph E. Smith, had indicated Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall was to be fired.

But the Mayor was no angrier than John M. Henry, who felt that he had been kicked around like a political football in the fuss over the Safety Director's job.

In the police courts the Mayor discharged an admitted numbers writer and a liquor-law violator with the explanation that he was interested only in the higher-ups—those elusive gents who distributed protection money.

His Honor sent Charles Minn, 26, of Cairo street, and John

GIRL CRIPPLE'S FATE UNCERTAIN

A wheel chair for life against a slim chance of ever veing able to walk was faced today by 6-year-old Mary Ann Huston, of 1151 King avenue, East End, granddaughter of City Councilman John M. Huston.

And following tests by surgeons at the Homeopathic Hospital yesterday, Mary Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Huston, may know shortly just what can be done to alleviate the child's affliction.

The little girl's inability to walk is laid to a blood clot on the brain by physicians, who term the case very rare, due to the extensiveness of the clot's effect.

Tests conducted yesterday included X-ray pictures to determine the exact location of the clot. Within 48 hours, surgeons estimated, they should know whether a spinal operation is advisable.

During her short six years of life, Mary Ann has been a patient at numerous hospitals, including the Johns Hopkins, Baltimore; the Shriners Hospital, Philadelphia; the Massachusetts General, Boston, and the Watson Home for Crippled Children.

Von Hindenburg Recovers from Cold

Berlin, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—President Paul Von Hindenburg, recovered from his week-end cold, resumed work today.

Cancellation of the 86-year-old former field marshal's appointments for three days had caused some alarm in official circles.

Prof. Einstein, Wife White House Guests

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Prof. Albert Einstein, the scientist, and his wife will dine at the White House and be overnight guests tomorrow night, it was announced today.

MYSTERY VEILS KIDNAP MOVES

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Unverified reports masked the $200,000 Bremer kidnaping case in a cloak of mystery today as plans proceeded apace for what close friends of the family claimed would lead to the early release of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul bank owner.

One report said a second ransom note had been received yesterday from the kidnapers who seized last Wednesday the eldest son of Adolph Bremer, principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company.

Members of the family disdained to reconcile denials they had received any communication from the gang with the fact that a heavy police guard had been maintained at the elder Bremer's home since last night and that a Schmidt brewery truck was said to have made a mysterious trip in the early hours of today.

Reports a note had been delivered to Adolph Breme yesterday were not amplified to explain how it was delivered nor what it containe, as the family joined Dr. H. T. Nippert, Bremer physician, in denying he had received two missives in a milk bottle hurled through the window of his front door early Saturday.

Louisiana Banker's Young Son Missing

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Disappearance of Val H. Murrell, Jr., 15-year-old son of Val H. Murrell, of Shreveport, president of the Commercial National Bank and the Continental American Bank and Trust Company, was reported to police today.

JUDGES SNEE AND EVANS DIE HERE

Former Stricken Two Hours After Man He Succeeded

Less than two hours after the formal announcement of Retired Judge John A. Evans' death to the associated jurists of Allegheny County today, Judge Sylvester J. Snee, the man who succeeded him, died from an attack of acute indigestion.

Judge Snee died in his chambers, where he had suffered an attack shortly before noon. Dr. S. H. Ralston and the Judge's son, John Vestor Snee, together with two tipstaves, were with him at the end.

Judge Snee was presiding in Criminal Court. Most of his conferees had gathered in his chambers preparatory to going to the large assignment room to hear the formal announcement of Judge Evans' death, and had left on the assumption that Judge Snee had recovered from the first attack.

Judge Evans died early today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Don Rose, of Sewickley.

Judge George V. Moore presided in Snee's place, explaining he was doing so because of "the indisposition of Judge Snee."

JUDGES NOT ALARMED

Na alarm was felt among the other jurists.

Judge Snee was appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher to fill the vacancy caused by Judge Evans' retirement three years ago because of illness, having at the time been serving as Judge of County Court.

Judge Evans had been in ill health ever since.

Judge Snee was elected to County Court in November, 1921. A few months before then he had been appointed by Gov. Sproul.

When Judge Evans retired in 1930, Gov. Fisher appointed Judge

'First Lady' Home From Warm Springs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to the White House today after a trip from Warm Springs, Ga., by plane and train.

Flying conditions caused the air line to cancel at Greenville, N. C., and plane passengers were put on a train.

'Devil Island' Jungle Searched for Convict

Scottsboro Case Appeals Delayed

DECATUR, Ala., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Judge W. W. Callahan today postponed until February 24 the hearing on motions for new trials for Heywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, sentenced to death in the "Scottsboro case" trials here several weeks ago.

U. S. IN DRIVE ON WORKS GRAFT

Roosevelt Names Ickes And Keenan to Probe PWA, CWA Charges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has given Secretary Ickes, the Public Works Administrator, blanket authority to deal as he sees fit with all complaints of "graft" or manipulation of funds on public works projects.

Meanwhile, agents for the Civil Works Administration and the Department of Justice scanned closely operations of the agency in a dozen sections of the country as the result of disclosures of graft in handling funds of the relief organization.

Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General designated to make the Civil Works investigation for the Justice Department, said several complaints concerning the operation of the Civil Works Administration has been forwarded to him by Harry L. Hopkins, the administrator.

Hopkins reiterated that petty graft had flourished in some sections and that politicians had endeavored to gain control of civil works and probably had succeeded in some cases.

Investigation was continuing at Pittsburgh of reported political domination of civil works in that city.

The investigation in places where Civil Works inquiries have disclosed conditions that may have been criminal has been turned over to Keenan, recently active in the anti-kidnaping drive.

These were said to include the situation in Southern California, where last Saturday two clerks were indicted by the federal grand jury in connection with handling of truck requisitions; the case of the former chief engineer of the Civil Works Administration in Pennsylvania—C. E. Meyers—who is alleged to have received a commission of between $2,000 and $3,000 for approving a sewer project, and several other cases in which names have not yet been disclosed.

PINCHOT SEEKS PWA MILLIONS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has applied for approximately $14,000,000 in federal funds to finance public works projects in Pennsylvania, his office announced today. The application now is being studied by the legal division of the Public Works Administration in Washington.

The Governor applied for the money—a loan of $10,000,000 and an outright grant of the remainder—on January 11, under authority of a bill passed by the recent special session of the Legislature.

He was advised by the PWA that the money could not be advanced and the Governor then made his application directly to Secretary Ickes.

Ickes, in his reply, announced today, said that the matter had been referred to the PWA's legal division.

Mrs. Rinehart Hunts Desert Horned Toad

PALM SPRINGS, Ga., Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—Recuperating here from a nervous collapse, Mary Roberts Rinehart, noted authoress, recruited a posse of Palm Springs children to capture a horned toad.

Mrs. Rinehart's hobby is collecting unusual pets and she needs a spiny desert toad to complete her collection.

Traylor Improves; Under Oxygen Tent

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A definite improvement in the condition of Melvin A. Traylor, who is critically ill with pneumonia, was noted by his physicians today.

Dr. William R. Cubbins and Dr. Carl Johnson, with Mrs. Traylor, spent the night at the banker's bedside. He is being kept under an oxygen tent.

Washington Has Encouraged Europe in Belief U. S. Will Agree to Further Cuts in Debts

This is the second of five articles by William Hillman, London representative and chief of staff of the European correspondents of the Hearst papers.

Mr. Hillman's articles, obtained from state documents or authoritative statements of foreign government officials, probably will give America a clearer insight into the attitude and objectives of the Washington administration than can be obtained from news sources here at home.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN.

EUROPEAN CAPITALS were keenly disappointed when President Roosevelt, absorbed with domestic legislation, failed to ask the first short session of Congress which ended in July for powers to negotiate tariffs and debts.

Europe had direct and substantial indication that the administration and advisers of the administration were in favor of substantial debt reduction.

A tentative scheme was proposed BY AGENTS OF THE ADMINISTRATION last April for a general all-embracing revision and settlement of war debts, involving the use of the Bank of International Settlement, and proposing the reduction of the eleven billion dollar debt due the United States to six billion dollars.

THIS MEANT AN ALMOST FIFTY PER CENT REDUCTION.

This payment was considered TOO GREAT by Europe, which envisages a figure no higher than around one billion or one billion and a half dollars. So the matter was temporarily dropped.

Further indication of the attitude of the administration was forthcoming shortly after.

The token payment made by Great Britain and Italy was the result of this indication.

WHAT WAS little known at the time of Premier MacDonald's historic trip to Washington was that the British Premier did not start for Washington until he was given assurances that it would be possible for Great Britain to "hurdle" the June, 1933, payment without returning again to the payments under the Baldwin-Mellon funding agreement.

Great Britain was seeking a moratorium pending final solution of the war debts, and reiterated her position as previously outlined in the British war debt note of December, 1932.

Upon his arrival in Washington, Premier MacDonald and the experts accompanying him took part in a number of conversations.

The British were informed by American officials that the American administration would not consider it a default if Great Britain failed to pay the June, 1933, installment.

The President, the British were informed, was prepared to persuade Congress not to consider the failure to pay as default but as "deferment" and that in view of the British record of payments he felt he could convince Congress.

The British, however, despite the attitude of a powerful group of the British cabinet who favored no further payment until the Baldwin-Mellon funding agreement was revised, were opposed to any step which could be regarded by public opinion as "default." The British reiterated the necessity of a moratorium.

WASHINGTON hesitated about a moratorium; and spokesmen of the administration again informed Great Britain that some means would be found to "hurdle" the June payment.

Premier MacDonald returned to London in a hopeful mood, although certain members of the British cabinet were critical of the vagueness of the situation.

As the date for the payment of the June installment approached, the British government asked for concrete proposals to enable it to "hurdle" this payment.

Again it was suggested that British failure to pay would not be construed as default but deferment. But as Congressional opinion was sounded out, administration officials realized that "hurdling" the June payment would not be easy.

Then spokesme of the departments in Washington concerned with the matter suggested a "token" payment.

How large was this "token" to be? was the the British inquiry.

The suggestion was that it should be:

Not too small to be ridiculous and not large enough to be important.

THIS SUGGESTION CAME FROM WASHINGTON.

Hectic negotiations began in the early part of June. What was to be the sum? An agreement was finally reached on $10,000,000.

This sum represented roughly 10 PER CENT OF THE SENATE BAN BALKED BY FILIBUSTER

Pennsylvanian Helped Put Over Deal, Says P. R. R. Official

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—A dramatic story of a Senate filibuster waged by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, at the instance of former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, with a fat ocean mail contract at stake, was related to the Black Senate Committee today by an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The contract definitely was promised by Brown to the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Line, A. J. Ball, foreign freight agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, testified.

Ball declared:

"Brown told me on March 1, 1933, that if the Senate resolution intended to halt the contract could be held up till 30 minutes after the bids were opened, he would award us the contract."

REED FILIBUSTER

Reed conducted a filibuster that prevented Senate action on the resolution until 1 p. m., the witness admitted. He said:

"Brown called us on the phone and told us the contract would go to us as the only bidder."

Later in the day the Senate resolution asking that the award be postponed was approved. Ball explained:

"We didn't get the contract. Our application is still on Postmaster General Farley's desk."

The resolution, offered by Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, was approved by the Senate 49 to 25.

Black is chairman of the committee investigating ocean and air mail contracts.

Brown was "perfectly willing" to go through with the contract despite the Senate's action, Ball testified, but the United States Shipping Board kicked over the traces, refusing to sign a contemplated contract for the sale of two government vessels. The witness explained:

"We were left out on the end of a limb with a mail contract and no vessels to carry on the service."

RAILROADS INTERESTED

The Philadelphia company was organized by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Reading and the International Mercantile Marine, on an ownership basis of 25 per cent each.

At the time Brown agreed to award it an ocean mail subsidy between Philadelphia and Liverpool, the company had never operated a vessel.

The contract involved approximately $1,000,000 annually.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, was cross-examined regarding his company's interest in ocean and airmail contracts.

Atterbury testified that the Pennsylvania Railroad has a direct interest in the Baltimore Mail

Mrs. Pinchot Deserts Sick Room to Picket

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Her smart red costume a defiant note against the rain streaked gray of early morning today, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, tramped the picket lines with women laundry workers protesting conditions in two Brooklyn laundries.

Leaving St. Luke's Hospital, where she recently underwent an ear operation and where her husband is now a patient, Mrs. Pinchot was on hand shortly after 8 a. m. at the plant of the Colonial Laundry Company.

After a half hour's stay, she went on to appear in the picket line of the Sunshine Laundry Company strikers and wound up the morning with a chat at headquarters of the Laundry Workers Union.

Whirling up to the Colonial plant in a Pennsylvania official car behind a chauffeur, the Governor's wife startled two lone rain-soaked pickets who paced back and forth before the laundry plant with their placards.

Pulling closer about her neck the collar of her red coat and settling her smart gray hat on her red hair, Mrs. Pinchot took up a placard and walked back and forth with the women pickets for about 20 minutes while photographers lined up for the performance.

She repeated her march at the Sunshine Laundry Plant for a handful of pickets and then, with Eleanor Mishnun and Bertha Parrot, officials of the Women's Trade Union League, of which she is a member, left for union headquarters and the hospital.

Britain Out to Rival U. S. in Air Travel

By THOMAS C. WATSON
Universal Service.

LONDON, Jan. 23. — British cabinet members today are considering a project for widespread development of all forms of British commercial aviation.

This was revealed by the aeronautical correspondent of the London Morning Post, who stated a cabinet committee is investigating possibilities of air transport expansion on a large scale.

According to the Morning Post, the project is aimed at development of an air mail service comparable to that in the United States. The newspaper said:

"A great national air development plan embracing every phase of commercial air transport is under consideration by a cabinet committee.

"Faster mails and modified subsidy systems and England-Canada and England-Australia routes are among the subjects being examined.

"An attempt will be made to start a period of intensive progress toward empire air communications and an air mail system approaching in scale that in the United States.

"The subsidy agreement with the Imperial Airways ends five years hence. In order to insure that development on empire lines is continued, various suggestions have been made, among them that government assistance should take the form of an air mail agreement for carriage of first-class matter.

"Such an agreement would probably call for specialized air mail machines capable of high speeds. The present fleet of commercial planes, while most suitable for passengers, are considered slow for air mail. Their cruising speed is 105 miles per hour. If security is given to constructors, there is little doubt of an air mail speed of 200 miles per hour.

"It is felt in air circles that there is need of government assistance for an Atlantic air service. An agreement has been entered into between Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways as to establishment of this line, but the British company is hampered in preparation of suitable aircraft by uncertainty regarding the attitude of the British government in the future.

"The government's difficulty, and it is now being tackled by the cabinet committee, is whether it will be justified in limiting any larger system of support to one company in future.

"Meanwhile, shipping and railway companies are organizing supplementary air systems in addition to smaller aircraft organizations."

MONETARY BILL APPROVED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

AMENDMENTS ATTACHED TO MEASURE

Stabilization Fund Use Limited to 2 Years, Morgenthau Curbed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The administration money bill was speedily approved by the Senate Banking Committee after it had voted several modifications, including a provision making the proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund temporary.

The important monetary legislation was approved 15-2.

A time limit of two years on the operation of the stabilization fund was the most important modification.

The committee also placed a limitation of two years on President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar.

BOARD OF FIVE PROVIDED

Another amendment would place the stabilization fund under a board of five instead of vesting complete control in the Secretary of the Treasury.

The committee decided the $2,000,000,000 fund should be managed by a board composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of Currency, the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board and two others appointed by the President.

The administration was upheld when the committee rejected an amendment to leave title to the gold with the Federal Reserve System and take the profits from devaluation through a franchise tax on the system.

The committee accepted Treasury amendments to permit the government to issue an additional $2,500,000,000 of Treasury notes to liberalize regulations for Treasury borrowing.

Meanwhile, debate over the measure broke out in the Senate with Senator Fess, of Ohio, assailing it, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, speaking in defense.

Without waiting for the bill to be reported, Senate Republicans began a bombardment against it in the Senate with Fess, assistant minority leader, calling it "flat" and "dishonest."

TREASURY HEAD SILENT

Treasury officials had no immediate comment on the Senate committee action, but both President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau were known to favor strongly the bill as it passed the House, giving the Treasury head full control over the stabilization fund.

Only just advised of the Senate action, Secretary Morgenthau was studying the proposal, but whether it would prove acceptable to the Treasury or a counter proposal might be offered in the way of a compromise was not made known.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader, challenged Fess' assertions, declaring Congress had the right to change the standard of measuring the gold dollar when economic conditions warranted.

Chairman Fletcher said he would file the report with the Senate today and ask to take it up for debate tomorrow.

Dollar Devaluation Supported by Capper

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas, today pledged support for the principle of President Roosevelt's dollar devaluation bill, but asserted it should be amended and sufficient time allowed for Senate consideration to "justify it being called legislation instead of dictation."

The Kansan suggested that the power to flex the gold content of the dollar between 50 and 60 per cent levels "be left to a board" rather than with any one man.

Increased Turnout At Striking Mines

WILKES-BARRE, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Notice by the Glen Alden Coal Company for all employes to resume work within 48 hours or remove their mining tools today brought increased forces at all of its operating colleries, officers said, although two other concerns shut down completely.

The ninth day of the general strike called by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania found the new union engaged in litigation as the Hudson Coal Company continued its fight to make permanent an injunction prohibiting picketing of its Luzerne County mines.

300 WITNESSES ON RACKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The state's racket trial against 16 defendants entered its second day today with the prosecution yet to conclude its opening statement and with indications that it would be many weeks before all of its more than 300 witnesses would take the witness stand.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber started his statement to the jury yesterday, painting a picture of the history of racketeering in Chicago, but he was interrupted so often by defense attorneys that finally Judge Philip J. Finnegan, Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, asked him to be more specific.

Attentive listeners as Raber reviewed alleged terrorist methods that the state hopes to prove were used to stifle trade in four industries were the defendants, representing a wide strata of society.

Anthracite Code Submitted to NRA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The anthracite industry has submitted to the National Recovery Administration a code revised to provide for a 40-hour week. The present hourly wage scale is untouched.

The code calls for the creation of a board to study ways of eliminating unemployment and of a commission to investigate means of lowering the cost of production.

Vote of Employes Backs Steel Union

Employes of the Superior Steel Corporation, at Carnegie, voted that the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers represent them "for all purposes of collective bargaining with their employers," at an election yesterday. The election was held under the supervision of the National Labor Board.

Company Unions Of Railroads Legal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—The so-called railroad company unions have not been "outlawed" either by the emergency transportation act or by the federal co-ordinator of transportation, Joseph B. Eastman, the co-ordinator, said today.

Such unions are not prohibited, if the employes wish organizations of this character.

BIRTH CONTROL BILL DOOMED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The birth control bill sponsored by Representative Pierce (Dem.), of Oregon, will "die in a pigeonhole," a survey of the House Judiciary Committee revealed today.

The bill, which would allow the dissemination of birth control information and appliances by licensed medical authorities, has no chance of receiving a favorable report by the committee, which has just concluded hearings on the measure.

The committee members are divided into three viewpoints regarding the subject. A slim minority favors the bill, a larger group feels the measure inopportune, while a third faction is definitely opposed to its enactment.

LaGuardia to Oust Workers Past 70

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia disclosed today that he has started a campaign to compel the retirement of virtually all employes over the age of 70 as an economy measure. The step is estimated to save more than $1,000,000 a year.

SMALL FIRM AID BY NRA SEEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—While under a new barrage from the Senate, NRA today began to endeavor to loosen credit for business, particularly for the small firms which have not been able to get loans at the bank to finance code-increased payrolls.

Hugh S. Johnson announced he had detailed A. D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., and NRA division administrator, to "endeavor to formulate methods of financing to liberalize the extension of monetary credit to the manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and consumer."

The appointment was preceded by a conference with President Roosevelt at which, apparently, final details of the program were worked out. While this was going on at the White House Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, was charging Johnson with "a departure from the actual truth" in saying Nye and Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, had refused to co-operate with NRA in prevention of monopolism. He insisted Johnson had dropped negotiations when Nye said he would have to have the consent of Congress.

Congressional Medal For Cohan Proposed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—A proposal that the Senate authorize a gold medal for George M. Cohan, actor, for writing the war song "Over There," was made by Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, in a bill introduced yesterday. It was referred to the Library Committee.

30-HOUR WEEK TO BE GOAL OF MINERS

Convention of U.M.W. Ready to Fight for 5-Day Schedule

International News Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 23.—The world's largest union labor convention, the thirty-third constitutional convention of the United Mine Workers of America, opened at Tomlinson Hall here today under the most harmonious and apspicious conditions in its history.

The 1,500 delegates representing 550,000 union members belonging to 3,000 locals, were welcomed formally by Gov. Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, and Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan, of Indianapolis.

Following the greeting formalities, came the committee reports and then the reading of the joint report of the international officers, John L. Lewis, president; Philip Murray, vice-president, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

The convention was expected to give a great impetus to the union's constructive program, the chief point of which now is the achievement of the 30-hour week.

Much of the discussion concerning wage scales and agreements will be postponed and considered at a joint meeting of the miners' representatives and the coal operators with the NRA in Washington on February 12.

President Lewis pointed out that although the present coal code calls for a 40-hour week the miner spends much more than that underground.

NRA Likened By Miners To 'Emancipation'

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—With the 30-hour week as their new goal, America's union coal miners, 550,000 strong, revitalized by the NRA, today gave emphatic indorsement to the national administration.

The NRA was lauded as the "greatest legal instrument from the standpoint of human welfare since the emancipation proclamation."

President Roosevelt was hailed as the working man's friend.

Both indorsements were contained in the biennial joint report of the officers of the United Mine Workers of America made to the thirty-third constitutional convention of the miners which opened here today.

Other highlights contained in the report were:

1.—Expression of the conviction that the "principles embodied in the recovery act represent America's chief hope not only for economic recovery but for a better economic and social life in the future."

2.—Recommendation that when hearings begin in Washington February 12 on renewal of contracts under the bituminous coal code, that the maximum hours be fixed at thirty a week, six hours a day, five days a week.

3.—Belief that labor should fight to uphold the National Labor Board decision of last week which mandated the H. C. Frick Coke Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation operating captive mines in the Appalachian regions, to make wage agreements with the United Mine Workers' Union. The Frick interests are expected to appeal the board's decision in court.

4.—Urged a federal law providing for an excise tax on the distribution of natural gas to "protect our industry from the ruthless competition" of that fuel.

CWA EXTENSION POSSIBLE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Economic Conditions In Spring to Rule, He Tells Green

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today told William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that an extension of the Civil Works Administration beyond the May deadline would depend upon conditions prevailing in the late spring.

Green said the President was hopeful that 1,000,000 of the 4,000,000 CWA workers would be absorbed by private industry by May as a result of the stimulus from increased purchasing power. He added that Mr. Roosevelt had hopes that 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 more of the workers would find employment from the expanded public works, which he expects to be getting into full operation in the spring.

Meanwhile, the President and Harry L. Hopkins, the Civil Works administrator, are standing pat on their program to taper off the federal emergency work plan by May.

A budget message including $350,000,000 to carry on the Civil Works program until May will go forward to Congress shortly.

Council Protests CWA Reduction Program

While a Department of Justice investigation into reported political influence in Civil Works activities continued in Pittsburgh, City Council today had joined its voice with the nation-wide flood of demands that CWA be continued "full speed."

On the heels of City Council's resolution asking for continuation of the CWA program already contemplated and which has been threatened by the federal government's reduction of job allotments, Eric H. Biddle, administrator for Pennsylvania, has issued instructions to go ahead "as though no interruption had occurred." Biddle, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Philadelphia, is confident that the CWA program will be resumed within the next week.

Meanwhile City Council is withholding action on nine ordinances which would have supplied $782,000 to purchase supplies and materials for the city's CWA program.

Local CWA officials concur with Biddle in believing that the campaign will be continued, although work on new jobs cannot begin until the federal government sanctions further funds for labor placements. The halt on assignments and the decrease in working hours are considered by many here as a move by the Administration to bring Congress into line to pass legislation for further CWA appropriations.

Announcing that a survey is being conducted to determine the number of CWA jobs and workers under county supervision, Thomas O. Hasley, director of highways and supervisor of all county Civil Works projects, today said that skilled laborers on these jobs had not been cut, as had the white collar workers under the curtailment plans.

No position has been filled at the state-federal employment agency here since January 19, when the deadline was set. Replacements are being made, but are few, according to Ralph W. Gibbs, head of the employment bureau. Applications for jobs have greatly declined, Gibbs said, falling to 600 yesterday, as compared with thousands last week.

E. R. Young, of Greenville, today was named chief engineer of CWA in Pennsylvania, to succeed Clarence Myers, of Philadelphia, who was dismissed after charges were made that he accepted a fee as an engineer on a project he had approved, as reported in an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. Administrator Biddle made the appointment.

TOWER SPEAKS TO STEEL MEN

Neither price fixing nor higher prices for steel products are resulting from the open price provisions of the steel code, Walter S. Tower, executive secretary of the American Iron and Steel Institute, declared today.

Tower addressed a meeting of steel men at the Duquesne Club this morning. He discussed provisions of the steel code and answered questions of steel men here.

Tower said steel prices still are near the lowest level of the past 20 years. He declared:

"The salvation of the steel industry and its ability to meet the heavily increased financial burden resulting from higher wages and more employment depend upon stable markets. The open price provisions should make an important contribution to stability, but they will not make for runaway markets or prevent declines."

Tower said that steel men feel that the prospects for the new year are much brighter than at any time since the start of the depression.

GIRL, 12, SEIZED; 2 MEN HELD

Two men were held for court without bail today for an alleged abduction and attack on a 12-year-old North Side girl. Two others were exonerated by county Detectives.

The men in jail described themselves as Henry Bayne, 25, of 2714 Spring way, and Steve Stefanowizs, 22, of 2812 Spring way. They are charged with felonious assaut1 and battery with intent to commit a felony.

The exonerated youths are Frank Guzymsky and Nick Giencola.

In Morals Court this morning the girl said she had been dragged by Bayne and Stefanowizc into an automobile in Madison avenue, when she came out of a grovery store about 9 o'clock last night. The men took her to a barbecue on Babcock boulevard, where she was attacked, she said. Shortly after midnight they drove her back to a place near her home.

Detectives had been supplied with the license number of the car and arrested the pair early this morning as they were talking with the other two.

Cruickshank Denies CCC Hunger Strike

FORT SILL, Okla., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—An official report to Brig. Gen. William M. Cruickshank today branded as fabrication a report that 75 boys had been dismissed from the CCC camp at Battiest, McCurtain County, following a hunger strike.

Lieut. S. M. Meyers, second in command of the camp, reported to Gen. Cruickshank the report was spread by seven boys who had been discharged from the corps because of refusal to work.

CUBAN REGIME RECOGNIZED BY U. S.

10 Warships Recalled; Aid on Debts and Trade Planned

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The United States formally recognized the new Cuban government today.

President Roosevelt authorized the American Embassy at Havana to notify the new government of President Carlos Mendieta that American recognition had been accorded it.

The State Department announced that President Roosevelt had authorized Jefferson Caffery, personal representative at Havana, to instruct H. Freeman Matthews, American Charge d'Affaires, to notify the new government of American recognition.

PEACE HOPES HIGH

Ambassadorial credentials will shortly be dispatched to Caffery, who, upon presenting them to the new government, will become American ambassador to Cuba.

High hopes were held here that the granting of American recognition to the Cuban government would help in restoration of political tranquility to the island republic.

Recognition will be followed shortly by the offer of a "new deal" both economically and politically on the part of this government toward Cuba.

Secretary of State Hull today announced 10 of the 16 American warships stationed in Cuban waters have been withdrawn.

The others, he added, will be withdrawn at an early date. Six are being kept there temporarily in the belief their presence has a steadying influence on unruly elements pending restoration of complete civil order throughout the island.

NEW DEAL PLANNED

The United States today was preparing to give Cuba a "new deal" both economicaly and politically.

This "new deal" calls for measures designed to aid the economic rehabilitation of the island republic, followed at a later date by abrogation of the so-called Platt amendment, under which the United States has the right to intervene in Cuba.

The economic aid to be offered will be in line with the four-point program outlined by President Roosevelt at Hyde Park last August.

NEW WATERWAY APPEAL MADE

International News Service.

WASHINTON, Jan. 23.—President Roosevelt today sent to the Senate another report on the proposed St. Lawrence waterway, declaring the project would help rather than injure railroads.

Prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the report constituted the fourth of its kind that Mr. Roosevelt has transmitted to Capitol Hill since his special message urging ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty.

The latest report declared "tendency toward increase in high yield freight traffic will be stimualted by thep roposed seaway."

The report continued:

"Low grade bulk shipment will tend to gravitate toward the waterway while products from the expansion of industrial activity promoted by cheaper transportation of raw materials and cheaper power will constitute a new and profitable source of railroad tonnage, moving inland from the industrial centers on the new coastline or carried from adjacent agricultural sections to the urban industrial localities."

NEED OF FLEET IN PACIFIC SEEN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Declaring that Japan is controlled by the war party, Representative Dockweiler (Dem.), of California, in a speech in the House today, protested against removal of the American fleet from the Pacific to the Atlantic. He said:

"I tell you this is no time—and I speak for peace—to remove the fleet from the Pacific through that little bottle-neck, the Panama Canal."

Bandits Get $8,000 In Grocery Holdup

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Seven or eight men, armed with shotguns and revolvers, today held up the offices of B. A. Railton Co., wholesale grocers, and escaped with between $8,000 and $10,000.

More Jobholders to Go As Democrat Leaders

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—President Roosevelt is reliably reported to have virtually demanded several additional resignations in his drastic shakeup of the Democratic National Committee.

There may be at least a dozen before the President is through.

In a high quarter, the President was revealed as determined no committee members shall hold federal positions or engage in lobbying.

In line with that policy, it was expected these committee members shortly will resign.

Nellie Taylor Ross, Wyoming, Director of the Mint.

Jed C. Adams, Texas, of the Board of Tax Appeals.

W. A. Julian, Ohio, Treasurer of the United States.

W. T. Kemper, Missouri, connected with the RFC in that state.

Horatio Abbott, Michigan, Collector of Internal Revenue in Detroit.

Dudley Doolittle, Kansas, representative of a Federal Land bank.

Postmaster General Farley, Democratic national chairman, significantly announced:

"The President's wishes with regard to the membership of the national committee will be respected."

Farley plans to effect the reorganization before he retires as chairman, from which post he has asked to be relieved. He said the New York City and state Democratic committees soon will be overhauled.

Squirrel Hill Opposes McNair's Shantytown

Mayor William N. McNair's proposal to move Shantytown to other city properties, allowing the men to build their own houses, has run into opposition in the residential district in Squirrel Hill.

This is the activity embraced in the Home-Making Bureau, the directorship of which was to go to Harrison R. McCready until the latter's drinking habits placed him in a bad light with the Mayor.

The petition, signed by more than 100 citizens, asks city authorities to stop the building of shanties on a playground at Naylor street and Forward avenue, Fourteenth Ward. The plea terms the shanty building movement a "menace," and asks the Mayor to "stop erection of those shanties and having a lot of hoboes enter ing the high-class residential districts of the city."

RHETA WYNEKOOP MURDER BELIEVED CLOSED MYSTERY

MISTRIAL SEALS CASE FOREVER, EXPERTS HOLD

Aged Woman Doctor May Never Again Face Jury

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—There was a growing belief in some quarters today that the death of Rheta Gardner Wynekoop will forever remain a mystery.

The possibility of a quick legal decision on the question of the guilt or innocence of Rheta's mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, having been dissipated for the time being, there were many persons, both in an out of the Criminal Court, who believed the elderly defendant would never again face the ordeal of a trial.

Burdine Gardner, of Indianapolis, father of the dead Rheta, in commenting on yesterday's decision by Judge Joseph B. David to declare a mistrial because of the possibility that Dr. Wynekoop would fall dead before the eyes of the jury, said:

"It's just like freeing her.

"I don't believe that she will ever be tried now, for if her condition is as bad as they say it is she won't be any better next month than she is today. In the interest of justice I feel that she should have been tried now."

PROSECUTION BITTER

A hint from the prosecution, voiced by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, served to strengthen the belief that Dr. Wynekoop may never again face a jury. He said:

"We agree with the defense that the summoning of the defendant to her Maker in the presence of this court would be a sorry spectacle. But we maintain it would be a sorrier spectacle if the murder for which she was indicted should go unpunished.

"For, if this woman is not tried now, she may never be tried."

But for Dr. Wynekoop, who is suffering from a heart ailment, with complications, the respite apparently was more than welcome. She said:

"Thank God!

"This will give me a chance to rest."

KINGFISH FACES TEST AT POLLS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Senator Huey P. Long's role as Louisiana political dictator gets another test in the bitter four-cornered mayoralty election today.

With 300 deputized citizens standing by to preserve order, the city's electorate turned out almost en masse after a vituperative campaign in which Senator Long held the center of the stage.

Long entered the picture when he broke with Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, leader of the old regular organization, and placed his own ticket in the field, headed by John Klorer.

Walmsley, a candidate for re-election, directed the full force of his regulars against Long, and Francis Williams, independent candidate, launched an equally strident attack against the Louisiana Kingfish. Herbert B. Homes, the fourth candidate, made no active campaign.

Squarely before the voters today was the Huey Long issue—in a city in which the Senator himself has often said he was "weak."

Jap Leper Escapes California Hospital

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 23.—(INS.)—A 28-year-old Japanese, confined to the general hospital contagion ward here for observation for leprosy, was sought today by officers.

The man, Tetsuchi Nagoi, went through a bathroom window and escaped with an accomplice who had waited outside in an automobile. The Japanese was believed to have contracted the dread malady two years ago on a visit in Japan.

Autoists Who Race To Fires Face Fines

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—Motorists who race or chase fire engines hereafter will be given "tickets" to appear in court, Fire Commissioner John J. McElligott announced today.

Firemen will have books of the summonses printed in red. Punishment—$50 to $200 fine or six months in jail.

RUDY, FAY MARK TIME IN BOUT

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Fay Webb Vallee, estranged wife of Rudy Vallee, was still in seclusion today as her attorneys made moves here and in New York which resulted in the probable suspension until next Monday of all proceedings in their transcontinental marital battle.

Ben C. Cohen, attorney for Mrs. Vallee, said that the sudden discontinuance of the New York suit in which Fay sought to set aside a separation agreement under which she was to receive $100 a week from Vallee, was to take from Vallee the principal grounds on which he based his appeal for an injunction against further prosecution of Fay's separate maintenance suit here.

It was reported that Mrs. Vallee has not yet been served with subpenas to make a deposition in regard to her demands for $7,450 a month alimony.

Sinclair Brothers Released on Bond

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, and his brother, E. W. Sinclair, were at liberty under $4,000 bonds today following their plea of not guilty late yesterday to charges of embezzlement of funds from the now defunct Exchange Trust Company.

The oil magnate arrived here late yesterday from Florida. The Sinclair brothers and 23 other prominent Tulsa businessmen are scheduled to face preliminary hearing on the embezzlement charges February 5.

TRIAL ON, MAE WAITS IN AUTO

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Contents of a statement two policemen said Edward Friedman made concerning the robbery of a Hollywood cigar store proprietor were admitted as evidence yesterday by Superior Judge H. F. Sewell, who is presiding at Friedman's trial on charges of robbing Mae West, film actress, of $20,000 in jewelry and cash.

An attorney, Ivan Hiler, representing the cigar store owner, A. Brown, testified Friedman was brought to his office by Policemen S. S. Stone and W. M. Robison and there confessed to robbing Brown of $100 several months before the robbery of Miss West.

The film actress was not called as a witness, although she spent a part of the day driving near the Courthouse in her limousine waiting to be summoned.

KIDNAPING GANG CAN'T SCARE DORIS DUKE

World's Richest Girl Safer Than Queen In 'Castles'

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Jan. 23.—It would be easier perhaps to kidnap the Queen of England than Doris Duke, America's wealthiest heiress.

The world's richest debutante, within the super-safety of her 5,000-acre country estate, one half mile from here, today took lightly the report that kidnapers were threatening her.

A member of her retinue denied published stories that she had fled from New York City to the security of Duke Farms after receiving a "death threat."

It was pointed out that Miss Duke receives a vast amount of mail, including many demands for money from cranks.

10 SAFETY POINTS

Furthermore, the slender blonde and modish dollar-princess has 10 hard-and-fast rules for thwarting the plans of potential kidnapers. They are:

1—She has more guards than servants and each of her many servants is checked up regularly by a private detective agency.

2—She seldom tells anybody but her mother, Mrs. James B. Duke, widow of the tobacco magnate, or her half-brother, Walker Patterson Irman, where she is going.

3—She is generally accompanied by her mother, half-brother or both. She is never without a chaperone and a bodyguard.

4—She permits the impression to gain circulation that she is where she is not. When she is reported at Duke Farms she is generally staying at her town house in New York. And vice versa.

5—She travels by plane whenever possible.

6—She frequently wears tortoise shell glasses as a disguise

7—She never looks a camera in the "eye". But avoiding photographers she makes identification more difficult.

SHUNS SOCIETY

8—She does not go in for very much social activity. This decreases the amount of newspaper publicity about her movements.

9—She never attends first night openings of the theater. This further detracts from public attention.

10—Her places of residence are virtually impregnable castles.

The Duke estate, "Rough Point," in Newport, R. I., is located on a promontory overlooking the sea.

The Duke marble mansion at 1 East Seventy-eighth street, New York City, is as inviolate and well-guarded as the United States mint.

The miniature rural kingdom here, presided over by the heiress to $100,000,000, is patroled inside and out by motorcycle policemen. There are guards at the gates and detectives in the garb of workingmen scattered throughout the estate.

Doris Duke has everything a girl could wish for—except privacy.

LINDYS START MYSTERY TRIP

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh went aloft in a plane yesterday for the first time since their return from their recent trans-Atlantic jaunt.

Motoring to Newark Airport from their Englewood home, the couple chartered an Eastern Aeronautical Company plane and sailed away without announcing their destination.

Airport officials said they did not know where the Lindberghs had gone or when they would return. Col. Lindbergh told reporters at the airport he would be gone three days. He declined to name his destination. The Lindberghs apparently planned to return to Newark Airport, as they left their automobile in a hangar.

DIETITIAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Nellie Storey, 26, dietitian at the North Side Y. M. C. A., was killed and her husband, Joseph S. Storey, 32, an employe of the West Penn Power Company, was probably fatally injured early today in an automobile crash.

They were on their way to Pittsburgh when their car is reported to have crashed into the rear end of a truck two miles west of Greensburg.

Russ Ambassador Received By Hull

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Representing the first official visit of an accredited Soviet ambassador to the American Secretary of State in nearly 16 years, Alexander Troyanovsky, the new Soviet envoy, today paid his respects to Secretary of State Hull.

It was the first meeting between the ambassador and Hull. Following the meeting, Troyanovsky said Soviet consular offices would be opened at New York and San Francisco within the next month.

Weather Conditions.

The low that was centered over Minnesota yesterday morning moved eastward over the lakes, and is now centered over Eastern Ontario, while the far northwestern low advanced to Southern Alberta. The lake region low produced light to moderate rainfall over most of the states east of the Mississippi River, and rain is still falling over the Middle and North Atlantic coast. High pressure, centered over the Lower Mississippi Valley covers most of the interior of the country. It is attended by clear skies, generally, and caused a drop in temperature to near the seasonal normal. In the far Northwest temperatures are rising again. Temperatures will drop to somewhat below freezing over this section tonight, but there is no extremely cold weather indicated for the next several days.

River Conditions.

There was a slight rise at some points in the upper rivers due to melting snow and light rainfall. Stage at Franklin is 2.3 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.0; Pittsburgh, 11.4; Dam No. 4, 9.3; No. 8, 8.0; No. 10, 9.3, and No. 12, 8.7. The dams are up. The rivers will rise slightly.

Coatless Policemen Banned in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—New York policemen will have to wear their coats no matter how hot it gets next summer. Police Commissioner O'Ryan announced today. He said:

and American Scantic Steamship lines. He added:

"We guaranteed a loan to the American Export Line."

Black questioned Atterbury at length regarding the relations between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad. He said:

"We have an operating contract with the H. and M. Company."

He added that the Pennsylvania held no stock in the road, whose board of directors now is headed by former Postmaster General Brown.

FIRST RAIL-PLANE LINE

Atterbury said the Pennsylvania Railroad invested $500,000 in the Transcontinental Air Transport Company several years ago to form the first combination train-and-plane route between New York and San Francisco. Atterbury explained:

"I have traveled in Europe a great deal since the war. American aviation was far behind the times.

"I was interested in building it up. It is the backbone of American defense."

Atterbury denied that the railroads are hindering aviation development. He said:

"If any railroad has sought to prevent the growth of aviation, I never heard of it."

The TAT was merged with the Western Air Express to form the Transcontinental and Western Air Express, which received a government mail subsidy.

The new company's stock was divided 47½ per cent each to the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Western Air Express and 5 per cent to Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, in which the Mellons are interested.

Spain May Free Four Americans

MADRID, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The Associated Press was informed by a high judicial authority today that Attorney General Antonio Marsa had decided to recommend a pardon for four Americans held in jail at Palma, Mallorca.

The four—Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of West Springfield, Mass.; Roger F. Mead, of New York, and Edmund A. Blodgett, of Stamford, Conn.—were sentenced to six months and a day for insulting a civil guard.

JUDGES SNEE AND EVANS DIE HERE

Former Stricken Two Hours After Man He Succeeded

Snee to succeed him in Common Pleas Court. The following year at the general election, he was elected to the Common pleas bench for the 10-year term.

BORN IN COUNTY

Judge Snee was born in Jefferson Township, Allegheny County, July 8, 1876. He attended country and preparatory schools before entering Washington and Jefferson College, where he graduated in 1899.

He entered the law offices of George W. Guthrie later, and was graduated in law by the University of Pittsburgh in 1902. He was admitted to practice in Allegheny County that same year. During the oWrld War Judge Snee served as chairman of the draft board in District 5 of the county.

Judge Evans was born on a farm near Bronson, Mich., December 3, 1853, the son of William S. and Susan Creighton Evans. After being graduated from high school at Tecumseh, Mich., in 1871, he came to Pittsburgh, where he taught school while studying law. He was admitted to the Allegheny County Bar in 1878, and in 1898 was appointed by Gov. Hastings to fill a vacancy in Common Pleas Court No. 3.

32 YEARS ON BENCH

In November, 1898, Judge Evans was elected on a Republican ticket for a full term of 10 years. He remained on the bench 32 years. When he voluntarily retired in 1930, as president judge of Common Pleas Court, he had won the distinction of being the only jurist in Pennsylvania to have been elected for four successive terms.

Judge Evans' last appearance on the bench was in September, 1932, when he took the place of former Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, who was ill, at the opening of the fall term.

Funeral services for Judge Evans will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday in the home of his only daughter, Mrs. Jean Rose, wife of Attorney Don Rose, Beaver road, Sewickley. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. O. D. Odell, pastor of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church, of which Judge Evans was a member.

COURT ADJOURNS

The death of Judge Snee was a shock to every member of the County Court. President Judge Ambrose B. Reid, upon hearing of his death, announced an adjournment of the entire court until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Court will be resumed tomorrow morning, and formal announcement of Judge Snee's death will be made at noon to the assembled jurists in the Criminal Court assignment room, where he presided this term.

Judge Snee leaves his widow, Mrs. Bertha Anne Davis, and two sons, John Vestor and William Herbert Snee.

He resided at 58 Hondbridge drive, Mt. Lebanon.

BACKS PINCHOT IN BONUS FEUD

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—Vigorous denial of charges that Gov. Gifford Pinchot was attempting to force veterans to subscribe to his policies in applying for a bonus was made by Henry Grab, president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The charges were made in Washington by Representative Francis E. Walter, of Easton. The Congressman accused the Governor of making "a dying effort to build up a political machine" by inserting a question on the bonus application blanks asking veterans if they support the Governor's political philosophy. Grab yesterday said:

"That is not the truth. I have an application blank for a bonus and no such question appears on it."

Christian Science Lecture Set Sunday

"Christian Science: the Science of Spiritual Causation" will be the topic of a lecture by William E. Brown, of Los Angeles, at the Grotto, 107 East Montgomery avenue, North Side, Sunday. He appears under the auspices of the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of Pittsburgh.

The speaker is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass.

Dutch's Waiters Can't See Paying for Thugs

A disagreement which caused employes of Dutch Henry's restaurant to walk out yesterday was still unsettled today as waiters planned a meeting to air their grievances.

The strike was prompted by a notice asking the workers, who number more than 100, to contribute $1 a week for 12 weeks to make up the $1,400 loss suffered in a robbery last week.

Employer and employes failed to agree on the number that took part in the walkout. Dutch Henry, whose last name is Boosman, said:

"Only three bus boys left the place—and they are Communists. I didn't want anybody's money. I just wanted to see how many of the force are loyal to me."

A waiter asserted:

"Every man in the restaurant walked out. And we had a reason. We have been paying $3 a week for meals, 75 cents for laundry and extra for everything we break. That doesn't leave much for pay day—and he wanted another buck."

Whatever the number, the new agreed to return to work. Whether or not they'll stay is expected to be decided at the waiters' meeting today.

Mysterious Convict Isle 'Empress' Abdicates

ABOARD EXPLORATION CRUISER VELERO III, CHARLES ISLAND, Galapagos, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The "Empress" of the old convict Isle of Charles at the equator has abdicated. She will not be deported.

This was the verdict today of armed officials of the government of Ecuador, who were at the lonely little volcanic island. They came from Chatham Island, across the archipelago, aboard Capt. G. Allan Hancock's cruiser, prepared to carry her away.

But the Baroness Bousequet de Wagner, lately of Vienna, this self-styled empress, convinced them she is only a lonely woman, that conditions have improved, and it would be best not to disturb her.

Strange tales filtering out from this strange little island during the last year, caused the official investigation.

One report was by a Norwegian vessel that a member of its crew had been held prisoner in her one-room hotel overnight. Another was the report of a honeymoon castaway couple that after their ship had been wrecked and they got ashore she forced them off in a small boat. Shill another was the shooting of one of her companions.

The lonely life of the last year, however, seems to have worked a change the officers found.

There are only nine persons on the island, one an infant.

DEEP PAYROLL CUTS URGED BY MRS. SMITH

Recommendations of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, budget aide of Mayor William N. McNair, urging a cut of $1,867,461 to balance the budget were to be sent to city department heads today.

Deep cuts in payroll and shakeups and combinations in city bureaus are proposed and have the Mayor's indorsement. The Mayor has proposed a 5 per cent salary reduction.

The city budget was closed by the retiring Council at $21,252,549. If Mrs. Smith's suggestions are carried out that figure will be reduced to $19,385,088, which is $39,912 less than estimated revenue under revised assessment figures.

Much depends on the attitude of department heads toward the proposals of Mrs. Smith and her assistant, M. C. Conick, auditor for Main & Co. Some of the directors have let it be known unofficially that they intend to go along to the limit of their ability with the proposed economies.

SMITH SILENT

The new Safety Director, Ralph E. Smith, not having been consulted on the changes in the department to which he was yesterday named chief, has not yet expressed himself on the Smith-Conick program.

The proposed reductions in the Safety Department amount to $215,764 and include the eliminating of 55 jobs in the Bureau of Police, and four in the Bureau of Building Inspection.

The report criticizes the method of reckoning seniority in the police and fire bureaus, stating it is recorded from the date of the registration of the men rather than the length of actual service. It is pointed out that a large percentage of police and firemen are thus getting maximum salaries of seven-year men.

The automatic pay increase should be eliminated in both bureaus for this year, the report states.

It is also contended that the furlough ordinance passed by Council giving the men in the bureaus vacations and pass days with pay will either seriously cripple city service or will cost the city $500,000.

The proposed cancellation of the South Pittsburgh Water Company contract involving a saving of about $300,000 a year will get a hearing soon before Council.

WATER RATE BOOST

A storm of protest is gathering in the South Hills, where the immediate effect of such action would be an increase of almost 50 per cent in the water rate.

The Thirty-second Ward Democratic Committee has sent a protest to Council.

A large portion of Mrs. Smith's reductions, $750,000, is set up as poossible reversions from the bond fund and sinking fund.

This was announced, the report states, after conferences with Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner and Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston. Heretofore the reversions went to the particular bond issues where the balances occurred.

The plan now is to put all of the excess funds into the general sinking fund, thus reducing the amount the city has to set aside for that purpose.

The report also suggested the appointment of five qualified insurance men to study the city's insurance policies.

NEW STATE AIDE IN REECE CASE

Universal Service.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23.—Seth M. Walker, appointed by Gov. Hill McAlister to assist in the prosecution of Joseph I. Reece, former state official, appeared in Criminal Court yesterday and presented his power of attorney from the Governor.

Walker's appointment provoked an exchange of bitter statements between the Governor and District Attorney General Richard Atkinson last week.

Atkinson, who recently had Reece and three others, including Paul M. Davis, banker and brother of Norman H. Davis, arrested on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the state of $22,800, which Atkinson says was used in McAlister's campaign, resisted Walker's entrance into the case. Atkinson said:

"All I am asking is that I be permitted to make justice equal, not only for Reece, but for banker associates and others."

Judge Gilbert, after hearing arguments, permitted Walker to hand the foreman of the grand jury five presentments, charging Reece with larceny, embezzlement of public funds and fraudulent breach of trust.

His presentments did not name any others as being implicated with Reece.

Wife of Byrd Aide Dies in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—News of the death here of Mrs. Ruth Schallberg Black, 27, was sent across the Pacific yesterday to her husband, Richard B. Black, young San Francisco scientist with the Byrd expedition to the South Pole.

McNair, as Magistrate, Seeks Racket Bosses

Safety Chief Stirs Job Row With Shakeup Threat

Block, 54 of Cobden street, to the City Property Bureau to get themselves a half-acre garden plot each.

This apparently was because Minn had admitted writing numbers but not knowing just who the "higher-up" was and because Block had admitted selling booze to support his big family, His Honor decided:

"I think it is a shame for the state to sell whisky—the idea of the state of Pennsylvania being in the livuor business! we can't blame you fellows when we sell it ourselves."

The Mayor startled four drunks by discharging them in German.

Leaving the Mt. Washington Police Station, the Mayor was hailed by the motorman of a passing trolley who invited his honor to go for a ride. The Mayor, an advocate of 5-cent fares, refused with:

"I'll ride for a nickel."

ANGRY WITH SMITH

Back in his office the Mayor was quite angry when he heard that Public Safety Director Smith had indicated Supt. Marshall was to be put on the skids. He called Marshall in and told him not to worry.

But publicly all the Mayor said was:

"He (Smith) is the boss. I hope he does the right thing."

The Mayor has time and again announced that he would allow his cabinet heads to run their own departments.

All of which was of little comfort to Attorney Henry, the articulate candidate whom the Mayor defeated for the Democratic mayoralty nomination last September.

DENIAL ENTERED

The Smith appointment and confirmation brought from McNair a statement that he told Henry last week his appointment was "all off." This brought from Attorney G. Malcolm McDonald, present at two of the Henry-McNair conferences, a sharp denial.

From Henry, who ran against McNair for the Democratic mayoralty nomination last September, came the charge that McNair acted in bad faith.

McNair said he had two other names in readiness—those of George E. Evans and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith. McNair's budget advisor, if James F. Malone and Ralph E. Smith were both rejected.

McDonald was told that McNair said:

"I didn't offer Henry the job. Can I help it if a man thinks it's an offer when I ask his permission to use his name? I'd like to know the meaning of the word 'offer'."

McDonald expressed disgust and said that McNair offered Henry the job in no uncertain terms and pressed him to take it.

Henry would only say:

"I regret to be compelled to believe that McNair's solicitation of me to accept this position was not in good faith.

"A word to the unwary when dealing with our unique Mayor: 'Timeos Danaos et dona ferentes'—and that means 'I fear the Greeks even when they bear gifts'."

The "unique Mayor" sat quietly at the press table in a jammed council chamber yesterday as he heard his nomination of Malone voted down, five to four.

KANE CHEERED

He heard John Kane cheered and applauded as he arose, spokesman for the four Democratic Councilmen, and said:

"I will never be led into a position where any individual can tell me I have to do things.

"We were called into conference in the latter part of December and told that we had to vote for this appointment (Malone's) or we would be destroyed politically by being deprived of patronage.

"There is no man alive who can browbeat me. If there is anyone who can drive me out of politics, my vote 'No' is a challenge to do it."

Councilman John M. Huston, later admitting it was M. L. Benedum, Democratic oilman and political financier, who called the conference, seconded Kane's motion, saying:

"I'm in full accord with every word Mr. Kane has uttered."

Councilman Thomas J. Gallagher added his word and Councilman William J. Soost predicted that the police would be deeper in politics than ever with Malone at the helm of the safety department.

MINORITY FOR MALONE

Councilman Walter R. Demmler joined the four in voting against Malone with Councilmen Robert Garland, F. J. McArdle, Charles Anderson and William A. Magee forming a minority in favor of confirmation.

McNair immediately introduced Smith's name. He was confirmed without opposing vote.

Thus Smith obtained the job which has been held by a Republican holdover, Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and which Benedum had been trying to get for an ex-Republican, James F. Malone.

Smith is a real estate broker who was named police magistrate by the Mayor just a few weeks ago. He had served once before as a magistrate under then Mayor, now Councilman, William A. Magee. He came to Pittsburgh more than 30 years ago from New York City and has long been a friend of McNair's. They grew up as single-taxers.

Immediately after Council meeting, President Garland, at McNair's request, called a special Council meeting for Wednesday afternoon to consider the nomination of J. William McGowan to take Smith's place as magistrate.

McGowan is head of the Catholic Boys' Welfare Bureau. McNair late yesterday said he has already sent his name to Council by letter.

WOMEN UPHELD ON RUM BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.) Postmaster General Farley, one of the chief campaigners for repeal, yesterday said women "positively" had a rightful place on liquor control boards. He said:

"I think it's a crime if women don't get the proper representation on the liquor boards. If for no other reason than the work done by Mrs. Pauline Sabin's organization."

Mrs. Sabin headed the women's organization for national prohibition reform.

Farley refused to comment, however, on the question of what constituted "proper" feminine representation — a matter now being hotly debated in the District of Columbia due to a proposal to put two women on the local board.

ONE MAN HELD IN BOOKIE RAID

Breaking in the doors of an alleged "bookie" shop on the second floor of 130 Sixth street, police reported seizing a large number of racing sheets and slips and arresting one man last night.

The man, charged with keeping a gambling house, gave his name as John Harvey. He was alone in the place when the police entered. Patrons apparently escaped through a rear door which police found open when they entered, they said.

George Flocus and Theodore Flocus, charged with operating and maintaining a lottery, were released on $2,500 bond each, pending a hearing before Justice of the Peace George C. Blair as a result of a raid yesterday on a restaurant at 825 Wood street, Wilkinsburg.

GERMAN ARMS PERIL SEEN

Universal Service.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Settlement of the Franco-German arms impasse must be reached speedily to prevent rearmament of Germany, French government officials said.

The dispute has reached the danger point, according to the virtually universal opinion prevailing in official circles here, and only quick action can prevent Germany from emerging in a few months with a perfectly equipped force of 300,000 men and 1,000,000 militarized Brown Shirts.

The "cordial refusal" of Chancellor Hitler to the disarmament compromise suggested in the French aide memoire and Vice Chancellor von Papen's recent declaration that "only force leads to respect" are interpreted as a warning that Germany is deliberately delaying disarmament negotiations while she rearms.

AUDIT SOUGHT FOR MAYVIEW

Welfare Director Southard Hay has asked for an audit of the books of the Welfare Department.

An ordinance has been introduced in Council granting authority for the employment of auditors. Hay explained that accounts at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview have not been checked for many years and that the examination should be made for the new administration.

THINKS AUTO'S BOAT, JAILED

WESTPORT, Conn., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Howard Montanye, of Stamford, was arrested yesterday in Long Island Sound, charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Driving along a street leading to the Sound, Montanye kept right on going after reaching the water. Two state policemen fished him out.

Placed under a $250 bond, Montanye complained to police:

"The guy that sold me the car said it was a good boat"

UTILITIES FIGHT METER TAX BY CITY

A hearing this afternoon on the proposed $5 tax on meters has been granted to public utility corporations by City Council.

The legislation, which would tax all kinds of meters from water measuring devices to street car fare registers, has been referred to City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully for a report on its legality.

It is expected a formidable array of legal talent will represent the utilities at the hearing. So far-reaching is the effect of the proposed meter tax, which it is estimated would bring in as much as $3,000,000 a year to the city, that the public service corporations are aroused.

PROPOSED BY KANE

The measure was introduced by Councilman John J. Kane, floor leader of the Democratic bloc in Council. No objection was raised to it in Council.

Councilman W. A. Magee suggested that the ordinance be sent to the law department, and Kane agreed.

If the meter tax is enacted, Mayor William N. McNair has insisted that the revenue be used to easing the tax burden and not to reducing the deficit.

The Mayor has expressed a dislike for the meter tax. He declared that meters are too much like personal property. His principal attacks have been directed against what he terms the "land speculators."

RENTAL TAX STUDIED

McNair's proposed 10 per cent tax on ground rents is also being scrutinized by the law department.

Two new ordinances, the $100 tax on one-man trolleys and the tax on telephone sets, have been sent to Finance Committee and will be discussed today.

The possibility of the utilities appealing to court to circumvent the proposed taxes was discussed yesterday. Kane said:

"I don't think we should be clubbed into tabling this action just because it may be taken to court."

Mayor McNair yesterday looked over one of the low-fare cabs of the Zone Cab Corporation, of Cleveland, which is seeking to compete with the Parmelee system here. He expressed doubt whether the Public Service Commission would allow the new cab company to enter the Pittsburgh field.

TRACTION BOARD JOB SCANNED

Council's Committee on Service and Surveys today was to discuss Mayor William Nissley McNair's appointment of Attorney William E. Schoyer as a member of the Traction Conference Board.

McNair asked Council's confirmation yesterday, but consideration was delayed at the instance of Councilman William A. Magee, the board's attorney. Magee thought there was some question of McNair's right to dismiss W. Edgar Reed without Council's consent.

Schoyer would be one of the city's two members of the four-man board, which originally was set up to arbitrate disputes between the city, the boroughs and townships of Allegheny County served by the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and the railways company.

The borough's member is D. L. Starr. The other city member is Chairman Charles A. Finley, understood slated to remain. The railways company's representative is W. H. Boyce.

The city shortly must take action on renewal of its contract with the railways company setting up the board.

'Welcome' on Mat For Lawrence in Smith's Office

If David L. Lawrence, the Democratic county chairman, can't find any place to go in the City-County Building in his search for patronage, he is welcome both politically and socially in the office of the new Public Safety Director, Ralph E. Smith.

Director Smith made plain today that the door is open to Lawrence, who has been starving so far as any favors from Mayor McNair are concerned. Smith left the impression that Lawrence could place a few of his cohorts here and there, although it is not known that Lawrence supported Smith for the job.

The new Director's first day in office failed to work any changes in the rackets. They're still closed. Numbers operators were still functioning, but the gambling rooms, the slot machines and the disorderly houses were idle.

GENERAL AUDIT FOR CITY LOOMS

The first move in the direction of a general audit of all city departments was seen today when the Finance Committee held up action on the request for an audit of the Welfare Department by its new director, Southard Hay.

Councilman P. J. McArdle, chairman of the committee, said:

"The City Controller is considering introduction of an ordiance for an audit far more comprehensive than this."

The general audit measure is expected to reach Council Monday.

Six Held, Five Fined On Liquor Charges

Six men were held for court and five others fined $25 each on liquor charges today by Alderman Raymond E. Schneider.

Ernest Campbell, 2223 Tustin street, and John Colucci, 79 Swan street, were held for court on charges of selling untaxed liquor. Frank Krause, Jr., of O'Hara Township, and Leon Mariani, of Cuddy, were held on charges of manufacturing, and Jack Dumas, 928 Bedford avenue, and Peter Lambardo, 1031 Bustrick way, were held on charges of transporting moonshine.

3 DEPOSITORIES URGED FOR CITY

Three active depositories for city funds in place of one now provided are contemplated in an ordinance introduced in City Council and referred to finance committee.

Under the ordinance the City Treasurer would be authorized to deposit not to exceed one million dollars in city funds in each of the active depositories.

Banks, as at present, would be required to protect deposits by placing in a safe deposit box government or municipal bonds to cover the amount of the city's cash.

The new ordinance would allow the use of bonds of municipalities in Pennsylvania up to 90 per cent of their value as a guarantee and corporate bonds up to 75 per cent of market value.

Government, state, county and school district bonds in this state would be accepted at face.

McNair Threatens Raid On Dollar Rum Stores

Mayor William Nissley McNair objects in no uncertain terms to "Sweepstakes" the new $1-a-fifth whisky with which the state stores hope to put the bootlegger out of business, McNair said:

"I'll raid the first state liquor store that tries to sell that stuff. That's not whisky."

Asked if he would send Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith orders to that effect, McNair said:

"No. That's up to him."

So he either will or will not raid the stores. Everybody seemed to agree that he has no legal grounds for ordering such raids.

ROW AT DANCE ENDS ASTOR BETROTHAL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A sweethearts' quarrel caused the breaking of the engagement of pretty Eileen Gillespie to John Jacob Astor III, one of America's richest young men, it was related last night by one who says he was an eyewitness to the incident.

Although this was denied by Mrs. Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, the girl's mother, the eyewitness cites as corroborating his story the following:

That Mrs. Charles De Rham gave a supper dance on Saturday night at her home at 73 East Seventy-third street for the Misses Alice Andre and Agnes Pyne, who were to have been bridesmaids for Miss Gillespie at the wedding that was to be.

That Miss Gillespie and Mr. Astor were guests.

That Astor danced a few times (too often, anyway), with someone other than his fiance.

24 HOURS LATER!

That 24 hours later the breaking of the engagement was announced.

Miss Gillespie's mother was informed at the Mayfair House of what the anonymous witness said. She left the phone, a moment, talked to her daughter, returned and commented:

"I can assure you there's not a word of truth in that statement. They certainly did not quarrel about anything like that.

"Mr. Gillespie and I were at the dance, too. Mr. Astor and my daughter left early. I suppose they wanted to talk. Sunday night—late Sunday night—we issued the announcement that the engagement had been cancelled."

GUARDS AGAINST REGRETS

When Mrs. Gillespie was reminded that her daughter and Astor did go to the dance together Saturday night and that the engagement was broken just 24 hours later, she said:

"Now, please, I don't want to say anything more for fear I should say something I would regret."

Miss Gillespie today spent the afternoon with Miss Andre, who was to have been a bridesmaid at the wedding February 6. Before the two girls got together, Miss Andre said:

"Why I just can't believe it. I saw them only Saturday night. Both seemed very happy and Eileen was just bubbling over with arrangements for the wedding."

Young Astor is a son of Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster, and Mrs. Madeline Dick Fiermonte. Fiermonte is the Italian pugilist whose bride Mrs. Dick became shortly after she divorced William K. Dick at Reno recently.

'DEAD' WAR HERO STAR WITNESS

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—John W. Maxwell, a pharmacist's mate at the Chelsea Naval Hospital, who, as James Zorland Robertson, was reported as "killed in action" in France, was prepared to fly to Oklahoma City today to confront a former wife who said she thought he was dead.

Summoned by the government to appear as a witness against his former wife, now Mrs. Nora V. Demaree, who seeks payment of his $5,000 war risk insurance, Maxwell, accompanied by a deputy marshal, will fly west from the Boston airport.

Maxwell said that because of family troubles he never returned home and that after he had been informed his first wife had died, took another bride. His first wife obtained a judgment on his $5,000 policy and the government, having identified Maxwell as Robertson through fingerprints, seeks to have the judgment set aside.

'Heaven' Slayer Held Incurable Maniac

SEATTLE, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Oskar Hestnes, fisherman and self-styled prophet, quoted by police as saying he strangled his two small sons to death to "choke the devil out of them," was pronounced an incurable maniac by an alienist yesterday.

His wife, Marie, who told detectives she acquiesced in the killing of the boys, John, 10, and Henry, 4, in the belief Hestnes was a new Messiah, was described as suffering from an acute mania from which she might never recover.

RIVER PROJECTS TO BE URGED

George S. Davison, president of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission, announced today he would soon call a meeting of the commission and the Tri-State Authority to consider plans for enlisting support for the commission's reservoir projects.

Construction of six gigantic reservoirs in Pennsylvania and one in West Virginia is urged to supplement the storage reservoir in the Tygart river near Grafton, W. Va., preliminary work of which is under way. A bill has been presented in Congress that would allow the commission to carry out its plans with federal funds.

ILLNESS ALONE TO WIN DELAY FOR INSULL

ATHENS, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Only in illness did Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities czar, have hope today of refuge from the United States law.

The Greek government held firm to its decision that Insull must leave the country. His permit to remain expires January 31. But the Ministry of the Interior stated that, for humanitarian reasons, the government will prolong his permit if Insull's recent illness becomes aggravated.

Such a prolongation, it was apparent, would be merely a temporary matter and would not solve the question of where the 74-year-old fugitive from justice would go from Greece.

It was rumored yesterday that he might go to the Island of Rhodes, but the Italian foreign office pointed out that Italy has an extradition treaty with the United States and that therefore Rhodes was closed to Insull as a refuge.

Today's rumor had it that Insull might go to Persia.

The government opposition newspaper Neos Kosmos appeared today with an editorial blast against Insull's security here. The newspaper said:

"It is high time that the Greek adventure of Insull comes to an end. He is the cause of coldness in our relations with the great overseas republic; also we seem to forget that among Insull's victims are probably also Greeks in America.

"Let Insull kindly facilitate our position. His different appeals to Greek courts and his feigned sicknesses always breaking out 'in time' have become scandalous.

"Regarding his appeal to humanitarianism, we avow that the real humanitarian act is delivering criminals to the justice of their country."

Insull himself made no appearance. He was reported to be ill.

CONVICT SLAIN BY POSSE

LANSING, Kan., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Death at the hands of hard-shooting possemen has ended the criminal career of Bob (Big Boy) Brady, who led six other Kansas Penitentiary convicts over the wall last Friday morning.

Brady, a life-termer, who thrice has escaped from prison, was shot to death late yesterday near Paola, Kan., after he had made a futile effort to rally his three companions with a cry of "let's fight!" as a posse of peace officers approached.

His three companions—Tommy McMahan, Fred Cody and Benjamin Young—were recaptured and returned here. They were placed in No. 2 cellhouse, from which they escaped after overpowering a guard and constructing a ladder with which to scale the wall. This cellhouse is the "solitary" of the state prison.

Their return and the death of their leader accounted for five of the seven fugitives. Charles Clifton McArthur was taken into custody at Kansas City Sunday. Jim Clark and Frank Delmar made their way into Oklahoma after kidnaping Lewis Dresser, a rural school teacher, and using his car in their flight, still are at large. Dresser was released unharmed.

BARBER JAILED FOR FAKE CASH

George Miketich, 38, of Duquesne, a barber, pleading guilty yesterday in Federal Court to a charge of passing counterfeit $5 bills in Braddock, East Pittsburgh and other towns, was sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve a year and a day in a government penitentiary.

Ted Healy Accused Of Beating Producer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Ted Healy, screen and stage comedian, was named defendant in a $50,112 damage suit filed yesterday in Superior Court by Francis (Bunny) Weldon, theatrical producer.

The complaint alleged that Healy attacked Weldon without cause last November 23, and beat him until he was insensible. The producer said he had gone to Healy's home to apologize for a "kidding remark" at a Culver City night club at which the comedian and his wife had taken offense.

2 Die in Fire, 2 Leap To Safety in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Two unidentified men were burned to death today and a second pair saved themselves only by leaping from the third-story window when flames swept their junk shop home.

Daniel Mikiluk, 46, the first to jump, was so severely injured he was reported to be dying. The other, Theodore Jakabowitz, 50, suffered a burned face and a broken ankle. Police said it was almost impossible to identify the two dead men.

Morgenthau Sister To Wed Architect

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Alma Morgenthau Wertheim, daughter of Henry Morgenthau, Sr., former ambassador to Turkey, and sister of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, will be married Wednesday to Paul L. Wiener, New York architect.

The ceremony is scheduled to take place in the municipal chapel.

DIES IN CHAIR PRAISING ALLAH

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Ahmed Osman—first man of the Mohammedan faith ever to be given the death penalty in Massachusetts—was electrocuted early today at state prison for the slaying of 9-year-old Nellie Keras, of Norwood. To the last he protested his innocence.

During last night he turned to the Koran, and repeated over and over again:

"There is no God but Allah. Mohammed is the apostle of Allah."

Nellie Keras disappeared Christmas afternoon, 1932. Several days later the girl's body was found under a woodpile in her own cellar.

Osman, who lived in the apartment above the Keras family, and Ali Osman, no relative, subsequently were arrested. Each denied guilt and accused the other of the crime. Ali was acquitted, Ahmed convicted.

DKYES CLOSED AT PYMATUNING

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 23.—The Pymatuning Reservoir, a hope of residents of Shenango and Beaver valleys for more than 50 years, will be a reality tomorrow when the two large gates are closed at Turnersville.

Then will start the huge task of impounding the 64 billion gallons of water to fill the reservoir, which will have a shore line of 70 miles and which engineers estimate will require five years.

The basin, part of which lies in Ohio at Andover, will cover 22,000 acres. It is estimated that the project will cost the state $3,500,000. Although the dam was built to furnish a steady flow of water to the industries in the two valleys, residents of the two states see in the lake a future recreational center.

WITHERUP CASE HELD TO APRIL

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 23.—Charged with murder and voluntary manslaughter, Walter Witherup, 19, former Clintonville High School student, will face trial in April for the death of his father, Clark N. Witherup, 50, in an oil lease cabin along the Allegheny River, 20 miles south of here.

The crime was committed December 9. The boy at first insisted his father had been kidnaped by two men and a woman named "Blondie" and then when his father's body was found 25 miles from the scene, he admitted that a gun in his hands had killed the parent, "but it was an accident," he said.

Photographs of the elder Witherup's body after he was found, with a shotgun wound in the head, in Little Canoe Creek, were shown to the grand jury, along with pictures taken by state police at the cabin where the Witherups, father and son, had been the night of the shooting.

2 Girls Die, 8 Hurt In Dynamite Blast

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Two little girls, aged 9 and 12, were killed and eight other persons, including the girls' father, were seriously injured last night when five tons of dynamite exploded in a factory on the Island Do Governador in Rio de Janeiro harbor. The city was shaken as though struck by an earthquake.

Seven hundred orphan boys, living in the Island Do Governador Orphange, escaped serious injuries.

SALE OF YACHT RECALLS CURSE

Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—The sinister omen, cast upon all the possessions of the late Frederick Wilhelm Murnau, famous German film producer, by the enraged tribal chiefs of Bora Bora in the South Sea Islands, and which natives believe brought tragic death to Murnau and misfortune to many, including Douglas Fairbanks, was ominously recalled yesterday with the sale of Murnau's yacht Bali to Allen Miller, of this city.

Upon Murnau's yacht and upon his home in Papeete, the native chieftains in a mystic rite cast the dread Polynesian "tabu." It was their method of wreaking vengeance upon the noted film producer for alleged violation of their sacred interdict.

Murnau laughed at the "tabu," but hardly had he returned on the Bali to California when he was crushed to death in an automobile accident near Santa Barbara. His chauffeur and a companion escaped untouched.

Alabama Governor Bans Dog Fight As 'Inhuman'

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Describing pit fighting as "cruel and inhuman," Gov. B. M. Miller last night ordered that dog fights scheduled for Tuscaloosa January 27-28, by the American Pit Bull Terriers' Association be stopped.

He said he would notify Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, of Tuscaloosa, to stop the fights as violation of the "laws of Alabama and the laws of man."

The Governor said that although Alabama laws did not specifically ban dog fighting, the state law forbidding cruelty to animals did prohibit the fights.

PANTAGES, WIFE SUED BY SLEMP

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A suit seeking to recover $15,000 was filed in Superior Court yesterday against Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, and his wife, Mrs. Lois Paniages, by C. Bascom Slemp and Louis Titus.

Slemp, former Republican national committeeman and secretary to the late President Calvin Coolidge, and Titus charged that Pantages owed them that amount for legal services they performed for him in connection with an appeal.

The plaintiffs referred to the Eunice Pringle case in which Pantages was involved several years ago.

The action said that a board of arbitrators had awarded Slemp and Titus $30,000 in fees and that only half of it was paid.

BLUE LAW ROW AT STANDSTILL

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Mayor Eddie McCloskey announced last night he had decided on a "waiting game" before prosecuting violators of an anti-Sabbath activity law passed in 1915 which he suddenly ordered enforced last week.

The flaming-haired former pugilist said he had been "forced" to invoke the old blue law by the Council, which passed a resolution condemning the Sunday movies he has been permitting to operate for two months.

This was promptly denied by members of the Council, who asserted the Mayor is staging "another of his sideshows."

Yesterday Police Chief Harry Kunk and his force was busy checking up on business establishments which remained open. He reported 24 violators.

GIRL PIANIST, 8, TELLS OF ROW WITH MOLINARI

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—"He told me to play all the encores I wanted," shouted a very excited little 8-year-old girl in a short gray squirrel coat and a pert little red hat as she bounced off a train this morning at the Grand Central.

"He" means Bernardino Molinari, orchestra conductor, and the child in the squirrel coat was Ruth Slenczynski, the child pianistic phenomenon, just back from her first tour, and her first conflict with the conductorial temperament.

PLAYED AT BENEFIT

Ruth gave her services January 18 for the benefit of the San Francisco Symphony. The conductor was Molinari, substituting for Issay Dobrowen. And the child played the first Beethoven concerto.

The concerto came just before intermission, and included Ruth's own cadenza. She said:

"They applauded and applauded, and I asked could I play encores, and he said 'Play all you want.'

"So I went back and sat down, and played. I must have played six or eight without stopping. You see, I like to play for people.

"I remember that Mr. Richard Tobin, the president of the orchestra, came out and tried to stop me, and I said 'You're not Charley Wagner,' and went on. And then Daddy came out and said that was enough. So I had to stop. But the people liked it.

'CALLED ME NAMES'

"And then I went backstage and Mr. Lorinari called me names—all kinds of names in Italian, and said it was a 'show' and not a concert, and put on his hat and started to leave. And finally Mr. Tobin got him back.

"You know, it's funny. A lot of the people left after I quit. I don't think Mr. Molinari had much of an audience the last part of the concert. How's Louis?"

Louis is Louis Smadbeck, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smadbeck, family friends, for whom Ruth has developed a childish 'crush.' And 'Charley Wagner' is Ruth's manager.

The only trouble with touring, according to Ruth, is that the piano must stay up ahead in the baggage car. She wants to play a concert every day, and fumes because she is held down to two or three a week.

THRONGS FLOCK TO AUTO SHOW

Pittsburgh's annual automobile show today neared its half-way mark with attendance figures at Motor Square Garden exceeding last year's, according to show officials.

Spectator and buyer interest has been heightened this year by the radical innovations in motor engineering and body design, according to W. N. Owings, manager of the show. Another incentive has been the substantial reduction in admission price, he pointed out.

Twenty-three makes of passenger cars are on display, running the gamut of streamline and airline designs.

PARDONS FOR 3 APPROVED

Gov. Pinchot today approved commutations of the sentences of three Allegheny County prisoners whose appeals were heard at last month's meeting of the State Pardon Board, and granted hearing applications for two others, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

Commutation was approved for Samuel Benjamin, who has served more than three years of his three-and-a-half-year sentence on an arson conviction. His wife asked for his release so that he could manage a meat shop and support his family.

The sentence of Frank Maley, who has been in Western Penitentiary since 1913 on a murder conviction, was commutated. The third from Allegheny County to be pardoned was Thomas Bethea, serving a term for a robbery conviction.

Those for whom hearings were granted are Robert Melvin Diamond, robbery, and Howard Ludwig, burglary and escape. A rehearing was granted to Paul Harris, statutary charge, robbery and burglary.

Probably one of the most interesting beauty conferences you've ever attended—and undoubtedly the most helpful! Miss Barrett, the special representative of Elizabeth Arden, is conducting private classes all this week, on the famous Arden method of beauty treatment—in which you'll learn how to give yourself a complete facial in 15 minutes—how to avoid that "middle-age look"—how to make-up correctly, etc.

Classes held at 10:30 A. M. and 2:30 P. M. in the Galleries of Intimate Apparel Groups are very limited in number, and admission is by registration only. Sign up, in the Toiletries Section, tomorrow!

JAPAN TO CURB WAR SCARE STORIES

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 23.—Japanese government leaders, subjected to interpellations at today's opening session of the Diet, promised that henceforth all Japanese publications predicting wars between Japan and various other nations would be rigidly controlled.

Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, new war minister, told the Diet:

"I recognize the fact that popular magazines fanning the war spirit should be checked when they maliciously cater to the public's imagination."

REPLIES DEMANDED

Gen. Hayashi spoke in reply to Count Yoshinori Futara, who assailed bitterly the spread of "war fever" in Japan during recent weeks by many organs of the popular press, particularly in weekly and monthly publications. War between Japan and the United States and between Japan and Russia have been the most favored topics. Futara said:

"I doubt that the so-called 'national spirit' really is a true reflection of Japanese ideals."

He demanded that Premier Makoto Saito, Gen. Hayashi and Minister of the Navy Mineo Osumi all reply. Each in turn assured the Diet the inflammatory publications would be curbed.

That the new army administration intends to pursue a strong course, however, was assured earlier in the day when the army demanded a "correction" of Premier Saito's address, in which he declared the so-called emergency crisis was an artificial creation.

WANT U. S. FRIENDSHIP

The army protested that an emergency really existed and was increasing in intensity, but Saito merely replied that Emperor Hirohito had approved the speech and that alteration was impossible.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota addressed the session on Japan's foreign policy, declaring Tokio "fervently desires American friendship," and that "between Japan and America there exists no question that is intrinsically difficult of solution."

Regarding Russia, however, he said "the attitude of the Soviet Union toward Japan seems to have undergone a change of some sort. It is most surprising and regrettable that the Soviet Union should now take to broadcasting, both at home and abroad, through the press and other channels, unwarranted criticisms directed against Japan, and circulate exaggerated stories about this or that situation, evidently for political and diplomatic purposes which such rumors are calculated to serve."

Jap Friendship Pledge Published in Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(Universal)—A pledge of friendship to the United States and a vigorous defiance of Soviet Russia today featured the address of Foreign Minister Koko Hirota to the Japanese Diet at Tokio.

A copy of the speech was made public at the Japanese embassy.

In a remarkably frank exposition of Japanese foreign policy, Hirota blamed the war tension in the Far East upon Soviet propaganda manufactured in Moscow.

He made it plain that, regardless of foreign criticism, Japan is determined to continue its policy of dominating the puppet state of Manchukuo.

Using a conciliatory tone in discussing this country, Hirota said:

"Far from having any thought of picking a quarrel with America, Japan fervently desires American friendship. At the same time I am confident that the United States will not fail to appraise correctly Japan's position in East Asia."

Washington Has Encouraged Europe in Belief U. S. Will Agree to Further Cuts in Debts

INSTALLMENT DUE, the basis on which the English desired the whole war debt to be settled.

Then arose an important question. The British wanted to know whether this token payment was legal.

Would Congress construe a token payment as default? For the British government insisted it did not want to be placed in a position of defaulting.

WASHINGTON officials declared inquiry had not been made as to the legality of the token payment but that they would institute inquiry.

The highest legal authority was consulted. The answer given was far from satisfactory.

But the President declared his readiness to regard the token payment NOT AS DEFAULT.

The British, therefore, made one of the conditions of the payment of this token of $10,000,000 that the President in acknowledging the receipt of the money state categorically that this payment was not default.

Again hectic days followed to find the correct formula for the payment and the exact wording of the message to be interchanged between the United States and Great Britain had to be agreed upon in advance.

Up to the very last few hours of the day on which the June payment was due, conversations and negotiations continued by cable and telephone.

An impatient House of Commons kept questioning the British chancellor of the exchequer and Mr. Chamberlain had to postpone a promised statement on what was being done about payment of the June installment for 24 hours in a tense and dramatic atmosphere until the zero hour of payment.

Then all he announced was the offer of the token payment and the acceptance by the United States NOT AS A "DEFAULT."

NOTHING was revealed of the stages by which this payment had been reached.

Thus the June payment was "hurdled" and Great Britain was encouraged by agents in Washington in the belief that Washington was willing to consider drastic and substantial reduction at some future date.

Through semi-official and indirect diplomatic channels an effort was made to induce France to take similar steps, first by paying in full the December, 1932, installment and second by making a token payment for the June, 1933, installment.

But France wasn't interested. France would pay nothing, not even 10 per cent of the payment due. Members of the administration, who had hoped for some progress in the erection of good will and machinery toward a final revision of war debts were bitter against France for obstructing settlement of a "reasonable basis."

The question for the American public to consider is what constitutes a reasonable basis.

All of France's actual war debt has been forgiven her.

America only asks repayment of monies borrowed since the war.

Must that post war debt be forgiven France also?

Is that a reasonable basis or a definitely dishonest basis?

SPEED TREATY NAVY PLAN IN HOUSE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The House Naval Affirs Committee today unanimously recommended passage of the Vinson bill providing a five-year naval building program to bring the Navy to full treaty strength.

In an effort to speed the program, the committee will attempt to attach the measure as a "rider" to the Navy appropriation bill now pending in the House.

Under the Vinson bill the Navy would begin the building of 102 ships at a cost of $380,000,000 to $475,000,000, depending upon the expense of increased cost under NRA.

WARNED BY ADMIRAL

The program would augment the $238,000,000 shipbuilding program now under way with Public Works Administration funds and the regular appropriation by Congress.

Under this plan the Navy would reach the full limit of the Washington and London naval treaties in six and one half to seven years. All Ships would be laid down in five years.

The committee's action followed testimony by Admiral William H. Stanley, chief of navel operations, that the United States is being laid open to grave danger by failure to expand the navy.

Standley also disclosed the Navy Department will submit a new airplane program to Congress which will call for an increase from 1,000 to 1,600 planes. Standley said:

"There is no question that we are endangering this country by not building up to treaty strength."

WILL ASK FUNDS SOON

Asked by Representative Boland, (D) of Pennsylvania, where the nation is in immediate danger, Standley replied:

Conditions are troubled — no one can say when trouble will come."

Standley announced the Navy Department will ask funds to start its new five-year program during the present session of Congress if the bill authorizing the program is passed promptly.

The Navy, he said, will ask $15,000,000 to $25,000 to begin work on 20 new destroyers and submarines after July 1, in addition to the present 32-ship program. He added:

"I regard this program as being perhaps the most important naval legislation since the World War."

JAP, CHINA LINK HINTED BY DUCE

International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—A warning by Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy that China, disgusted with the policies of the white nations, may join Japan in a bloc against the western powers, was published in the weekly news-magazine, "1934."

The manner by which Japan took over Manchuria revealed the powerlessness of Europe, Mussolini says in the signed article. Meanwhile, the United States made only "platonic protests," he points out. The Soviets, for their part, he continues, were satisfied with "a mere commercial offer to sell the Chinese Eastern Railway to Japan."

Mussolini's article expresses doubt whether American recognition of Soviet Russia will be effective in maintaining peace. He writes:

"The Litvinoff-Roosevelt agreement is important in itself, but it is specially of a moral nature as a warning to Japan. But nothing can authorize the belief that Soviet Russia and the United States will fight side by side if Japan is attacked by Russia or makes further Chinese conquest."

JAPAN DENIES CHINESE PACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's statement to the Japanese Diet that Japan had reached no agreement with China on "rectifications of Sino-Japanese relations" attracted more attention in Washington officials circles than any other part of his address on foreign relations.

Since the Tangku truce agreement in which Japan and China jointly agreed to maintain peace in North China, there have been scores of rumors of agreements under which the two powers were reported to have taken steps to reconcile their differences about Manchukuo.

The Japanese Foreign Minister pushed these aside with these words:

"It has been reported that of late the Chinese government, realizing the mistake of persisting in its anti-Japanese attitude, has decided to take steps looking toward rectifications of Sino-Japanese relations, but so far no concrete evidence has come to our notice to confirm the truth of the report."

BINNS RECALLS FIRST 'SOS' 25 YRS. AGO

By JOHN KOBLER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Twenty-five years ago today wireless was used to save human lives for the first time. As the S. S. Florida and the Republic rammed each other in a fog 60 miles off Nantucket, Jack Binns, then a youthful radio operator, flashed the CQD that resulted in a speedy rescue.

Since then thousands of lives have been saved by wireless, just as hundreds of thousands were lost before wireless was installed on every big boat, but to "Jack Binn" there will never be a shipwreck like that one.

Binns is 50 now. He has risen to the position of general manager of the Hazeltine Service Corporation, owners of radio patents.

TELLS OF FIRST SOS

He said yesterday:

"Wireless had only been in use on ships since 1902 when I was a radio operator aboard the Republic. When the Florida rammed us my C. Q. D. was the first to have been sent out. As a matter of fact between the years 1902 and 1909 there had been no major casualties on the high seas.

"It was four o'clock in the morning when the crash came. It pretty near shook me out of bed. There was a thick fog on the sea, and the Florida had smashed right into our engine room, putting out all the lights and cutting off our power. I had to use a storage battery to bang out my message in Morse code. It was C. Q. D. in those days. It was changed later to S. O. S. The land station replied immediately, and a general call was sent out to all ships in our vicinity.

TEN LIVES LOST

Capt. Inman Sealby was our skipper. He was pretty busy transferring all passengers to the Florida, which had only been damaged in the prow. Thirty-six hours later the Republic sank, but a number of ships arrived at the scene that day, a Saturday, and all passengers from both injured ships were transferred to the Baltic, which took them back to New York Harbor. The Florida managed to get back, with all passengers off, under her own power.

"Only 10 lives were lost, and they died as a direct result of the collision, but if it had not been for the Republic's wireless (The Florida had none) not one life could have been saved."

Since that time wireless has been installed on virtually every craft afloat with the result that danger of shipwreck has been vastly minimized.

That was Binns' only experience with SOS calls, but he served at sea for the next three years.

Two Newell Youths Reported Missing

Two 16-year-old youths from Newell have been reported missing by their parents and are being sought by police of Brownsville and Pittsburgh. The boys, Fred Pope and Owen Krouse, disappeared last Wednesday after leaving their homes to attend high school. A brief note informed their parents they were leaving home.

Detroit Man Found Injured in Garage

Found lying in a garage at Negley avenue and Harvard street last night, Lawrence McBride, 30, of Detroit, was taken to Homeopathic Hospital where it was said he may lose the sight of an eye as a result of a cut. According to police, he refused to say how he received his injury.

Mae West Letter Just Blind for 'Numbers'

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller Jackson forgot to stamp some of his letters addressed to George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Mae West and other notables and that, police say, caused his downfall.

Jackson, 36-year-old Negro, has been suspected by police for some time of being an agent for "numbers" racketeers. He has been stopped several times on warrants, but the officers never found any evidence—only the mail addressed to notables. It was sealed and stamped and police respected it.

Yesterday they found letters without stamps on him and they opened the envelopes. Inside, police say they found the gambling slips, so John D. Rockefeller Jackson was arrested.

Stage and Play Date Changed to February 7

Not wishing to interfere with the concert to be given Tuesday night, February 6, by George Gershwin and Leo Reisman's orchestra with James Melton as tenor soloist, the Stage and Play Society has given up that date, and has taken the next evening, Wednesday, February 7.

That night the members will produce three one-act plays—the second production of the season. All this was decided at a meeting last night in the Twentieth Century Club.

Carroll Fitzhugh, who's president of the society, and Mrs. Fitzhugh are in Boston just now, by the way, but they'll be back in time for the night of the seventh of February.

Junior League Holds Glass Art Exhibit

The New York Junior Art League is having an art exhibit—an exhibit of glass in the clubhouse.

Like the art exhibits held by our own Junior League, the New York group's exhibit is open to the public. There's one now on exhibit at the Pittsburgh Junior League rooms in the Clark Building, an exhibit of flowers in art, representing the period from the tenth to the twentieth century.

The New York exhibit includes a collection of sapphire blue Stiegel, old Bristol, Early Sandwish or American Ohio glass, Sandwich patterened glass, two Crpriote bottles of 100 to 400 A. D. and a group of colorful figures in modern glass.

If your "Polly wants a cracker" (or anybody else's Polly does, for that matter) . . . then page these new cream crackers made by the Sunshine bakers, and therefore very good!

They've just come out on the market . . . and one store is offering them special nowadays at two large boxes for 23 cents (considerably less than any others of this type that we've ever found). Try them the next time you want a cracker rather nicer than average . . . with soups, salads, or as an "accessory" to your cocktails!

* * *

And now . . . to gt out of our element somewhat . . . we must tell you about the men's custom-made shoes which are featured at a reduction just now. Any of you whose husbands or brothers go in for custom shoes (or would like to) will rally to this piece of news.

These are the specially fine ones which generally demand seventeen of your dollars before they will consent to stand in your cupboard. But because of something or other they've folded their wings a trifle and swooped down to $12.50 . . . which, if you're custom shoe conscious, is worth noting!

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

THE FESTIVE SPRINGTIME

The hat below reflects the aerodynamic trend with feather propellors.

Off-the-face with a baby bow behind this bonnet.

The trig tailleur sketched right is brown satin, a new color for springtime. Faggoting stripes the waist and there is a window slit in the front and the back of the bodice.

The black frock above is crepe, with touches of white satin.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

If you are the sort of woman who feels like a billboard in anything but a dark color, Spring is the time to sleuth out interesting models that ballyhoo that festive season, despite their sombre shade.

There are all sorts of devices with a lightening touch all their own, among them faggoting, slits that show a bit of arm, back, or chest, sleeves cut off half-way between shoulder or elbow, inserts or appliques of transparent fabrics on an opaque one, and so on.

It is a slight hostage to Spring if one pins a nosegay of real flowers to the coat when dressed in a dark color while every other woman has gone giddy in her schemes. Bright accessories, such as a scarlet hand bag or a clip of gaudy jewels are also apt additions to the new January dress of utilitarian tint.

Parents Fooled on Parts In Children's Education 20th Century Told

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The best definition of a really educated human being is one who is never bored and "Education for the New Leisure" must eliminate boredom, John Langdon-Davies said in his lecture on that subject before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Parents have been fooled, he stated, into the assumption that their part in the education of their children is to have sufficient money to send them to good schools and colleges, when the real question is what kind of home do those children come from. The education of children, he further declared, is dependent on the use the parents make of their own leisure.

Mr. Langdon-Davies spoke first concerning unemployment, saying the problem is really one of maldistribution of employment and when it is solved everybody will be working, but working fewer hours a week. In that event an educational problem will arise, for today there is no system to educate men and women for a time when leisure becomes a really important part of man's existence. He stressed the point that the leisure of the future will be enjoyed by the whole community and not by one class, a condition made possible by machinery.

All present educational systems are based on the idea that a person must be fitted to earn his living and are built upon the assumption that work is the most important thing in life, he said. To anyone in an unsatisfied state of mind leisure is a mencae and means time to be killed rather than to be filled, he pointed out. Another difficulty, he said, is that when vast numbers of people are being educated they get false values, facts become more important than thoughts and knowledge more important than wisdom. The result is to fill life with things, to have as many gadgets as possible. On the other hand leisure calls for creativeness and not for possessiveness.

As educational factors, radio, movies and newspapers produce 10 times as much as schools or colleges, the speaker declared, insisting that radio and motion pictures which have been sacrificed for money-making must be brought back into education. The new lesiure he said, will give men and women time to become political beings (in the Greek sense of the word) with intellectual curiosity.

The Private Papers of a Reporter

Amazing how some experts can make such wrong guesses . . . Take the "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" ditty, a swingy thingy by Jerry Kern from the "Roberta" show . . . The jurors who covered the first-night could not get excited over the score. It was jotted down as being all right, pleasant, but nothing to write home about . . . Last week that ditty sold on an average of 10,000 copies a day! . . . And is one of several hits in the show . . . Can't imagine why Mrs. Vallee risked the threat of Rudy to reveal that recorded testimony. She probably thought it was a bluff . . . When the gazettes ran the tapped whoop-dee-doodle—columns must have seemed dull by comparison . . . There seems to be a controversy over which is proper—Noel Coward's "to hell with it!" or Dorothy Parker's "the hell with it!" . . . In a pinch, of course, either will serve—but Null Cahl's version is Emily Posty . . . I said I wouldn't print Scotch gags a long time ago and haven't since then . . . But Ballard MacDonald, himself a Scot, sends it . . . A Scotsman gives a pint of blood to a woman. The first time she gave him $50 . . . The second time $25—but the third time she had so much Scotch blood in her—she only thanked him.

I subscribe to the sentiments of Robert Benchley, Time, the mag, the N. Y. Times and the others who considered Publisher Funk's list of "outstanding" slanguage makers unimportant and carelessly prepared . . . My newspaper lingo isn't slang—but too many observers have imagined it so . . . Most of the current slang came from the underworld and the show-shops—and most of us credited with creating the colorful wordage—merely passed it along . . . "Blessed Event," frinstance—are two words in any dictionary—the phrase is all that is different . . . Several seasons ago Tad sent a letter thanking me for saluting him as a creator of much slang . . . He submitted his th[illegible]oned nothing would h[illegible]se "of your well-n[illegible]y" . . . The one la[illegible]ed several theatrical [illegible] years ago—was the late Jack Conway, a theatrical reporter . . . When he passed on—I devoted an entire column to his genius.

Mr. Woollcott is welcome to this addition for his long list of ka-yute names for stores, etc.—in New York we have The Affability Hat Cleaning Company . . . The pleasant astronomer in Longacre Square near Forty-sixth was not always dependent on the stray dimes of passersby. His name is Taylor and the old-fashioned word "gallant" best describes him . . . His is not a gag—he actually enjoys discussing the stars and planets with anybody—and a dime is so little for the treat . . . That sign on a Loop drug store in Chicago is amusingly sarcastic. "Whisky Now on Sale—Prices Reduced!"—a neat slam at the passing of prohibition . . . Reminds me of the incident recently in a big store . . . A woman who purchased a bottle of [illegible] perfume went to the [illegible] and had herself a time with it, and then became very ill . . . Her physician diagnosed it as "bad hooch"—and her groom, in a rage, immediately went to the [illegible] made a scene—and was [illegible]ted with a sugary check [illegible]o the entire matter . . . [illegible]only complaint—and the [illegible]s liquor apparently is okay—but a story like that might have cost much more . . . Funny crack by Deems Taylor, who saw the sophisticated new play, "Come of Age" by Clarence Dane . . . After the performance Taylor niftily: "Looks to me like Miss Dane wrote it with her tongue in Noel Coward's cheek" . . . While passing through Forty-seventh street last night the chap with me exclaimed: "Look! The girl on the swing isn't on that sign any more!" . . . I told him she had been gone for months . . . "Just goes to show you," he replied, "how a guy can forget an old girl."

I suppose every big town's Main Street has one of them. He is a shuffling figure in a rusty cutaway coat, and he totes his Bible under one wing and pauses at corners to preach to those who hurry by unheeding. . . . The event I mean has had a difficult time of it . . . It seems that everyone entered into a cruel conspiracy to make him even more unheard . . . When he halted at the curb and opened his Book to preach, the street vendors and newsboys, who would watch for him, set up the cry: "Bootlegger!" . . . The man in the shooting gallery down the street picked it up. It traveled to the barker in front of the burlesk dump—to the old razor sharpener, the crippled shoe lace peddler, the pawnshop keeper and the hamburger man. Back and forth up and down and across the street, the word would go, shouted at the tops of their lungs—drowning out the obscure preacher's words . . . Until he would give up, poor fellow, muttering as he paddled along to another corner . . . Then came Repeal . . . The newsboys started their familiar and scornful cry . . . The others began their derisive echoes . . . Then suddenly they all realized that the word no longer lived or carried the meaning it once had . . . The little old preacher now preaches—in peace.

Nobody really knows what troubles I have . . . Last night, looka what happened . . . There I was at my short-wave set—my sensitivity knob was in its place—on Number 5 . . . My controls on the side were on 3 . . . My short-wave band was accurately placed to 15-23 and my tuner and volume knobs were in order . . . Then a little static—but I did away with that, by golly—so expert am I now at contacting any part of the world . . . Then faintly at first came a foreign singer—Spanish! . . . Ah, Spain! . . . Hey, Junie, I got Spain—but with no trouble, at all . . . —Wheeee—Spain! . . . So what happened? So the Spanish canary's ditty ended, and came the announcer to confirm the fact that it was Madrid or some place like it . . . And sure enough . . . The announcer spoke in Espanola and then with understandable Americanese informed me they were broadcasting from around the corner.

I couldn't help hearing them—those two—at the adjacent table . . . The tables are bunched in that spot, anyhow . . . The one he adored is a star—and he is a writer . . . Something happened in the scheme of things—the paper got another boy, and he was in a mood over it . . . "I tell you I'm done," he was telling her plaintively, "my lance is broken; my armor is crushed and speckled with rust. My horse was shot from under me. I'm no longer in your league" . . . She held his hand and patted it a little . . . "I need rooters," he kept saying, "I hope you'll be in the grandstand" . . . "Don't be silly," she said tenderly, "I'll be in a box" . . . The violinist who goes from table to table in the continental manner and plays so beautifully had ended his intoxicating torch solo . . . The despondent one looked up, and spotted me . . . "If it happens to you one day, and it always does, you know," he said, "I only wish there is someone like this lady whose name doesn't matter standing in your corner" . . . I told him I was sure there would be—that every time I stumbled before—the lady who shares the target with me was always there . . . "I read Bill Corum's piece on you in the Journal before you folded and blew to Florida last time," he went on. "More than anything else, it captured you, I thought. You're unhappy because you're happy. It's part of your racket to be worried about the next paragraph. When you quit worrying about it, it won't be there" . . . I liked these two . . . But I ached a little for them. They are too human and understanding . . . And so they will suffer much.

Stops Career As Dancer To Wed

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—Hollywood matchmakers are still baffled over Ramon Novarro, but there'll be a wedding in the Mexican star's family next June.

Miss Samaniego

Ramon's sister, Carmen Samaniego, is engaged to Carlos Novarro (odd, the similarity in names), and the two have set the date for June 4. Novarro acted as technical adviser on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Viva Villa," and the two young people renewed an acquaintance that dates back to their childhood in Durango, Mexico.

Between now and June, the bridegroom-to-be plans to return to his native land and work on a motion picture project there.

Carmen will give up the idea of a dancing career, and settle down to domesticity. Her professional debut, which took place here last Wednesday night, also will be her last appearance before the public.

Before many months are gone, you can look to see Ann Dvorak and Leslie Fenton shake the dust of Hollywood off their feet again. This strange pair have become deeply interested in bacteriology. They have a laboratory set up in their ranch house, and next month they plan to enroll in advanced classes at the University of Southern California. Then to complete their academic background, Ann will apply for a leave of absence from Warners, and the pair will sail for Europe to continue their studies at the University of Vienna.

Miss Dvorak

If any other couple in Hollywood announced such a plan, eyebrows would raise in doubt. But Ann and Leslie walked out on film careers once before. They believe that common interests will help preserve their marriage. As for motion picture careers, they can wait.

* * *

It takes the European stars to teach Hollywood a lesson in luxury. Carl Brisson, ex-middleweight champion of Europe, and now one of the greatest matinee idols in England, has arrived in Hollywood with 18 trunks—he's much upset because three more were lost—and a car that rivals Lilian Harvey's palace on wheels.

While a Paramount studio delegation was greeting its tall, new star, Brisson's wife slipped off the train unnoticed, which was all part of a plan. The Danish actor's marriage has been kept in the background, but it is a pretty love story. He and his wife have known each other since babyhood. They were married so young—at 16—that they had to go to the King of Denmark for a special marriage license.

That was 16 years ago and though, for professional reasons, they are seldom seen in public together, Jean Hersholt and others of their friends say the union is a very happy one.

* * *

Even Beau Brummel Menjou must bow to Mala, MGM's Eskimo star, who will attend the premiere of his picture in the only $2,500 dress suit in Hollywood.

Mala

Mala's outfit is called a bird Parka and it is made of the finest Alaskan fur embroidered with designs of feathers.

* * *

They'll have you believe that the departure of Charles Lemaire for New York will leave Lila Lee very sad. The Broadway designer has given Lila a great rush since he has been at Fox, and frankly admits he hates to leave her . . . The wedding of Lola Lane and Director Al Hall will not take place this month after all, but it's still on the calendar . . . Miriam Jordan is trying not to limp these days. She has water on the knee . . . Connie Bennett's marquis will be leaving for points Oriental on the 25th . . . There's another argument between Paramount and Bing Crosby about stardom. Bing positively refuses it for "We're Not Dressing" . . . The first person Maurice Chevalier went to see on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot was Jeanette MacDonald, so that disposes of their supposed quarrel . . . The film colony is flocking to René Claire's "July 14," now showing in the Filmarte Theater. Marlene Dietrich was in the audience two nights handrunning . . . Charlotte Henry doesn't have dates, and she has never been in a Hollywood night club.

Did you know: That Jean Parker is writing a novel on modern youth?

Concerto in D, Op. 21	Chausson

The Pittsburgh String Orchestra, a new ensemble group, under the direction of Ferdinand Filli, made its bow to our audiences last night in Carnegie Music Hall.

Mr. Lissfelt

This organization is composed entirely of real amateurs who seek some cultural expression through their music. To me it seems an ideal move toward the better understanding and truest love for our art and again is giving our local players occasion to show their worth. Who knows what talent can be unearthed from such an experiment?

The ensemble played extremely well considering its age, and though the music has little variation, when joined with piano and solo instrument it does give us something to think about musically.

Toscha Seidel, renowned solo violinist, played a number of solo pieces and the violin lead in the Chausson Concerto. I believe the accompaniment is written for fewer instruments, consequently the solo player was frequently pushed into the background. Herbert Jaffe at the piano was considerably the outstanding voice in the concerto, and to his sturdy rhythms the piece owed some of its success.

Seidel is a pleasing player. His tone is sure and smooth as one expects from the Auer school, but one misses the grand sweep of the big artist. Surely he had not his best opportunity in the smaller compositions; the Beethoven seemed to please best.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Portrait of a Character.

DAVID LAMAR, known the nation over as "The Wolf of Wall Street," died in a $2 hotel room a short time ago.

He is the same mystery in death as he was in life.

But there is one secret he wanted to keep, and the wish was denied him.

Everybody knows that he died dead broke . . .

Lamar enjoyed his hey-day from 15 to 20 years ago.

He was a spender; one of the biggest spenders that old Broadway ever knew.

But he spent in an unusual fashion.

Harry K. Thaw threw swell banquets at Delmonico's and Martin's; banquets that often ran as hight as $25,000 a slam.

Diamond Jim Brady expressed his money-tossing in tiaras and the like.

But the "Wolf of Wall Street" was a night club spender.

He believed that, at a table, one good cutie deserved another.

So, whenever he was seated, you'd always see six or eight or 10 or 12 girlies around him.

It really didn't matter to him . . .

Lamar never drank anything but wine.

Twenty or 25 bottles a night for him and his party was nothing unusual in the way of expenditure.

The waiters would often play tricks on him.

They would line up wine buckets behind him, and then sneak the bottles for other guests.

Lamar often complained about his missing wines, but he never really found out.

And after all, it didn't make much difference.

Wasn't David Lamar the greatest spender of them all? . .

The "Wolf of Wall Street" never gave his right name, nor is there anyone who knows what it was.

He once confided to a friend that he was of Turkish extraction.

But beyond that, he refused to go.

He operated in many cases on the shady side of the law.

He manipulated plenty of deals, but he was always alone in his transactions.

The law knew as little about him as his closest friends.

And that was—nothing . . .

David Lamar never had a bank account.

He often carried tremendous amounts of cash with him.

Once, in the old Cafe de Paris, he took $100,000 in cash from his pocket and tossed the astounded waiter a $5,000 bill in payment of his night's check.

It took the management almost three hours of scurrying around Broadway to dig up the proper change.

Meanwhile, Lamar was in a violent temper.

He wanted to know what type of place he was in—and why his change was so long in arriving.

The management apologized all over the place.

The change finally arrived.

Whereupon Lamar gave the orchestra $500—and told the head waiter to keep the rest! . . .

Although he entertained squads of women, Lamar always went home alone.

But he generally went home to another party.

The hotels in which he resided were continually complaining about those parties.

They had good reason for these complaints.

Once, while residing in a famous spot in the fifties, his wife came to town from Pittsfield, Mass., in search of him.

At the moment, Lamar was staging one of his mad parties in his hotel suite.

Mrs. Lamar was announced as being downstairs.

"The "Wolf of Wall Street" told her he was in conference and asked her to wait a few moments.

He phoned the clerk, engaged another suite down the hall, had all the bottles and bodies removed, and then told his wife to come up.

And in five minutes he was conversing with his wife as calmly as though nothing had ever been wrong . . .

David Lamar was ever a cold, steely, egotistical man.

He wasn't doing any too well in the market in the immediate years that preceded the crash—and the crash landed the knockout punch.

Overnight, he became an old man.

To be cold, steely, egotistical when you have money, is a very easy game.

You have many "friends" just the same.

But to be cold, steely, egotistical when you have no money, is to invite suicide through melancholia.

David Lamar didn't commit suicide.

But if death hadn't summoned him when it did, the chances are that that is the route he would have taken.

He was desperately broke.

The man who had once carried as high as $400,000 in his pockets, was now borrowing five bucks here and ten dollars there.

He moved from one hotel to another, and the bills were seldom paid.

When he had the money, he sometimes dined in Moore's restaurant—but always alone.

The six, eight, ten cuties who were always by his side—had vanished with his money.

And that's the way he died.

Alone . . .

His burial was perhaps fitting.

Three ex-waiters, now fairly prosperous, chipped in to save him from a pauper's grave.

He had helped them in life; they helped him in death.

David Lamar was a strange man in a strange life on the strangest of all streets . . .

'Frivolities' In Variety

"Frivolities," burlesque in the Variety, features five headliners in burlesque this season. Heading the cast is "Zuleki," an Oriental dancer who returns to Pittsburgh after an absence of five years, who appears in "Dance of the Gods" and in a specialty number called "Different." Nazarro Hallo, red-head dancer, and Jackie James, high-kicking acrobatic and Oriental dancer, are two other steppers. Georgia Clark, a blonde, and Clyde Bates, tramp comedian, are the other big "names" in the show. Bates is featured in a comedy sketch, "All's Quiet," a travesty on a war scene. Jack Hunt, Palmer Cote and Jack Lamont also are in the skit. Among the musical numbers of the show are "Honeysuckle Time," featuring Helen Rodgers, prima donna, and Paul Cannon, and "Swinging in a Hammock." "The New Craze" features Eddie Kaplin, chief comic, and "The New Bartender" features Hunt, Bates, Cote and Miss James.

Doctors advise VITAMIN A for CHILDREN'S coughs and colds

Now you get it in Smith Bros. Cough Syrup

Mother! Surely you know how important vitamins are for your child!

But do you know that there is one vitamin which can save your child from much of the misery of coughs and colds! One vitamin that can build up your child's resistance against re-infection! That is Primary Vitamin A. Doctors call it the "Anti-Infective" vitamin.

This Primary Vitamin A has now been added to Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. It is the same precious substance that Nature supplies in whole milk, butter, carrots . . . but in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup you get concentrated quantities of it.

Now when your child takes Smith Brothers', it first gets quick cough relief. Smith Brothers Cough Syrup soothes the throat . . . loosens phlegm . . . clears the air passages.

Then its Primary Vitamin A does two wonderful things.

It aids Nature in DRIVING the cough and cold out of the system faster. And it raises the child's resistance against re-infection.

Even delicate children—with whom every cold was a long siege—now can throw off the infection faster. And they are also strengthened against new coughs and colds.

Smith Brothers' is the ONLY cough syrup giving the priceless benefits of Primary Vitamin A. Children like its taste. Get a bottle today. Only 35¢. . . . (Smith Brothers Cough Drops also contain Primary Vitamin A.)

Note to Doctors: 10,000 A.D.M.A. units of Vitamin A (Biologically tested Carotene) have been added to every bottle of Smith Bros. Cough Syrup. For literature please write Smith Bros., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The second and final week of Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina" began yesterday in the Nixon where this interesting, well-produced and finely acted photoplay will continue to be presented twice daily throughout the week. Miss Garbo plays a woman who was reared as a boy would be and who, according to history was crowned as a king instead of a queen. Her father wanted her to have the masculine slant on statecraft, and she was well trained for it. But beneath the royal cloak there was a woman—and a woman fell in love with a man. The picture concentrates upon only one year of her life, one in which she is in much turmoil with the royal consent. John Gilbert and Louis Stone are prominent in the cast.

* * *

"The School for Husbands," Theater Guild play that will be in the Nixon soon, broke all American records for a Moliere play in its recent run in the Empire Theater in New York. The current version is a rhymed adaptation by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner, with music by Edmond K. Rickett. The orginal cast will be seen in it here next week, when it will be presented as the fifth play of the American Theater Society subscription series, the company being headed by Osgood Perkins and June Walker. The box office sale of seats will open Thursday.

* * *

The fourth play in the winter season of the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will be "Three to Make Ready," comedy by Helen H. Mason of Sewickley. It will be presented in the Hotel Schenley Theater Saturday afternoon and evening, February 3, and Monday evening, February 5.

* * *

Another important little Theater production will be Anskey's "The Dybbuk," dramatization based on a Jewish legend concerning the soul of a deceased person passing into the body of one living. Ida London, Arthur Dimling, Hyman Bernett, David Cornman, Walter Framer, Sanford Eckard, Irving Chana and Ruth Adams will be prominent in a cast of more than 40 players. It will be given the week of February 4 in the Y playhouse. An elaborate production is being prepared.

* * *

"Mary of Scotland" appears to have started something. Universal is going to produce a picture, "Elizabeth and Mary," with Mrs. Leslie Carter, veteran stage artist, as Elizabeth, under the direction of Lowell Sherman. Margaret Sullavan, who was a sensation in "Only Yesterday," will have the role of Mary.

Wachter Quartet In Concert Tonight

The Wachter Quartet, composed of Lino Bartoli, first violin; Clement Iandiorio, second violin; John Brletic, viola, and Ellen Scanlon, cello, will give its third concert this evening in Carnegie Lecture Hall.

REFUND SOUGHT BY HOSTETTERS

Three children of the late D. Herbert Hostetter, of Pittsburgh, yesterday filed actions in Federal Court seeking to recover from the government $12,903 they assert they paid erroneously as income tax for 1926. Last week the widow, Mrs. Miriam Hostetter, filed a suit seeking to recover $22,912.54 paid for that year.

The Hostetters assert they did not deduct from their income tax inheritances taxes paid the state of California, on life interest on real estate in California, left under the will of Hostetter. Mrs. Helene Hostetter Griffith is suing for $11,439.95; Mrs. Miriam Hostetter Young for $1,023.91 and D. Herbert Hostetter, Jr., for $439.80.

Jangled nerves bring words that wound

Impatient, nerves on edge—every suggestion sounds like a criticism ... Every discussion turns into an angry argument. You hurt those nearest to you and make them wish to avoid you. If this ever happens with you . . . . take care!

Watch your nerves... Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation.

And smoke Camels—for Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

TEST No. 14

Arrange thirty safety matches on a table (12 inches from the edge)... tips pointing away from you... Hold the empty box with the lid pushed back one inch in your left hand... Now pick up the matches one by one with the right hand ... place them in the box as rapidly as you can ... all heads facing the same direction. The average time for this test is 45 seconds. What is your score?

"Mike" Thompson (Camel smoker), famous football referee, can arrange all the matches in it 2-3 seconds.

EX-BROKER HELD IN WIFE DEATH

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—After telling a story of wandering with his mind a blank for two weeks while his wife lay dead in their Brooklyn home, Cloyd V. Koontz, former broker, was held today on a charge of homicide.

His arrest followed questioning concerning the finding of the body of Mrs. Rose Koontz, 43, on the kitchen floor of their apartment. Police said they were not satisfied with statements he had made.

According to police, Koontz said he found his wife unconscious, with gas flowing from the open jets on the kitchen range. Horrified, he shut the gas off and then his mind became blank.

He vaguely recalled visiting a daughter, Mrs. Ethylene Scolaro, in Cleveland, staying at the Hollander Hotel there January 18, 19 and 20. Equally vague, he said was his recollection of visiting his father, William, in Mansfield, O.

Gasoline Poured On Stove Kills 3

CANTON, Ga., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—An explosion of gasoline poured into a stove in a farm house kitchen to hurry the fire had taken four lives and another hung in the balance today.

The dead: Mrs. Rufus Cochran and her three children, Milton, 5; Julia, 9, and Elizebeth, 3. Two other children escaped, but Rufus Cochran, the father, lay burned in a hospital and physicians gave him no chance to recover.

Pennsylvania Milk Banned From N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—By executive order Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia has removed the entire state of Pennsylvania from the New York milk shed.

The Mayor said that Pennsylvania had no milk control code, which enabled producers there to undersell dairy farmers operating under the New York state code.

'KIDNAPED' BOY FOUND SLAIN

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The body of Paul Newport, Jr., 18, son of Paul Newport, creamery operator here, was found near the Manito golf links Monday while police and Sheriff's officers were making a search on the theory Newport might have been kidnaped.

A shotgun charge had entered the body just below the heart, but the sweater was not pierced, causing deputy sheriffs to believe the body to have been placed there by the killer.

A shotgun was found behind a tree about 10 feet from the body. The car Newport had used was about 75 feet away.

Deputy Sheriff James E. Cannon said he believed it impossible, under the circumstances, for Newport to have shot himself, and Sheriff George Miles said he believed murder was indicated.

Junior Patrol

Be temperate, fellows!

That seems like a big word, maybe, but it is easily explained. A temperate fellow doesn't do too much of anything. You have heard the old expression—"His eyes are bigger than his stomach"—haven't you? That's what people say when someone takes more cake or ice cream than he can eat at one time.

Being temperate is being moderate and sensible in everything you do, fellows. It means you don't eat too much, drink too much, play too much, or work too much. We know some fellows who play hard and fast. They do it with all their might! All the time! Of course, some fellows are stronger than others. A pretty safe rule is for a fellow to stop and rest when he feels tired—when you have to make an effort to PLAY.

Junior and his gang are still flying over Little America, but you'll notice they are careful—they don't take chances.

Frank Smrekar, of 127 Main street, Aliquippa, Pa., writes to say that he is going to try to start a patrol. Let's go, Frank!

We have heard from Capt. Neil, of Belle Vernon, again today, too. He sends in six more pledges and tells us that his patrol is getting along just fine.

And here is another letter from Capt. Virginia Klutch, of 2304 Market street, Warren, O. She writes:

"For New Years we fixed a basket for an old man. His wife is in a hospital and he lives in an old hut. He had sacks for curtains and all his windows were broken. The second time we took him a basket he said he needed shoes, so I think we can get a pair for him and we took a few pair of curtains. I said we would come down and put them up. I have five more members who would like to join."

That certainly is what we mean by helping others, Virginia. Of course, you should always talk over things with your mother and father. We will send your pins and cards right away.

GLOBE-TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Numismatic Charles Marketch has bad news for Jack Beherensberger. That dollar bill with the blue back, so highly prized by its possessor, is counterfeit.

Etta A. Weible, whose half cent with 12 stars dated 1827, excited her has the same luck. That coin must be counterfeit since they didn't mint half cents in 1827. Maybe, Etta made a mistake on the date. It doesn't seem possible that a counterfeiter would bother about half cents.

Stanley Fabiseske, Indianola, almost every day the paper carries an advertisement of one of those companies. The telephone book lists them too. The state has no agency.

* * *

Mrs. Catherine Flanigan — I showed him your letter.

Trudy M.—Sure you'll make a good cook. They are giving lessons at the Soho Community House, 2358 Fifth avenue. Free. Sewing, too.

* * *

While Lieut. J. Guy Griffith was speaking Wednesday he placed his watch in front of him on the table. I noticed a price tag attached to it.

"Strange," I thought that the tag should still be there. Being curious I examined closely and saw the price indicated 64c. "Ha!" a mystery." . . . Overcome with curiosity I asked him why the price tag.

He turned it over disclosing the words "Paint" and "Baker" and explained:

"You see my wife wants to make sure that I don't forget anything so she attached the tag. I must get paint and call Mr. Baker, today."

So you see, fellows, the new appointee doesn't take a chance on forgetting anything.

Resinol

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

NOW! PILES MEET THEIR WATERLOO!

Sure relief—quick relief—real relief for all forms of Piles—Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Protruding! Pazo Ointment not only alleviates the pain, but tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole. Here's why:

Pazo is soothing. It stops the inflammation. Pazo is healing. It repairs the torn tissue. Pazo is absorbing. It dries up excess mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles.

The method of application makes Pazo double effective. Perforated Pile Pipe attached to tube reaches up into the rectum and thoroughly medicates all affected parts. Now, comfort when you walk or sit or go to the stool. Get Pazo today and realize the relief it stores coupon.

Orchestras Told Where To Get Off

By AIRCASTER

A fellow critic complains that the commercial patrons of radio, who have done much to maintain high standards in broadcasting are "unethically" keeping some performers off the air.

Recently, Rubinoff, who fiddles commercially Sunday nights, formed a dance band and went into a hotel, and promptly was notified his sponsor would not permit him to air sustaining programs from that point.

Now, Paul Whiteman is faced with the possibility of a similar prohibition. He has revived his one-hour Sunday concerts, featuring modern American music. But only those who visit the hotel where he is playing can hear them.

Whiteman is negotiating to have the concerts aired by way of NBC Sunday nights.

But Whiteman, though an NBC artist, happens to be under contract for his Thursday commercial shows, with the same agency which controls Rubinoff.

In addition, the spot at WJZ would be in opposition to the Rubinoff broadcast.

There's nothing unethical about a sponsor, paying huge sums to orchestra leaders, objecting to the same orchestras going on the air several times a week for some hotel, for nothing.

Any orchestra loses its advertising value when it becomes commonplace.

* * *

NEW BAND

Roger Wolfe Kahn, the musicianly son of Otto Kahn, has another orchestra, after being out of the musical picture for months, and expects to pioneer in radio, with a set of new dance styles including broken rhythm.

He has given up all social activity to rehearse and audition the band, and intends now to devote his life strictly to music and radio.

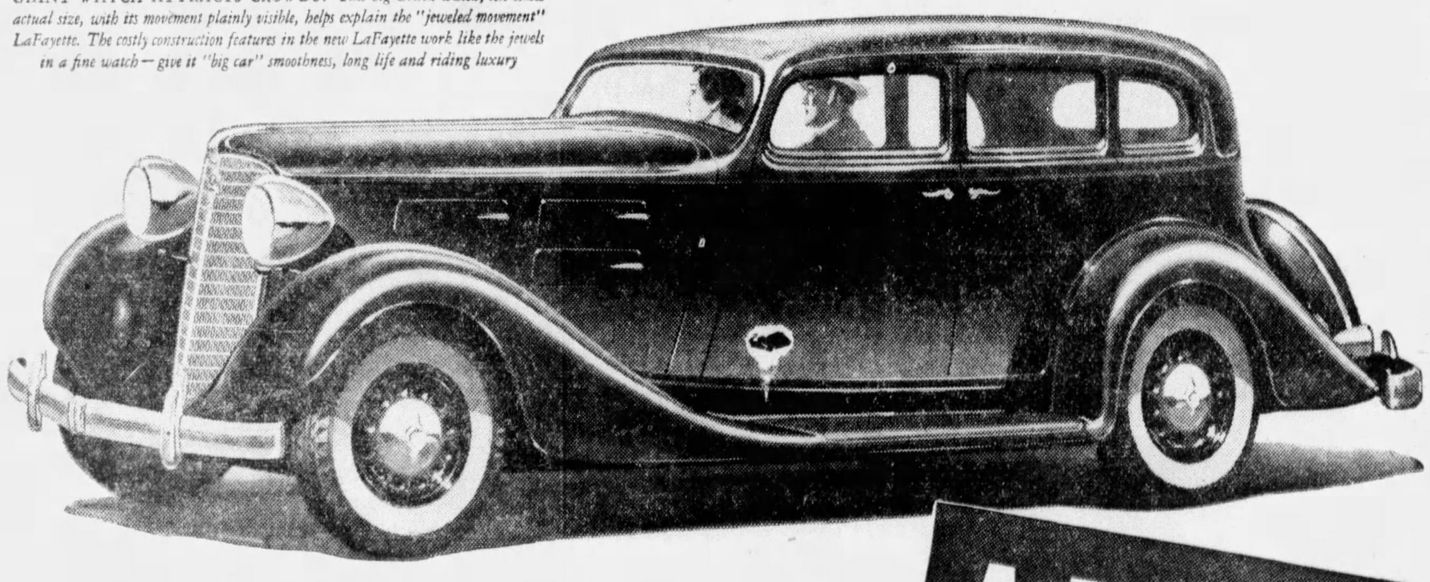
Low price of New "JEWELED MOVEMENT" Car a Big Surprise

GIANT WATCH ATTRACTS CROWDS! This big Gruen watch, ten times actual size, with its movement plainly visible, helps explain the "jeweled movement" LaFayette. The costly construction features in the new LaFayette work like the jewels in a fine watch—give it "big car" smoothness, long life and riding luxury

New LaFAYETTE, created by NASH, a BIGGER low-priced car with costly construction features never before used in this field



IT WAS ONE OF THE REALLY BIG SURPRISES of the New York show—the low price of this remarkable new car created by Nash.

Its sheer bigness is what first impressed the crowds. The new "jeweled movement" LaFayette is without question a bigger low-priced car—longer, heavier, roomier.

But there's something else—far more important. This new car brings you costly, proven construction features* never before put into an automobile of this price.

In the new LaFayette, just as in more expensive cars, these recognized engineering features work like jewels in a fine watch movement. They underlie that long-life silence and smoothness of power, that complete riding luxury, which you could formerly get only in "big cars" selling at much higher prices.

Every vital part of the new "jeweled movement" LaFayette has been tested and proved by Nash over a period of years. It is only because Nash has concentrated for years on high quality cars and has learned to build them more economically that the new LaFayette can be offered at its surprisingly low price.

See the new LaFayette at the Show. Notice its bigness, the rakish beauty of its Slipstream lines. Above all, get the full facts about its "jeweled movement". The Nash Motors Company, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

*COSTLY LAFAYETTE FEATURES NEW IN THE LOW-PRICED FIELD: Seven bearing, extra-size crankshaft, fully counterbalanced; complete force-feed lubrication of engine with rifle-bored connecting rods; metered pressure cooling of engine; Invar struts in aluminum pistons; Nash precision machining throughout; automatic and thermostatic control shock absorbers; steering road shock eliminator; metal encased springs with lubricating inserts; worm and roller type steering gear; Seaman sound-proofed body—composite wood and steel construction.

A BIGGER LOW-PRICED CAR $635 TO $695

NASH BUILT . . . THE NEW

LAFAYETTE

Individually sprung front wheels are optional on all LaFayette models at a slight extra cost

The LaFayette has a 113 inch wheelbase; six cylinder, 75 horse power motor. Five models: Five-passenger, Four-door Sedan, $695; Five-passenger Touring Sedan with trunk, $685; Two-passenger Coupe, $635; Four-passenger Coupe (rumble seat), $675; Five-passenger, Two-door Sedan, $645. All prices are f. o. b. factory.

FRENCH DEPUTY LINKS PREMIER TO SCANDAL

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A warning that Premier Camille Chautemps and three members of his endangered cabinet would be named in documents on the Stavisky scandal was served them today by Deputy Phillipe Henriot.

Henriot advised the Premier, George Bonnet, Minister of Finance; Eugene Raynaldy, Minister of Justice, and M. Laurent-eynac, Minister of Commerce, to be ready to defend themselves before the Chamber of Deputies.

The nature of the documents in the Stavisky case, which shook France with the collapse of the Bayonne municipal pawnshop, was not disclosed.

Charges have been hurled by angry deputies that Serge Stavisky, alleged late leader of pawnshop operations in which the public was fleeced of $40,000,000, received protection in high places.

CHAMBER IN UPROAR

The chamber was thrown into confusion by announcement of the deputy's action.

Shouting wildly and banging their desks, government supporters drowned out Henriot's voice.

For more than half an hour deputies shouted epithets, shook their fists at each other and yelled as Henriot first subjected Chautemps to questioning on his career in Parliament, in law and who his friends were.

Calmly facink the waves of shouts that were raised, Henriot managed in a penetrating voice to get through a few sentences over the roars of anger.

Then he talked to Raynaldy, who hopped up and down, waving his arms, and shouting back at the inquisitive deputy.

SESSION SUSPENDED

Government opponents applauded Henriot and tried to outshout the Chautemps' backers.

The demonstration was so wild at Vice President Delbos suspended the session.

Communists sang the Internationale, while the public which had joined in the shouting from the galleries, was ejected.

Henriot, in the Chamber's worst turmoil in years, attacked Chautemps for "errors" in defending Raynaldy, whom Henriot charged was involved in the Stavisky case now before the courtts, of which Raynaldy is chief, as Minister of Justice.

Deputy Bouesse, a government supporter, shouted:

"How much are you getting to make such a speech?"

New Pastor Named By Sharon Baptists

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 23.—The Rev. Robert Stark, of Richburg, N. Y., has been named pastor of the First Baptist Church, succeeding the Rev. Ralph Madden, who resigned last spring. The Rev. Mr. Stark, a graduate of Alfred University, has been located near Olean, N. Y., for the past several years.

Daytime and Dinner Dress in One Pattern

Pattern 1754

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

This smart afternoon frock shows a flair for flares by featuring two fetching ones of contrast on either side of the neckline, and repeating the flared theme in the tucked sleeves. It's perfect this way for your first spring frock. Now, notice the small sketch showing the vestee, sleeves and contrast omitted—a formal version of the same pattern. The moulded waistline with sash tying pertly in the back creates a slender silhouette. Make this in print for the daytime dress and make it again in monotone for the dinner frock.

Pattern 1754 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 39-inch fabric and ½-yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING 1934 EDITION OF THE PATTERN MAGAZINE IS READY! All the best spring styles for adults and children in an interesting, helpful book. Send for your copy and be chic this spring. PRICE OF MAGAZINE, 15 CENTS. MAGAZINE AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.

Fate of Chinese Rebels in Doubt

HONGKONG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The fate of the Nineteenth Route army was in doubt today as the Nationalist government claimed the capture of the towns of Tungan, Haiteng and Shihma, 15 miles to the south of Changchow, in the rebel Fukien province.

The Nineteenth army was reported retreating to Siokhe and Nancheng, some 50 miles from the Kwangtung province border.

Planners Ask Study Of Tunnel Plan

The City Planning Commission is interested in the plan for a new bridge and tunnel to the South Hills, proposed as an alternative to the Wabash Bridge and tunnel purchase. It has asked for a conference with Council and Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston to review the project.

$80,000 Bond Filed In Lamp Estate

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell has granted letters of administration on the estate of Dora Lamp, of McKeesport, who died January 6. The administrators, Anna B. Nill and Henry S. Lamp, filed a bond of $80,000, indicating the estate to be valued at $40,000.

AUSTRIA SAFETY HELD PEACE KEY

GENEVA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A movement began today in international circles to give Austria, in the interest of European peace, the same neutrality as that accorded Switzerland.

European powers would be asked to adopt a "hands off" policy as regards Austria whose independence was guaranteed by the treaty of Versailles ending the World War.

German attempts to "Nazify" Austria, as cited by the Austrian government, are a source of worry to European foreign offices which see the Austrian question as a danger to European peace.

Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria, was reported as ready to appeal to the League of Nations unless he receives satisfactory assurance that Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, will cease what he termed Nazi interference with Austrian internal affairs.

HEALTH HEADS STUDY PLAGUE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Health authorities from throughout Pennsylvania today open a two-day series of meetings on the tuberculosis problem.

Dr. Allan Weir Freeman, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, is the principal speaker at a state tuberculosis conference held in connection with the annual meet- of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society.

The place of school health programs in communities, the use of surgery in treating pulmonary tuberculosis and the sale of Christmas seals are among important topics on the program.

Take Bank Accounts In Suspected Fraud

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—All bank accounts of David Lowensohn, Cleveland contractor, were ordered subpenaed yesterday by the Cuyahoga County grand jury, in connection with an investigation of alleged irregularities in the State Industrial Commission. The alleged irregularities are blamed for a loss of $2,000,000 to the workmen's compensation fund in the county and $6,000,000 in the state.

'Rockefeller' P. O. Opens in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(Universal)—John D. Rockefeller III posted the first letter yesterday as the new Rockefeller Center post-office station in the RCA Building was opened.

The office was opened with a short ceremony, in which Rockefeller presented the station keys to Postmaster Kiely, who handed them to John Winfield, superintendent of the station.

New Food Control Bill to Be Pushed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, today called a meeting of the Senate Commerce Subcommittee for late in the afternoon, with a view to having his redrafted bill to regulate the sale of foods, drugs and cosmetics substituted for the original measure which drew widespread opposition.

$16,000 Bonds Set In Yorkville Killing

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Bonds of $16,000 each were fixed by Judge J. O. Oglevee in Common Pleas Court yesterday for Thomas Viola, 32, of Follansbee, W. Va., and Frank Romano, 30, of Pittsburgh, charged with first-degree murder in the death of former Mayor Benjamin Oliver, of Yorkville, last summer.

The men pleaded not guilty at their arraignment. Judge Oglevee said he would allow their release on bond on the ground that a State Supreme Court ruling permitted such action in first-degree murder cases. They were unable to supply the bonds and remained in jail.

RECIPES INTEREST CHILDREN

Girl of Nine Tells How to Make 'Yummy Eggs'

Much to Prudence Penny's delight the younger, or rather very young, generation is actively entering into her recipe contests. Imagine her surprise upon opening one of her many letters to find in a childish hand a recipe for yummy eggs sent in by little 9½-year-old Blanche Biro.

With the recipe this enterprising young cook wrote:

"Here is my recipe for yummy eggs. I made this all by myself. I am 9½ years old. This is very good."

That very evening Prudence Penny served yummy eggs to a group of her friends and so enthused were they over Blanche's concoction that she is passing it on to you in today's list of prize winners.

Really, it's a fine thing, she believes, to have children so interested in cooking. Now Miss Penny is hoping more housewives will follow this youngster's example by sending in their recipes which are "very good" to her at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Every day she gives one $5 prize and 10 $1 prices to 11 women's best recipes. Receiving so recipes, she is, of course, unable to return any of them to the senders.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. DELL CAIN,
1004 North avenue, Wilkinsburg.
MOCK GOOSE

One pound liver.
One slice fat bacon.
Two large onions.
Three cups mashed potatoes or cooked beans.
Salt and pepper to taste.
One-half teaspoon powdered sage.
Two cups gravy or stock.
Apple sauce.

Take the slice of bacon and the liver and fry them a light brown. Fry onions. Line a baking dish with most of the beans or potatoes, add a layer of liver and bacon, then a layer of onions. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sage. Strain the gravy over the contents of the dish, then cover with a layer of beans or potatoes and bake for one hour. Serve with apple sauce.

Ten $1 Prizez Winners

MRS. ORA V. RAMSEY,
419 Glenmore boulevard, New Castle.
MARY'S DELIGHT

One envelope gelatine.
Three cups milk.
Three-fourth cups brown sugar.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup chopped dates.

Soak gelatine in one-half cup of cold milk five minutes. Scald the remaining two and one-half cups milk. Cook together in a shallow pan the brown sugar and butter until a dark brown, being careful not to burn. Add this to the scalded milk and stir over the fire until dissolved, and then pour over the gelatine. Add the chopped dates and pour into moulds. Serve with plain or whipped cream. If you have the Mars Ann shell nuts, fill center with drained crushed pineapple, sweetened with pulverized sugar and top with whipped cream. Very good.

BLANCHE BIRO,
1104 Thirteenth street, McKees Rocks.
YUMMY EGGS

Four eggs.
One cup milk.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon butter.

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Add milk and salt and beat. Add butter and put in double boiler. Cook over boiling water in double boiler for 20 minutes.

MRS. GEORGE J. GREY,
7716 Alsace street, Brushton.
BAKED OYSTERS AND MACARONI

Two cups cooked macaroni.
One pint oysters.
Bread crumbs.
Four tablespoons butter.
One-half cup grated cheese.
Salt, pepper and paprika.
One-half cup light cream.

Use a greased baking dish about seven inches in diameter and three inches deep. Cover the bottom of the dish with crumbs. Add a layer of the macaroni and sprinkle with cheese. Add a layer of oysters and sprinkle with the crumbs, pepper, salt and paprika and dot liberally with the butter. Make alternate layers of the macaroni and oysters until the dish is filled, leaving a layer of oysters and crumbs on top. Add the heated cream from the side of the dish. Bake in hot over (400 degrees F.) until the crumbs are brown (about 20 minutes). Serves six.

MRS. E. C. WEBER,
1227 Woodland avenue.
HAM AND POTATO CAKES
(Made from left-over ham.)

One cup ground ham.
One cup mashed potatoes.
One egg.
Dash of pepper.
One small onion, ground.
Two tablespoons flour.

Make into cakes and fry in fat, serve with white sauce.

White Sauce

One cup sweet milk.
One tablespoon flour.
One tablespoon butter.
Parsley to taste.

MRS. H. M. GROSS,
2928 Glenmore avenue, Dormont.
THOUSAND ISLAND PICKLE

One quart of unpeeled sliced cucumbers.
Two onions.
Three red pepers.

Put in salt water over night. Drain well.

Dressing

One pint vinegar.
One cup sugar.
One teaspoon celery seed.
One teaspoon mustard seed.
One-half teaspoon tumerick.

Boil ingredients in vinegar for five minutes. Pour over cucumbers and let come to a boil. Then put in jar and seal.

MISS MARY DILETTUSO,
5127 Coral Street.
LADY CABBAGE.

Cut a cabbage in quarters and remove the hard center from each piece; let boil 15 minutes; drain, add fresh boiling water and let cook until tender, then set aside to become cold. Chop the cabbage fine. To three cups of cabbage add three beatened eggs, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful pepper, one tablespoonful of melted butter and three-fourths cups of milk. Mix all together and turn into a buttered baking dish. Let cook in oven surrounded by water (as a custard) until firm in the center.

MRS. FRANK NEELD,
36 South Twentieth street.
APPLES STUFFED WITH MINCEMEAT AND BAKED.

Take as many big cooking apples as will suit your family, cut the top off of each apples, straight across, now cut out all of the core, but be careful not to break through to the bottom. Fill each apple with mincemeat. Put apples in a flat pan, standing each apple up side by side. Then take one cup of sugar, and one cup of water. Boil until syrupy. Put in the pan with the apples, bake in a hot oven until apples are baked soft. You can tell by piercing with a fork. They should be eaten with the syrup when done. The mince meat penetrates the apple while baking.

MARY A. BUMRY,
215 East Tenth Avenue, Homestead.
MOLASSES NUT FUDGE

Two cups brown sugar.
One-half cup milk.
One-half cup molasses.
One tablespoon of butter.
One-fourth teaspoon of salt.

Mix all ingredients together in saucepan cook to soft ball stage, or 240 degrees F. Add three-fourth teaspoon vanilla, beat until creamy. Add one scant cup of black walnut meats, pour in oiled pan, when set Mark in squares.

MRS. W. H. PORTER,
6825 McPherson Boulevard.
GOLDEN GLOW POTATOES

Boil until tender, separately, equal quantities of white potatoes and carrots. Then combine and mash, dress with butter and cream, same as whipped potatoes.

GIN LEADS PURCHASES IN STATE LIQUOR STORES

Appointment Surprises Smith Too, Says McNair

By MARK SHIELDS

Mayor William N. McNair's action yesterday afternoon in naming Magistrate Ralph E. Smith as Public Safety Director was a surprice not only to politicians and police, but to the appointee himself, according to the Mayor. He said after Mr. Smith had been confirmed that the subject had never been discussed with him, as it had been with John M. Henry, whom the Mayor forgot after Council refused to confirm the Mayor's original nominee, James F. Malone.

Mr. Shields

The confusion which has surrounded the safety directorship from the time of the McNair election continued right up to Council's approval of Smith. The rejection of Mr. Malone caused no surprise in view of past expressions of five members of Council, except to Mr. McNair, according to his subsequent observations.

* * *

McNair Solitary Among Surprised

He said he was surprised that Councilman Walter Demmler, an old friend, voted against Malone, which left Mr. McNair solitary among the surprised.

But the failure to send in the name of Mr. Henry was something not looked for. It had been the impression that he would be offered as an alternative immediately.

Mr. McNair said yesterday afternoon that he told Mr. Henry last Wednesday that he was out of the picture. Mr. Henry has no recollection of any such pronouncement, and newspapermen had never heard of it while the Mayor over the last several days practiced what passes for strategy over a fifth floor corner of City Hall.

The chronology of this safety merry-go-round is interesting. According to reliable reports, the Mayor's first and personal choice was Attorney B. B. McGinnis, later sidetracked and made chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

* * *

Pennington Out in Controversial Exchange

Then the Mayor, according to a group of ministers, said he would appoint a man of their choice. Since then the Mayor has intimated there must have been a misunderstanding, though he was at the time frequently quoted in the manner apparently understood by the ministers.

At any rate, a number of them suggested John D. Pennington, former prohibition administrator. This was not satisfactory to the Mayor, and the Pennington name passed out in a controversial exchange between the Mayor and the clergymen.

During this time there was talk of Mr. Malone, presumably encouraged by M. L. Benedum, though Mr. Benedum is reported to have said that the Malone suggestion originated with the Mayor. To add another sentence to the whirligig, there is a report that when Mr. McNair talked the subject over with Mr. Henry after Mr. Malone was first blocked he told Mr. Henry that he didn't want Malone in his cabinet.

* * *

McNair Explains Cooling Toward Henry

At any rate, Mr. Henry now says he thought Mr. McNair was acting in good faith when he agreed to accept the post should Malone be rejected, though his confidence in that good faith was shaken by the fact that the Mayor seemed suddenly to have forgotten him yesterday.

Mr. McNair says he cooled to Mr. Henry because the latter was insistent that some action be taken, and that there should be no indication that he (Henry) was shopping about for a job. The Mayor says he told Mr. Henry that he was trying to work things out, presumably on the Malone end, though at the same time he says he did not attempt to influence Council, and believes that is not part of his job.

The manner in which Mr. Henry passed out of the picture is one of the mysteries of politics. Gossip—which the Mayor says is incorrect—has it that he hit on the name of Henry as a whip to bring into line the objectors to Malone, Mr. Henry being a bitter foe of the Democratic regular organization headed by Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence.

* * *

Kane Knocks Strategy Awry

That strategy—if it had been strategy—was knocked galley-west when Councilman John J. Kane, leading the fight against Malone, said he would move to confirm Henry. Whatever did transpire, it seems that Mr. McNair's sentiment for Mr. Henry cooled from that point.

The mild way to put it is that Mr. Henry is angry, and believes he was used.

Late yesterday, after Mr. Smith had been confirmed, the Mayor said he was prepared for the next move had he been turned down. He said he intended immediately to present the name of George E. Evans, his old friend. Mr. Evans retired from the Democratic councilmanic ticket to make way for William A. Magee. Until yesterday Mr. McNair had given the impression that he wouldn't name Evans to any job, as people might suspect there was a deal made at the time he quit the Council fight.

And if the Mayor yesterday had taken three strikes instead of one, if Council had disapproved Mr. Evans, then Mr. McNair said he would have offered as his fourth appointee for the public safety job Mrs. R. Templeton Smith.

CITY LEADERS FAVOR TAX ON SALES

Income Tax Branded As 'Joke' by Duggan

The growing belief that the general manufacturers' sales tax supplies the solution to national taxation troubles, was indicated by business leaders and others in public life today.

Frank L. Duggan, prominent in the civic and business circles of the city, and a former Councilman, expressed as his opinion that it would eventually come to take the place of the income tax, which he branded "a joke."

J. P. McKinney, Jr., president of the McKinney Manufacturing Company, North Side, likewise attacked the attitude that the sales tax is a poor man's tax. He declared it was equitable, based on the amount a man spent, and grew in proportion to the citizen's purchasing power and income.

Previously Senator David A. Reed, a majority of the Western Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, numerous civic and business leaders had agreed that, operated as it is in Canada, it would solve America's tax situation.

Duggan commented:

"Operated as it does in Canada, I believe the general manufacturers' sales tax is the solution to taxes. And I hope it will do away soon with the income tax. This has become a big joke.

"And I think eventually we will come to this. It is simple, effective and equitable, according to my understanding. And many more people are becoming convinced of this daily.

"It will not be long until enough people are convinced, I'm sure."

Mr. McKinney declared:

"I've always been for a manufacturers' sales tax. And I believe it is equitable and just, spreading the tax fairly upon all the people. There has been some hue and cry that it lands heaviest on the working people, but this is not true, and people are beginning to realize it. A man pays according to his purchases, and a man always spends in proportion to what he makes, whether rich or poor. I think it's a good thing."

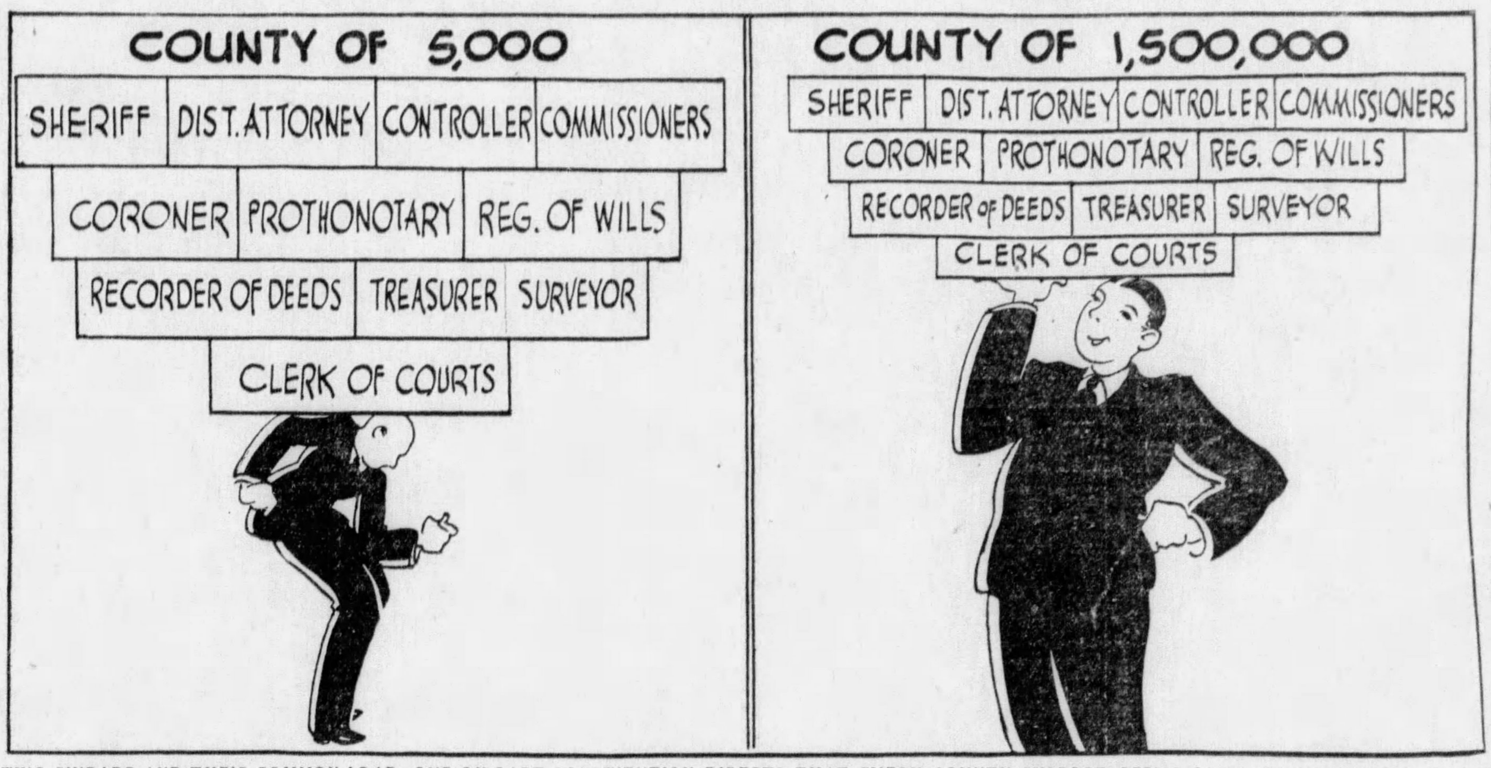
A Modern-Day 'Old Man of the Sea': County Government



TWO SINBADS AND THEIR COMMON LOAD: OUR OX-CART CONSTITUTION DIRECTS THAT EVERY COUNTY SUPPORT OFFICIALS AS SHOWN IN THIS DRAWING

MILLION GRADS HELD JOBLESS

More than a million college graduates are out of work today, President James L. McConaughy, of Wesleyan University, told alumni of the college at their annual meeting last night at the University Club.

He said the new deal threatens the American college with more far-reaching effects than the depression, if the government decides to control universities and colleges and tax college property. Private institutions of higher learning should be continued, as well as those under government dictation, he declared.

The Last Roundup Is Mournful Air Of Our Lobbyists

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Impossible to believe that the Washington lobbyists are going to whisper their resignations.

Those lads have been around so long we figured they went with the lease.

Men may come and men may go. They did neither. They were there every morning like sunflowers in Kansas.

Now, they must fold their tents and silently steal away. We would shed a tear. But the soup is salty enough.

They never stole away before. But they just about grabbed everything else.

No more will they grab the legislator by both lapels and do the giant swing. No more will the mysterious bankroll make a lump in the pillow.

It's just as well. The lads were starting to stuff mattresses.

Attorney General Schnader Indorses Drive To Cut Governmental Taxation Wastes

Heartily in Accord With Sun-Telegraph Campaign

In today's article Attorney General William A. Schnader points out the importance of governmental economies and the barriers which face the Legislature if attempts are made to put into effect many of the needed economic changes.

Heartily in accord with the Sun-Telegraph campaign against duplication of governmental agencies and waste in governmental operation, Attorney General William A. Schnader today declared that the state constitution would have to be revised before such economies can be obtained. In a statement to the Sun-Telegraph, Attorney General Schnader urged immediate action to cut down governmental cost.

The much needed economies can bring about a savings of at least $11,000,000 annually, the state official points out. He warns however that unless constitutional changes are made, the Legislature will find itself balked in many cases in trying to bring about economies.

CONVENTION SIDETRACKED

The Attorney General recalls that more than 14 years ago a commission on constitutional amendment and revision was appointed to study in detail the provisions of the present Constitution in light of modern thought and conditions, with particular view to the necessity or advisability of changing or omitting any provisions, in order to obtain for the people a form of government best suited to their needs and the most conducive to their welfare.

He further recalls that this commission reported to the Legislature of 1921, recommending 132 changes and urging that the present Constitution be revised.

Attorney General Schnader states:

"A constitutional convention was not held as the commission recommended and the Constitution has not been revised."

Schnader declares that every student of government, if he is honest with himself, must realize that the biggest problem to be solved in the days immediately before us is to reduce the cost of government by eliminating duplication and waste. He further stated that every possible economy must be effected in our state government and in our local governments. By economy he declared he meant the elimination of every dollar of unnecessary expense.

Regarding constitutional changes, Attorney Schnader said:

"And I now make the assertion that the people of Pennsylvania cannot effect real economies in the total cost of government until our Constitution has been revised."

Gen. Schnader pointed out that Pennsylvania has a total population of 9,631,350, the 67 counties varying in population from 5,180 to 1,950,961. He said it was obvious that "we cannot expect to impose upon a county of 5,000 population substantially the same type of county government as that which fits a county of two million people."

AVERAGE WASTE

Discussing duplication and waste of money, Schnader calls attention to the fact that Pennsylvania has 5,611 political subdivisions each with the power to impose taxes and spend money. He further said that there is one unit of local government for every 172 persons in the state. Philadelphia, he said, with a population of 1,950,961, has only nine units of local government, or one for every 217,000 persons. This would mean, he declared, that outside of Philadelphia the average is one unit for every 138 people.

He pointed out that if the average waste in unnecessary overhead was $500 a year for each unit, the taxpayers are spending $2,800,000 uslessly. He believes, he said, the waste would be more likely to be near $2,000 per unit each year.

Among other highlights of Gen. Schnader's statement were the following:

If the Legislature were determined to eradicate every unnecessary unit and to set up a reasonably small number of agencies of local government, it would find itself balked by provision after provision in our existing state constitution.

Our constitution—Article III, Section 7, forbids local or special legislation regulating the affairs of counties, cities, townships, wards, boroughs or school districts; changing of county lines, borough limits or school districts; regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses and the raising of money for such purposes, or regulating the fees of aldermen, justices of the peace, magistrates or constables.

If local government is to be placed upon a tax saving rather than a money wasting basis, the Legislature must have a free hand to deal with specific situations. It cannot be confined to generalizations.

The constitution recognizes as constitutional officers, justices of the peace, aldermen and magistrates, and takes from the Legislature the freedom it should have, from time to time, to reorganize the minor judiciary in such a way as to fit with the modern scheme of local government.

The constitution also directs that every county, regardless of size or local conditions, must have as constitutional officers, a sheriff, a coroner, a prothonotary, a register of wills, a recorder of deeds, commissioners, a treasurer, a surveyor, an auditor or controller, a clerk of the courts and a district attorney.

It is true that the Legislature in certain cases has by general law permitted the same person to hold several of these offices, but if local government is to be revamped effectively the Legislature must have a free hand to provide for such local offices as are necessary and to discontinue those which are not necessary.

WANTS PROBLEMS SOLVED

In closing, Attorney General Schnader declared:

"In these times of stress the legislative body of a great state should have the right to deal with any problem of social or economic nature which comes before it, without fear of violating some ancient constitutional restriction. I do not, of course, mean to sweep away the fundamental guarantees of life, liberty and property, contained in the bill of rights; but I do mean, that subject to those guarantees, there should be no technical limitations upon the power of our highest legislative body to solve problems as they appear."

Poll Tax Misnomer But Still Must Be Paid

Although the poll tax isn't a poll tax anymore you still have to pay it. And it's still called a poll tax.

But you don't have to pay the poll tax to vote.

The idea, according to County Solicitor J. P. Fife, is that the constitutional amendment voted in November removed the tax qualification for voting.

The amendment was to an elections act and so had no effect toward removing the tax. The poll tax, Fife pointed out, is a uniform assessment levied on every person 21 or above without regard to citizenship or voting qualifications.

DOLLAR WHISKY NOW LOOMS AS RIVAL

Penna. Rum Tills Ring To Tune of $575,000 First Two Weeks

Regardless of whether you make it in a bathtub or a distillery, the drinking population of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania still prefers gin—possibly because it's cheaper.

Figures for the business done in the state liquor stores in their first two weeks, revealed today, show gin the indisputable favorite. Throughout the state 51,241 fifths (short quarts) priced from $1 to $1.50, and 42,229 pints, selling from 65 to 85 cents, were passed out. Next popular were the blended whiskies; more than 20,000 pints of the cheap variety ($1.15 a pint) were sold.

However, gin's lead probably will be reduced, if not eliminated, with the next report, for Sweepstakes, the new $1-a-fifth whisky which went on sale yesterday, brought a sell-out. The new gin, Cavalier, at 90 cents a short quart, also went big.

In the first two weeks the state stores did a business of more than $575,000.

Analyses of Sweepstakes by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory did not reveal anything of a poisonous nature. It can boast, with the exception of age, virtually the same ingredients as older whiskies.

This report agrees essentially with the report of state chemists, who add that Sweepstakes contains little, if any, aged whisky; that it is the result of a quick-ageing process; that it contains extractive matter from wood chips which contribute the color, extractives and tannin, and that it is principally composed of recently distilled whiskies.

FIRE 'WHOOPEE' LAID TO RUM

Three North Side women, testifying in North Side Police Court this morning, blamed all their troubles on the new dollar distillation.

At a small fire last night, which damaged a frame house owned by Mrs. Alice Petrulis, 40, at 322 Beaver avenue, police arrested Mrs. Anna Adomonis, 33, of 1527 Western avenue.

It was another woman, Eleanor, 18-year-old daughter of Mrs. Petrulis, the police told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones, who pointed out Mrs. Adomonis and asked for her arrest on a charge of drunkenness.

Since Mrs. Adomonis was clapping her hands and shouting "whoopee" as the flames leaped higher, the police believed Eleanor and arrested Mrs. Adomonis.

At the hearing today, Mrs. Adomonis, in her own defense, testified that just before the fire started she and Eleanor had buried the hatchet of a neighborhood feud by drinking cheap legal liquor. It was Eleanor, she insinuated, who had set fire to her mother's home. Magistrate Jones discharged the case.

Rum-Candy Sold Children, 2 Sought

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(INS)—Two New York salesmen for a wholesale liquor-candy jobber were being sought today as the distributors of chocolate-coated rum-sweets being sold to school children along the entire eastern seaboard. Seven Philadelphia retailers were under bond for a further hearing next Monday.

The men sought are Jesse Hamburger and Sam Gleit.

CAFE MEN HERE ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Marking its growth from 18 members to 800 in its first year, the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association increased its directors at the first annual election today. Russell H. Jennings, of Pittsburgh, was elected president.

The association is in convention at the William Penn Hotel. More than 60 commercial exhibitions are a feature of the sessions that close tomorrow. Ross L. Gammon, retiring president, said the group is the largest sectional association in the state.

Pierce C. Johnson, of Monessen, Pa., and Harry Kramer, Pittsburgh, were elected first and second vice presidents, respectively. E. F. Flynn, Pittsburgh, was named treasurer, while C. C. Latus was re-elected executive secretary.

NEW DIRECTORS

The new directors are Joseph Till, Mrs. M. Bettel Johnson, Harry Dippel, A. Conforti, C. Dimling, Christine McKeever, J. C. Jordan, Mrs. E. C. Bowman, Thomas Price, Jr., and A. J. Roth, all of Pittsburgh; A. M. Meek, Johnstown; F. Dalo, Sharon, Harry W. McConn, Indiana; M. J. Hudoc, Uniontown, and E. H. Schmidt, Greensburg.

Regulation of liquor sales and operations under the NRA restaurant code were two important subjects before the convention sessions today.

Discussion of the restaurant code was being offered by Al Carder, of Chicago, president of the National Restaurant Association. Ray Fling, of New York, spoke on the regulation of the sales of liquor. The operation of school lunch rooms was to be discussed by Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh public schools.

Other speakers included the Rev. William Dern, Cincinnati, O.; Edwin J. Tobin, Syracuse University, and W. C. Davis, marketing specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Speaking at yesterday afternoon's session Irwin D. Wolf, secretary of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., declared that newspaper advertising is the most profitable form of public appeal. As a result of a careful study of advertising, he said, he found newspaper advertising the most successful, and advocated colored illustrations to create a desire in the public mind. Of the French method he said:

"They make a ritual of the process of serving food in the glamor thrown around it."

BRITISH STUDY FAR EAST PLAN

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—British, Australian and New Zealand naval commanders were called together in strictest secrecy aboard the cruiser Kent today to discuss Great Britain's naval policy in the Far East.

Their deliberations were expected to have far-reaching effects on Great Britain's Far Eastern attitude. The conferees were gathered in an atmosphere made tense with interest in Japan's naval-building moves and a bill in the United States Congress proposing 120 new warships.

The Kent is the flagship of Vice Admiral Sir Frederic Charles Dreyer, commander-in-chief of the British China station. Seven British men-of-war brought the naval dignitaries together.

Singapore's future as a naval center, progress of naval base contraction work in Singapore, the Far Eastern situation and matters of general policy in connection with the local base.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—The Laborite Daily Herald said in a dispatch from Singapore today that it was rumored Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, after a secret dash from Java, had been placed aboard the cruiser Kent for the British naval conference.

LINKS GERMANY IN JAP CRISIS

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—A storm "is growing over the Far East and is closely connected with Berlin," Henry Berenger, president of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the French Senate, said in a newspaper article. He wrote:

"What is happening in Japan, China, Russia and the United States has certain connections with what is happening in Germany and Eastern Europe."

He warned Frenchmen to "keep their eyes on the Pacific" and maintained that "the massive rearmament in Germany is not solely a Franco-German problem, nor a European problem, but an international one."

Army Destroys Part Of City in China

PEIPING, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Gen. Sun Tienying's army in Northwest China today razed a large section of the city of Pinglo, continuing its advance through the territory.

Gen. Ma Hungkwei reported Gen. Sun's artillery forces particularly active in the rebel drive.

River Dredge Sinks Near Greensboro

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 23.—A $100,000 river dredge of the J. C. McClain Sand Company sprung a leak and sank in the Monongahela River near Greensboro, Pa., late last night. Members of the crew were awakened by Fred Dulaney, night watchman, who discovered the leak. The craft went to the bottom despite efforts of the crews of the towboat "Togo" and the steamboat "J. C. McClain."

SCULPTORS GET CWA JOBS

At least four recently unemployed sculptors were at work here today because the CWA had given them jobs.

Under the direction of Prof. Joseph Bailey Ellis, head of the department of sculpture, Carnegie Tech, four of his former students are sculpturing preliminary designs for several projects.

They have completed miniature clay "sketches" for several larger schemes, and have plans for modeling others, notably plaques of four famous Pittsburghers, to decorate Pittsburgh schools.

The sculptors are Mrs. Margaret Grier Brink, Mrs. Dorothy Jones, Charles Bradley Warren and Oltrado J. Lissotto.

Painters are stretching canvas for other art work, including mural decoration for schools and libraries.

NOSE FOOD ENDS HUNGER STRIKE

Universal Service.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 23.—Albert Bates and Harvey Bailey, outlaws serving life terms in the federal prison annex here for their part in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City millionaire, today conceded defeat in their "hunger strike."

But they were "just kidding" the prison officials anyway, they announced from their dungeons.

After Bates had been on a "diet" for several days, Bailey joined him. Presently the two declared a "hunger strike" and sent demands to Warden Robert H. Hudspeth that they be given regular prison privileges and assurances that they would not be transferred to Alcatraz Island, Uncle Sam's "Devil's Island," off San Francisco.

The prison guards on Sunday decided to give "forcible feeding," a cure for hunger strikes.

This "cure" consists of tying the convict to a table and inserting a rubber tubing in both nostrils and pouring milk through the apparatus. Several treatments like this and Bates and Bailey decided they were "only kidding."

Garbo-Like Wax Soldier Models Irk Fascists

ROME, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—"Effeminate" wax models for displaying uniforms in military tailor shops aroused the ire today of Fascist newspapers and officers who demanded that the "sissified" figures be replaced by "more military and less endearing clotheshorses."

One officer, writing in the newspaper Tribuna, said:

"Shop windows show officers with pomaded hair, feminine figures, eyebrows and lashes of a Garbo and lovely carmined fingernails."

He declared this "is an insufferable reflection" upon the dignity, austerity and rugged discipline of the nation's defenders.

3 STATES JOIN FLOYD HUNT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Over the highways of Southern New York, nearby New Jersey and Connecticut police scout cars prowled restlessly today, and bridges and ferries were under surveillance of heavily armed squads as a three-state police net was spread for Charles A. (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma gunman and bank robber.

Authorities acted swiftly to intercept the desperado, believed to be heading for refuge here, after a report that a large sedan believed to be carrying Floyd and three companions was sighted crossing the Delaware River Bridge between Morrisville, Pa., and Trenton, N. J.

The car, thought to be the same one mentioned in a police radio broadcast from Lansing, Mich., last week, was glimpsed by Patrolman F. X. Kelly, on duty at the bridge. Kelly said the sedan bore New York license plates described in the Michigan broadcast as those on a car in which the southwestern bad man was fleeing East.

State Senator Faces Court Jury in Bribe

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23.—(Universal.)—A jury of eight women and four men was selected late yesterday to try State Senator William Herner, of Huron County, on charges of soliciting a bribe.

OLD NEWS MEN TO ORGANIZE

Organization of veteran Pittsburgh newspapermen will be discussed at a "get-together" dinner being arranged by Dr. Harry M. Goehring. The guest list will include old associates of Dr. Goehring, present members of the Fourth Estate, politicians and police officials, all of whom formerly worked on Pittsburgh newspapers.

In completing arrangements for the dinner, which will be held in two weeks, Dr. Goehring is being assisted by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, William T. Mossman, Jones & Loughlin Steel Corporation; Judge Frank P. Patterson, Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd, Wilmer M. Jacoby, publisher of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph; W. U. Christman, managing editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette; W. W. Forster, managing editor of the Pittsburgh Press; Eugene L. Connelly, member of the Zoning Board of Adjustment, and John E. McKirdy, advertising manager of the Union Trust Company. J. K. Burnett has been designated as temporary chairman.

WIDOWS TO PAY U. S. TAXES ON TRUST FUNDS

Names and addresses of widows who are beneficiaries of trust funds created by will, with taxable incomes for the years 1931 and 1932, are being sought by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to collect income taxes from the recipients instead of from the trustees. A recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holds that widow beneficiaries are liable for the tax on incomes distributed by trustees, government attorneys said.

In a petition filed yesterday in Federal Court, Carroll P. Davis, trust officer of the Union Trust Company, is asked to furnish W. P. Mays, internal revenue agent in charge of the Pittsburgh district, with information concerning such trust funds held by the bank, where widows as beneficiaries were paid incomes, in lieu of statutory and dower rights.

According to the petition filed by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, James A. McCann, Pittsburgh representative of general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and Mays, the trust company refused to divulge information concerning the trust estates or produce any records concerning them.

A hearing will be held on the petition Friday before Judge Nelson McVicar.

The petition avers that because of the Supreme Court decision the information is necessary, and that the petitioners believe that the bank, as trustee, now has claims for refunds in regard to such trust incomes for 1931 and 1932, waiting to be filed with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. In most instances heretofore, it was said, the taxes were paid through the trust companies.

Cement Industry Uses More News Ads

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Constant contact with the public through newspaper advertising was cited yesterday by Edward J. Mehren, president of the Portland Cement Association, Chicago, as the medium through which the cement industry is discovering changing tastes and needs. In an address before cement company executives of Pennsylvania, Mehren said:

"About 85 per cent of the Portland Cement Association's 1934 advertising budget is being used for newspaper advertising. The emphasis on newspaper advertising has been growing steadily for a number of years."

Chamber May Admit Women To Membership

Official notice of a membership meeting to consider a proposed amendment to the by-laws of the Chamber of Commerce, whereby women would be admitted to that body, has been given by Frank C. Harper, secretary-manager of the Chamber.

The meeting will be held at the Chamber auditorium next Tuesday following a membership luncheon. The proposed amendment would change the phrase, "Any man in good standing," in the article defining qualifications for membership, to "Any person of good repute." The Chamber, organized in 1874, never has admitted a woman.

A discussion of population trends in the Pittsburgh district, illustrated with reference to their probable effect on various types of business, also will be a feature of the meeting. C. V. Starrett, of the Buhl Foundation, and F. F. Stephan, director of the Bureau of Social Research, will speak.

RAID CONFIRMS 'DIGIT' DREAM

A woman who told Angelo Repine, who runs a shoe repair shop at 123 Robinson street she had dreamed he was to be arested for selling numbers, didn't have to wait to see her dream come true.

While she was consulting him about her dream and seeking the number corresponding with it in a "Numbers Dream Book," the police walked in, according to testimony in Oakland police court today.

Repine was fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Charles J. McCall. He paid. Police said they confiscated numbers and slips. The woman was not arrested.

Stokowski Movie Rumors Supported

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Hollywood rumors that Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, may go to the West Coast to appear in pictures gained strength today when it was learned he has been excused from jury duty.

Stokowswi was drawn for duty in Common Pleas Court beginning February 5. Following a concert tomorrow night in New York, Stokowski will start his "winter vacation." He could not be reached to confirm or deny the report that his vacation would be spent in Hollywood.

FACTIONS CLASH ON PITT RULE

Warfare between those two traditional groups of foes, fraternity men and non-fraternity men, broke out in the open at Pitt today.

The non-fraternity men were credited with circulating petitions which called upon university officials to abolish the Student Self-Government Association, which includes the Student Council. This is dominated by the fraternity groups.

The petition suggests a substitute government consisting of two members of the present council, four seniors, one faculty member and the two persons to whom the petition is addressed—Acting Dean of Men Walter Rome and Dean of Women Thyrsa Amos.

Circulated quietly, the petitions have not yet been presented. They described the present government as cumbersome and accuse the leaders of "petty politics."

ROBBERS STEAL GEMS, CLOTHES

Joseph Dennis, of Clemensha avenue, Brookline, said he was robbed in the 1500 block of Fifth avenue early today of a $200 ring, a $55 watch and $25 in cash, according to a police report.

Nick Mack reported that somebody had entered his home at 1612 Forsythe street and stole a $45 radio.

Clothes valued at $70 were taken by burglars who entered the home of Matthew Dougherty at 107 Beelen street.

Silverware was stolen by robbers in Remaley's restaurant at 416 Sixth avenue.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness, or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water, and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonfull four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

WIDENING MAY HURT EXPO

The City Planning Commission has notified Council that the proposed widening of the city's water front boulevards would prevent the utilization of land at the Point for an exposition, unless it be of a restricted character.

The Greater Pittsburgh Exposition Society has a hearing Thursday on an ordinance which would authorize a 50-year grant on the Point property to the society, which plans to erect an auditorium costing at least three million dollars.

The building would be used for conventions, athletic shows and industrial exhibits. The society has offered the city 3 per cent of the annual gross revenue.

The Planning Commission, in a letter signed by L. W. Monteverde, chairman, points out that the greater part of the land under the present Exposition Building will be taken up by the widening of Duquesne way and Water street and the ramps at the Point Bridge.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

Does a pimply face embarrass you? Get a package of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights, if you are like thousands of others.

Help cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel: there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

Thousands who take Olive Tablets are never cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition, pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound; known by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel compiaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

LEGAL REFORM PLEA LAUDED

Hearst newspapers published recently an editorial dealing with the long-continued failures and abuses of justice in this country, and calling for a nationwide public demand that the legislatures of the different states institute immediate and drastic reforms in our judicial and legal systems.

The editorial appeared in last Friday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph under the heading:

"Let us have an American justice campaign—for JUSTICE and HONESTY."

Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel for the City of Chicago and now one of the leading practitioners of the Middle West, has indorsed the idea. In a letter Mr. Ettelson says:

"I congratulate the Hearst papers and the country on this frank and eloquent expression.

"I think the papers, by this editorial, have rendered a great service to the people of the United States."

Aluminum's Bright Future to Be Its Finish

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—(AP.) Cheer up, aluminum. You may be as bright as silver some day, even if you are left out of all the speeches about the dollar and what it should be made of.

The happy possibility that the cafeteria tray may some day shine like the Sunday cream pitcher in the cupboard was presented to a meeting of the Cleveland chapter of the illuminating engineering society last night.

Junius D. Edwards, of the Aluminum Company of America, discussing the use of aluminum for reflectors, told of the bright future for the metal. A new finish, it seems, has been discovered by Dr. R. B. Mason, of the company's research laboratories at New Kensington, Pa.

QUAKE VICTIMS IN COLD WAVE

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Falling temperatures added today to the suffering of thousands whose homes were demolished in India's devastating earthquake.

Many of the homeless were described as without any protection.

Temperatures as low as 32 degrees were reported as trying to the heat-loving Indians as much colder weather to persons living in temperate zones.

Tents have been distributed throughout the regions hit hardest, but hundreds have been unable to obtain them.

James C. King.

James C. King, 51, died yesterday. He will be buried from the home of his sister, Catherine F. King, 625 Brushton avenue.

Mr. King leaves two sons, Edward and James C. King, Jr.; two daughters, Miss Margaret King and Mrs. Mercedes Boyd; two sisters and a brother.

Mrs. Philomenia K. Trickel.

Requiem high mass for Mrs. Philomenia Krebs Trickel, 67, who died Sunday at her home, 4738 Penn avenue, will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. in St. Augustine's Catholic Church.

Rev. Charles E. Berkey.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 23—(INS.)—The Rev. Charles E. Berkey, 65, of the Luthern church at Newry, died yesterday. A son, the Rev. Hillis Berkey, is pastor at the Geeseytown Church, Blair County.

Missing W. Va. Man Slain, Police Fear

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Fear for the life of Fred B. Ashworth, 50, missing business man of Huntington, W. Va., has been expressed by Paul H. Gooch, Huntington officer, who is here searching for him.

Gooch said Ashworth's automobile was located here last week in a garage but attendants were unable to identify a picture of Ashworth as one of four men in the car when it was left.

VITTOR TRIBUTE AT LUNCHEON

Forty Pittsburgh civic leaders, including "Uncle Henry" Kaufmann, donor of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, will attend a luncheon honoring Sculptor Frank Vittor in a Kaufmann dining room tomorrow noon.

Vittor's bust of Henry Kaufmann recently won the grand prize and a gold medal for the best fine arts sculpture exhibited at the Fiera Esposizione al Littoriale Di Bologna, in Italy. At the luncheon, Nobile Don Leone Sircana, Italian vice consul here, will present the medal and prize to Vittor. Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann's, is giving the luncheon.

"Uncle Henry" Kaufmann, visiting the settlement for its thirty-ninth anniversary, saw the bust of himself yesterday. Asked what he thought of it, he said:

"You can never see yourself as others see you. I'd say this bust looks better than the subject!"

Vittor's bust is modeled from life, following a commission some months ago from Edgar Kaufmann to make some life masks of his uncle.

Brookline Dwelling Damaged by Flames

The residence of Charles C. Latus, 1329 Lettyhill street, was damaged by fire early today. Firemen said the fire occurred in the garage under the front of the house. Damage was estimated at $200. Latus is secretary of the Pennsylvania Bakers' Association.

Doctor Injured In Auto Crash

The condition of Dr. Charles A. Raher, 29, of Clinton, injured in an automobile accident near Imperial Sunday, was reported as "fairly good" in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, today. He suffered internal injuries.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

Many People Fearful When Their Youth Vanishes

He's just a gay young blade of forty—and he simply has to have his kid company to keep him hitting on all six!

What'll middle-aged Olive do? Marry him, and try to go back to the Giggle Age? Or—?

Dear Elsie:

Here's my problem. Maybe it seems like a silly one, but I wish you'd help me with it. My Boy Friend and I are constant readers of your column, and maybe a word from you could put us both straight.

We are no longer youngsters, both of us being 40 years old. Our difficulty is that, for the past year, every time we go out and wherever we go, we have a contingent of kids 20 years younger than ourselves traveling along with us. Neither of us has ever been married, and the B. F. contends that, because of this, we should travel with a younger set.

PASSED GIGGLE STAGE

At first this was okay with me, for we really do like the kids a lot. They are sweller than swell. But lately I have become conscious of snickers from our older acquaintances, and have become uncomfortable in such constant youthful company.

I have spoken to the B. F. on numerous occasions of this disparity in ages, but he wants to go with the youths. Somehow I feel that I am suffocating. I've long ago passed the giggle stage, and I have no desire to go back. And instead of finding it amusing, sometimes I could scream, right out loud.

I can't exchange ideas with these kids, for I've lived so much longer. I can't expect that we should see things the same way, because I know that experience has taught me, and will have to teach them. I can't expect them to jump 20 years ahead—and neither can I go back 20 years.

We both love to go out a lot. Dances, games, parties, rides and everything to keep us hopping—and I'm right on the job to go, too. We could travel with people our own age. But no—the kids have it! Need I tell you that the B. F. pays all the bills—hence the Hero Worship. The mere mention of his age now causes a riot. He's "as old as he feels," to hear him tell it.

FEELS MUCH OLDER

I'm just about ready to call quits, as I can't feature marrying a Dancing Fool. My brothers hinted to him about the unnaturalness of this thing, and his people have told him outright that they don't blame me, but he can't seem to overcome this complex. What is the matter with him? Or is it me?

Honestly, would you continue an engagement with a fellow who needs "young blood" to keep him hopping—or am I all wrong?

Perhaps I'm getting "ingrown" as he says. But somehow I feel I am getting stagnant, with all these kids around. Youth around him may make him feel young, but it's making me feel ages older. The comparison is too much.

Is this a natural impulse on his part? He "sowed his wild oats" long ago. Must he sow another crop? It isn't any particular couple, but six or seven youngsters, who get an awful kick out of him—and his pocketbook reflects the kick.

OLIVE.

What's the matter with him? Just fear, Olive. That fear which falls on most of us when we see youth passing, and romance and adventure vanishing over the horizon. Of course, it's all popeyed. Even though youth passes, the years bring better things. And romance and adventure vanish for those who have the eyes to see them and the hearts to seek them. But it's hard for some of us to realize this. And so we clutch desperately at the froth of things.

DODGES REALITY

That's what your man is doing. In his heart, he isn't fooling himself. He knows that it's his pocketbook which is buying all this attention, but he loves fun and flattery; he's desperately determined not to face reality.

Try to understand all this. But don't let his hysteria rock your boat. Don't let him kid you that you're "ingrown." You're not. You're a mature woman, trying to live a mature woman's life—and it is no wonder that you're bored to tears with trying to be a child again. Any Regular Woman would be—or Regular Man, either.

So then, what? Shall you marry him? I can't tell—for I don't know the man himself. But it would certainly be foolish to marry him now. Chances are, he will come out of his hysteria presently and seek the haven of your sanity, with gratitude and respect.

And, if you believe he's worth the gamble, I'd advise you to wait for that day—and be tender and tolerant when it comes. For after all, life's a lonely business at best, Olive dear. And we're all such muddled, frightened children that it ill behooves any of us to judge the other fellow in his weakest moments!

Fay King Speaks of the Perils Involved in 'Psychological Jags'

A BRISK WALK IN THE FRESH AIR IS GOOD FOR A MENTAL "STEW" TOO!
ANGER IS A MENTAL "JAG" THAT LEAVES A "HANG-OVER"
IMAGINATION IS AS POTENT AS DRINK. KEEP MENTALLY SOBER!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

A person "drunk" with anger is no more responsible for things said or done than is a person drunk with drink.

One who does not touch a drop of alcoholic liquor may have mental moods of unreasonable "intoxication" as much to be regretted.

If you had a mental "jag" of nagging and bickering at the breakfast table, take a brisk walk, and "sober" yourself into good humor and smiles again for dinner time.

Too often "the blues" of pouting and sulking are only a "hang-over" from a mental "stew" in which imagination was the potent "drink" that robs one of reason.

Drink wisely and well, and be also wisely "sober," in all your thoughts and actions, that you may avoid mental "stews" as well.

Madge and Noel Surprised When Avis Appears

"Well, what's my cue?" Dicky asked me quizzically, as through the library window we saw Noel park his car and come up the steps of the side veranda. "Do I blow discreetly, or do I stick around and swing a towel between rounds—or is this going to be a peaceable session?"

"Peaceable but sorrowful," I told him, smiling. "Thank you ever so much for staying up this way. But now—"

"Righto," he shot back, grinning, and with a mocking wave of his hand was out of sight before I opened the door to admit Noel.

The bridegroom-to-be looked, as Lillian would say, "anything else but." Flushed, with hair dishevelled, with a harassed look in his eyes, he came almost shamefacedly through the door, a small sheaf of neatly folded manuscript in his hands.

"Come into the library, Noel," I said cordially, for I saw that speech of any kind was almost impossible to him. I turned upon the word to save him a rejoinder, and led the way to the library, where I pretended to busy myself with the embers of the fire that had been burning there earlier in the evening.

"If you don't mind, Noel, I wish you'd stir up this fire a bit. I can't do anything with it."

NOEL ASHAMED

"I'll get some wood," he volunteered with oddly strained voice.

He started for the door, then turned back abruptly and thrust the sheaf of papers into my hands.

"I'd rather you'd start reading these foolish things when I'm not around," he said, and fairly ran for the door. But I called him back.

"Don't stay away to give me time to read these. I want you back at once. I think Avis Arlen is soundly asleep—she appeared to be when I left my room just now after a two-hour vigil over her—but I'm taking no chances upon her coming down stairs and roaming around this lower floor. Go directly to the kitchen, get the wood, and come back here right away. We'll read these things together. You surely don't mind me, Noel?"

"I mind you least of anybody; you know that," he said earnestly, "but those things are so—so—"

"They probably are all of that," I told him, smiling, "but we'll judge of that later. Just get the wood now, and build up this fire."

He went away upon the word, returning shortly with his arms filled with wood and kindling. He built up the fire skillfully, and when it was blazing came back and took a seat opposite me. With a sympathetic smile I looked up from the sonnet I had been persuing.

"One thing is certain, Noel," I said. "If you made a bet with Avis that you could write sonnets, you won it. These are cleverly done. Some of them have a distinctly Shakespearean flavor."

"They ought to," Noel said grimly. "I studied the old bard so hard I could scan his stuff backwards. I stole his ideas, and copied him lavishly. Lord, what a fool a man can be! I had no idea, when I was writing them, that they would be taken seriously. I was just absorbed in the idea of trying to do them. I can't believe yet that Avis was ever foolish enough to— Tell me; do they sound as if I ever had cared for her?"

AVIS APPEARS

"My dear boy!" I looked at him pityingly. "They sound as if you had been what Mary would call 'dippy' about her. Take this one, for instance," as I picked up the one that lay upon the top of the heap and read two lines from it:

'A maiden's face which God himself has tinted
Upturned to mine, reflecting all my soul
Aglow with love—"

Noel groaned and hid his head in his hands. I was about to read further when Avis Arlen's voice sounded from the doorway.

"Oh! No-el, how could you! Those sacred things of ours!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

What to Do in Event of an Accident at Home

Accidents are common in every household. Often their results require immediate and expert attention. A knowledge of what to do at the right time may prevent unsightly scars, and help to avoid the dangers of neglected or careless treatment.

Dr. Copeland

I can think of no better household textbook on this subject than a small pamphlet issued by the United States Public Health Service. It is called "What to Do in Case of Accident." I strongly recommend it as a valuable addition to the possessions of every household.

One of the most common of accidents encountered is hemorrhage or bleeding, as a result of a cut or other injury. In most cases bleeding gradually stops. Such bleeding is really beneficial, because it helps to wash out germs that may have entered with the offending implement.

At times it is necessary to use energetic measures to stop the bleeding. This may be accomplished by pressure or bandage, or by elevating the part if it involves the arm or leg. Sometimes, however, a severe cut or wound may be followed by profuse bleeding in spite of the measures taken to control it. Unless expert treatment for the patient is immediately available the loss of blood may be dangerously great before the arrival of a doctor.

In such cases the best plan is to apply a "tourniquet." This is really a narrow pressure bandage intended to compress the vessel and cut off the flow of blood.

In place of the ingenious device the doctors use, the same effect may be accomplished by wrapping a handkerchief, belt or piece of cloth above the wound and inserting under this a stout stick. The stick is twisted until the tightened cord or cloth causes the bleeding to stop. To leave the tourniquet in place too long will do harm. It should not be kept on for more than 20 minutes at a time. Loosen the pressure occasionally until the doctor comes.

Bear in mind that fear, anxiety and apprehension stimulate the heart, causing it to beat faster and thus to increase the bleeding. Reassure the victim and avoid stimulants of any kind. If he should faint that is all the better, because the slow heart beating will lessen the bleeding.

Accidental poisoning is a tragic event. It requires the immediate services of a doctor. While he is coming there are a few things a calm person can do to help. Smell the breath and examine the mouth to determine if possible what poison has been swallowed. If you know the poison and are familiar with the antidote, give it at once.

When in doubt a good plan is to give the white of eggs, milk or strong tea. These drinks are harmless and neutralize some poisons. Anything that encourages vomiting is useful. A useful emetic is lukewarm water mixed with a teaspoon of mustard or salt. Repeat the dose every 10 minutes until vomiting occurs.

In all cases of poisoning keep the patient warm and well covered. Place hot water bottles at the feet and give hot water or hot tea to drink.

Please remember that effective treatment can only be counted on if the physician is present. If necessary he will wash out the stomach contents and administer the necessary medical treatment.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When sending wedding announcements and invitations, must I send one to the fiance of my dearest friend, even though I do not know him very well? Or will the one I send to my friend mean that he is invited also?

2—Must I also send invitations to my fiance's relatives who live out of the city, even though I know that they will not be able to attend?

3—How soon should my veil be removed? The reception will be at home. BRIDE-TO-BE.

1—You should indeed send a separate invitation to the fiance of your dearest friend. He would feel, and rightly so, distinctly slighted if you do not do this. And the invitation that you send to your friend would in no way mean the same thing as an invitation sent to her fiance. He must have his own.

2—Yes, this is most important. The fact that you are sure that they will not be able to accept this invitation is not the point. The invitation is a bow, a compliment, and a most important one, to the relatives of your husband-to-be.

Your fiance should give to you and your mother his list of relatives and friends to whom he wishes invitations sent.

3—Do not remove your veil until you go, after the reception, to change from your wedding clothes to your traveling clothes. The hour in which the bride wears her bridal attire is such a short one, and she should drain from it all of its glory by wearing her complete wedding attire until after the reception.

Business Is Business

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a manager of a building. Would it be proper for me to send announcements to my tenants of a new born baby?

2—If you receive a gift for a new born baby, is it proper to open it while the giver is present and thank him or her? C.

1—No. Your relationship with the tenants of your building should be kept on a strictly business basis, and such an announcement as you contemplate sending is of a social nature that is not appropriate to this business basis.

2—Yes.

Embroider These Colorful Scenes

What decoration could be more colorful for a room than these lovely scenes that have the added attraction of a fitting verse? Colorful as a finished picture, they are a very entertaining form of embroidery owing to the variety of colored wools and simple stitches that are used to make them. Though the pictures are companion pieces, either one is effective alone and would make a handsome decoration.

Contract Bridge :-:

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

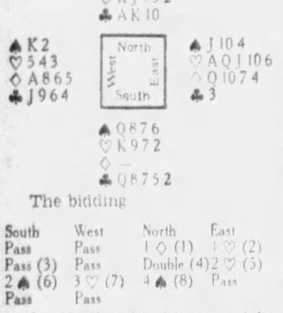
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Takeout Double

For years there has been a controversy over the discovery of the Takeout Double, which is one of the most effective weapons available to the side whose opponents have opened the bidding. The question of who first used the Double as a command to his partner to bid is probably of minor importance, but its effectiveness as a counter-attacking weapon is realized by all good Bridge players. Were it not for the use of this call, almost any bid by the defending side would be to a greater or lesser extent a leap in the dark, but the safeguards of rules laid down for responses to Takeout Doubles permit the players who for the moment are on the defensive to act with the same precision as though their own side had opened the bidding.

An example of how a Takeout Double frequently brings a most satisfactory result is shown in the hand below:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇ (1)	1 ♡ (2)
Pass (3)	Pass	Double (4)	2 ♡ (5)
2 ♠ (6)	3 ♡ (7)	4 ♠ (8)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North, with 4 honor-tricks and only one biddable suit, of course has no choice of bids.

2—A perfectly sound Overcall, not vulnerable.

3—South is void of his partner's bid suit. His hand as a whole contains less than 1½ honor-tricks. He must, of course, pass.

4—This Double is clearly for a Takeout.

5—East attempts to make the response as difficult as possible for South.

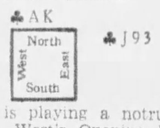
6—If North can open the bidding after two passes and then make a Takeout Double when his partner has refused to overcall, he must either be prepared for a spade response or have another bid in reserve himself.

7—West's hand [illegible] hardly strong enough for the interjection of his nuisance bid.

8—North feels that the hand should play at game. He knows that the North and South hands have a minimum of 8 spades and that probably at worst the success of the contract rests upon a finesse.

The contract was easily made after South made a correct guess as to the division of the trump suit and the location of the trump King.

Today's Question



South is playing a notrump contract. West's Opening lead is the deuce of clubs. What card should East play?

Answer: The nine, and when next the suit is played the Knave should be led or played in order to unblock in case, for example, West led originally from Q 8 6 2 and has no entry card.

DUQUESNE FOLLOWERS HAIL SIGNING OF JOE BACH

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Naming of Bach Popular.
Duke Post Well Earned.
Unsung Factor in Past.
Cubs Welcome New Ball.
McFadden's Novel Trade.
Financial Lure of Mat.

Though the official announcement of the selection of Joseph Anthony Bach to succeed Elmer Layden as head football coach at Duquesne University only confirmed what had been generaly expected for many weeks, the fact that it had been anticipated did not diminish the enthusiasm with which Duquesne followers and Bach's many friends throughout this section received the news of the appointment. A more popular choice never has been made to fill a coaching vacancy of any kind in this city. Duke alumni and students and the rank and file of district fans in general had been solidly in favor of Bach from the time of Layden's resignation, and the selection therefore met with the hearty approval of everybody concerned. Had it been put to a popular vote, Joe would have come very close to being a unanimous choice.

Joe Bach

And Bach's support was not based alone on his high personal standing. He was the logical choice from the standpoint of proved ability, and richly deserved the post because of the stuff he had shown and the goods he had delivered in his five years of excellent service as line coach and scout.

HAS PLAYED BIG PART IN DUKES' SUCCESS

Bach has received all too little credit for his work in a subordinate capacity at the Bluff school. He has been a powerful though unsung factor in the advance of the Dukes to the front ranks in college football. A gridiron team is no better than its line, and the success of the Red and Blue was due in no small measure to the great forward walls that Joe produced.

In justice to the college authorities, it must be said that their delay in announcing officially the appointment of Bach was not due to any failure to realize his worth, nor to any disinclination to recognize it, but solely because of a desire to get a satisfactory backfield coaching assistant lined up first. That detail could not be completed as soon as they had hoped, but it can wait. The head coach ought to be allowed to name his own assistants; anyhow the main thing is that Bach is duly established in the chief position, to which he was clearly entitled, and which he appears well fitted in every respect to fill with credit to himself and the school.

GRIMM SEES LIVELY BALL AS JOB SAVER

Though realizing that he is on the spot and can expect only a speedy dismissal as manager of the Cubs if he fails to bring the team home in front this year, Charley Grimm is serenely confident that he's not going to lose his job. He thinks the lively ball will save it. That was the item that led the Bruin bosses to change their minds about getting rid of Babe Herman. They figured that Herman might be able to ride the new agate for long distances, and that his value as a siege gun would offset his uncertainty in the field and on the bases. Grimm looks beyond the Babe and thinks the 1934 ball will help his whole club to the extent of a pennant victory.

Charley Grimm

As the Cub leader sees it, the changed apple will also benefit Chuck Klein, Kiki Cuyler and Riggs Stephenson, the remainder of his heavy artillery; that Woody English will hit .300 instead of .260, and that Billy Herman is due for a much better season than he had in 1933. Klein is to bat third, his natural spot, with Herman or Stephenson following him. With his own physical fitness restored, and Bud Tinning an improved pitcher, Grimm declares that the Bruins just can't miss; that the new ball will be made to order for them. The fact that the other National League clubs will be privileged to bat against the same ball, with the same chance to boost their clouting averages, appears not to have entered into Charley's reckoning.

OLD FIGHTER NOW POLICE STRETCHER

From 1894 to 1908, one of the leading lightweights in the fight game was George (Elbows) McFadden. He never won a championship, but he could beat men who did. He knocked out Joe Gans in 23 rounds, besides getting a couple of draws with him; put Kid Lavigne away in 19 frames; beat Kid McPartland twice and played hob with a lot of other Queensberry big wigs. Little has been heard of McFadden in recent years, but now it develops that he has outdone other old ring warriors in thinking up a new business. He's a stretcher. He stretches necks. No, not a hangman. He makes short fellows tall.

McFadden's unique business grew out of a happy thought that struck one of several disappointed applicants for jobs on the New York police force, who were short of the required height of 5 feet 8 inches. They had heard of McFadden's success in changing human figures at his one-room gymnasium in East Fifty-ninth street, including the reducing of Lionel Barrymore from 265 to 148 pounds, so they reasoned he might be able to do something in the matter of height. Elbows said he would try, and he made good in every case. He invented new devices as he went along, until now his gym looks like an ancient torture chamber, with apparatus to hang a man up by the neck without hurting him; weights to be hung on the feet, back stretchers, and springs that hook on to the chin. McFadden guarantees to stretch any man a full inch. In all, he has stretched 15 men into police uniforms.

MAT DELIVERS WHERE DIPLOMAS FAIL

No matter what you think of modern wrestling, so-called, which may be everything else but, there's no denying that it goes over big in enough spots to make it profitable to the performers. When a visiting grappler, Jim McMillen, was asked in Pittsburgh some time ago why he had taken up the game after getting a college education at Illinois, he replied that he "couldn't eat that sheepskin." Others bear him out in explaining why there are so many college men in the wrestling business. One of them is Ed Don George, who is among the present-day topliners.

Ed Don George

George frankly admits that he became a professional wrestler because he was short of cash. He relates that after spending four years at Michigan to earn an engineer's degree, he received a sheepskin and obtained a job with a tire company at $150 a month. That was considered a fortunate break for him, but he had contracted some debts while in college, felt that he ought to pay them as soon as possible, but saw that he couldn't makemuch headway.

So when Paul Bowser suggested that he become a professional wrestler, George asked the tire company for a year's leave of absence to see if he couldn't make some money in a hurry and pay off his obligations. That was late in 1929, and it worked out so well that George is still wrestling and says that from the looks of things he'll never go back to engineering.

The Donnellis Are at It Again—This Time It's Brother Fred

ACTION AS CURRY SOCCER TEAM ENTERED SECOND ROUND OF NATIONAL OPEN CUP COMPETITION BY BEATING MORGAN, 2-1, IN REPLAY OF THEIR TIE . . . BUFF DONNELLI ALSO FACTOR

You can't keep down the Donnellis in the local soccer realm. If it isn't Buff Donnelli who is tearing up things, it's his brother, Fred. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture above shows Fred, fourth figure from right, clearing his goal during the first half of the National Cup battle with Curry at Greenlee Field. Buff was well covered throughout to keep him from becoming dangerous.

CURRY WORRIED OVER SECOND ROUND FOE

By TOM BIRKS

With the first round obstacle in the form of Morgan overcome, the officials of the Curry Soccer Club are not anticipating the second round battle in the national open tourney with any degree of confidence. Although the Black and White-clad Curry boys, led by Buff Donnelli, won the game Sunday, there were many weak spots evident.

There was a lack of cohesion in the attack, Buff Donnelli getting little or no help from his comrades. The defense wobbled aplenty when Morgan put on pressure. In the next round Curry will meet a far better club than any team in the Keystone League, so strengthening the club would be a good move. Johnny Bruce and his committee know very well that few players are available at this time of the season, and if any men are signed they will be juniors.

BOOKIE IS THROUGH

One thing is sure, Mike Bookie will not play any soccer this season. There was a report going the rounds previous to Sunday's game that Manager Bruce was going to call on Bookie for the inside right job. Bookie spiked this rumor previous to the game when he told the writer that his injured foot was coming along all right, but that soccer this year was out of the question.

Curry is missing Bookie in its attacking line. When Wineski came back from Cleveland it was figured that he would fill the gap. In the first game he looked good for 15 minutes, and then left the game because of a knee injury. On Sunday he did not fit in the front line at all. It is part of his job to draw out the defense for Buff Donnelli, and then part with the ball. The shoe was on the other foot, however; Buff had to draw the defense to give Wineski the ball, and the insider did little with the sphere when he received it.

FRONT LINE WEAK

The front line is causing plenty of worry for the second round game. Sunday, Charley Powell was used as an outside right, but he was out of place. He played a good game, but is better at center halfback.

Chappell is lost at center half, and Curry had better realize this. The former Heidelberg player is one of the finest wingers in the district. He may play one of the wing halfback positions, but center half is not Chappell's place.

Just as one of the best known soccer men in the district stated after the game was over, there is a dearth of inside forwards in the district, Johnny McCosky, of Heidelberg; Mike Bookie and Johnny Jaap being the only trio in the Keystone League that has the knowledge of the position and play it correctly.

Price Holds Lead In Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—T. E. Price, president of the home club, with a 37-39—76, led the field of 47 starters in the opening qualifying round yesterday of the third annual Miami-Biltmore amateur invitation gold tournament.

There were two contenders for second place, Everett G. Livesay, of Columbus, O., and Lee Fowler, of New York, both with 79's.

TOMORROW: THE TALKING EAR

ASSISTANT GETS JOB VACATED BY LAYDEN

By JESS CARVER

No matter what sort of a football situation is on the books for Duquesne University next fall, Joseph A. Bach has been elected chief worrier.

The former Notre Dame tackle star, for the past five years line coach under Elmer Layden on the Bluff, signed a one-year contract yesterday afternoon calling for his services as Layden's successor. Bach and the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university, met in the president's office, Joe signed the contract and that was that. The announcement of the hiring of Bach did not come as a surprise, for he has rated as head man of a list of more than 100 applicants for the job ever since Layden stepped out to go to Notre Dame.

MOVE POPULAR

It is doubtful if the signing of a football coach by any college or university anywhere ever met with more satisfaction that has Duquesne's retention of Bach. At the annual alumni dinner to the football squad, some weeks ago, the enthusiastic alumni shook Webster Hall, site of the affair, to its foundation as they pounded and stamped and cheered every time Bach's name was mentioned.

Since then, all manner of pressure was brought to bear in favor of Bach.

It's no bed of roses that the new coach has secured. Eleven varsity players will be missing from last year's squad; a tough nine-game schedule is in the making and Bach must accustom himself to working with a new backfield coach. No mention was made of this individual by Rev. Callahan yesterday, said aide to be secured later. There is a strong sentiment existent in favor of promoting Buff Donnelli, present freshman coach, to the position.

Bach played his prep school football at Chisholm, Minn., his home, and entered Carleton College, at Northfield, Minn., in 1922. He transferred to Notre Dame after the first semester and was a varsity star for the Irish, under Knute Rockne, in '23 and '24.

He was appointed line coach at Syracuse under Pete Reynolds in 1925, returned to Notre Dame to complete work for his degree of bachelor of science in 1926 and then went back to Syracuse, where he remained as aide to Lou Andreas, Reynolds' successor, in 1927 and 1928.

CAME HERE IN '29

When Bob Reagan went to Villanova in 1929 Bach was named to the vacant post and it was that season that the Dukes went through undefeated. Since then, the Dukes have captured 35 out of 50 games, with four ties thrown in.

Bach has developed some crackerjack linemen on the Bluff, his masterpiece being George Rado, all-eastern guard last fall. Others included Moon Clark, Mike Ferrera, Nick DeCarbo, Jim O'Donnell, Babe Kelleher, Al Kraknota, Armand Niccolai and Paul Abele.

Joe, an all-state fullback, basketball and track and field star during his high school days, is a fine squash and handball player, a good golfer (no matter who keeps score) and a great guy generally.

TO HONOR LAYDEN

The university's entire student body will assemble in the university gymnasium Thursday at 11 o'clock to pay parting tribute to Coach Layden, who is leaving for Notre Dame Saturday.

A program of speeches, cheers and music by the university band has been arranged by Adam DiVincenzo, chairman of the affair. The speakers will include the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of the university; Rev. M. J. Brannigan, vice president; Dr. Percy Kenryn Jones, faculty member; Edward Waldman, editor of the "Duke," student weekly, and Chairman DiVincenzo.

Serving the Willigs, league leaders, their first and only defeat last week in an Allegheny County League game, apparently did the I. K. S. passers little, if any good. Since then they have lost two games, bowing to Charleroi Saturday night and to the McCanns last night on the South Side Market House floor, 35 to 22.

Switala, McCann substitute forward, was the high scorer of the game, bagging 10 points. The lineup:

Local Man Faces Tourney Medalist

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 23.—Drew Johnston, of Pittsburgh, teed off this morning in the first round of match play for the Lakeworth golf championship over the Palm Beach Golf Club course. He is opposing Tommy Goodwin, 20-year-old Monroe, N. Y., star, in the title division. Johnston qualified yesterday with a card of 38-39—77.

Goodwin won the medal with a scintillating round of 33-33—66, three strokes under par. His card contained four birdies and he was one over par on only one hole. Arthur (Ducky) Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., returned to competitive play after an absence of two years and finished second with 34-34—68.

KECK AT LUNCHEON

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was a luncheon guest speaker of the Carnegie Rotary Club in its quarters at noon today, speaking on sports and the newspaper profession.

GRID STARS AT FINTEX

A team composed of Duquesne University football stars will meet Fintex, of the County League, at Foresters Hall tonight.

JACKETS PLAY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets are to meet the local Blue Ribbons in a North American Professional Lacrosse Association game here tonight.

The visitors, who have been beaten in every game away from home this season, find their lead in the league race seriously threatened. Although out in front by four points, the Jackets have played four more games than have the Ribbons. This means that the locals need win only two of their next four games to tie the Pittsburghers for the lead.

Chicago holds a 3-1 edge in its season series with the Pittsburgh. The Jackets beaten in Milwaukee Sunday night, are to play the Brewers here again tomorrow.

Matsuyama May Win Cue Title

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Kimrey Matsuyama, Japanese cue star from New York, either wins the national professional three-cushion championship or enters a four-way tie for the title tonight.

The outcome of the tournament depends on his match with Alfredo De Oro, of New York. If he beats Matsuyama, the 71-year-old Cuban veteran will go into the first place deadlock, but otherwise he can do no better than tie for fourth.

Kenney assured himself of his ranking at De Oro's expense last night. The Chicagoan beat the New Yorker, 50 to 47, in a 68-inning match. In yesterday's only other game, Arthur Woods was given close competition by Earle Lookabaugh but came out on top, 50 to 43, in 61 innings.

LUQUE IN FOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Adolfo Luque, of the signed contract of Adolfo Luque, 43-year-old Cuban relief pitcher, has been announced by the New York Giants today.

LANGLEY RISKS SCHOOL TITLE HOPES TODAY

LEADERS FACE REAL TEST IN SOUTH HILLS

By JULIUS LEVIN

The hopes of Langley High School to win the Section II championship of the City League rest on the outcome of its battle with South Hills High School on the latter's court this afternoon.

Both teams having scored victories over Perry, last year's champion in this division, the contest on the Tunnelites' floor looms as the most attractive one on the local schedule.

The Russell-coached quintet of Langley has scored four straight victories in Section II and if it succeeds in adding South Hills to its list of victories, it will have beaten two of the strongest teams in the circuit.

SOUTH HILLS UPSET

South Hills, however, is certain to display a strong front against the Langley combine despite the unexpected setback received at the hands of Allegheny last week. Coach Cutteback has a smooth-working floor machine at his disposal and it will have the advantage of playing on its home court. Very few City League teams have beaten South Hills on that floor.

The ability of South Hills to play its best game at home is borne out by its record against Perry High School. In nine games with the North Siders at South Hills, the Tunnelites have won the decision no less than eight times.

With a chance to deadlock Langley for the lead by taking today's game, South Hills is expected to make a determined bid for a victory. Its only chance to get back into the title fight depends on its showing against Langley.

Langley's record to date in Section II shows four victories. Carrick was defeated, 25-21; Allegheny Vocational, 25-17; Perry, 38-30, and Oliver, 43-13.

On the other hand, South Hills shows only the setback, Allegheny scoring a 38-37 triumph last week. This is the only victory Allegheny has scored in four starts.

South High School, defending champion in the City League and undefeated in 18 straight local league games, will be out to chalk up its fifth successive City League triumph of the season and its nineteenth in a row when it battles Westinghouse at the Market House in Section I.

FIFTH AT PEABODY

Fifth Avenue plays at Peabody and Allderdice goes to Connelley Trade School in other Section I games, while the remaining two attractions in Section II find Perry at Carrick and Allegheny at Allegheny Vocational.

Eleven sections out of the 19 enrolled in the W. P. I. A. L. offer their usual Tuesday programs. All of the divisions will be in action Friday afternoon and evening.

Although his basketball team is making a strong fight to retain the Section IV championship of the W. P. I. A. L., Moe Rubenstein, coach of the Bridgers, is not overlooking his football card for 1934. Rubenstein would like to schedule games for September 22, September 29 and November 17. Schools desiring these dates call or write Moe Rubenstein, Ambridge Senior High School, Ambridge, Pa.

The Central Catholic High School team is open for a game at home or abroad for Friday, February 2. Schools interested in arranging a basketball game call Hazel 2291.

Eddie Spotovich, of South, is leading the scorers in Section 1 with 66 points, and Merz, of Vocational, is riding in front of the Section II procession with 48 markers.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

After three quick, crowd-thrilling knockouts in Paris at the start of his ring career in 1928, Carnera is colliding with near-catastrophe in his Italian debut at Milan. His more experienced opponent, Islas, went down in the fifth round, but the referee compelled him to get up, ruling that the Negro had not been hit. Never yet having boxed more than four rounds in public, Primo "was getting more and more tired." . . .

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, Heavyweight Boxing Champion.

CHAPTER VII.

Islas went to his corner for the minute rest obviously worried and looked helplessly at me as though to say:

"What must I do?"

With a very light movement of my hand I signaled him: "Take it easy, I'm looking for a solution."

To top our bad luck, Islas jabbed Carnera's nose in the sixth round. And the large nasal appendage of Primo began to bleed in torrents. His face was covered with blood, which did not help much to make him look like a winner.

As my giant was resting after the end of the sanguinary sixth, and while I sponged him with plenty of water, he said to me:

Primo Carnera

"I can't continue, I can't lift my arms."

"Have courage," I replied, "there remain only four more rounds. Your opponent is much more tired than you, I think he is going to quit."

When the gong rang again, I seized Primo under the arms and literally pushed him to the battle . . .

Even if I live 100 years I will never forget those four last rounds. By what prodigy of persuasion could I keep Carnera fighting? . . . I talked to him about his mother—of all Italy that had its eyes on him—of Mussolini . . .

There was my giant dead with fatigue and only able to stand up, thanks to the energy I pumped into him from round to round; and there was Islas, apparently even more "all in" than Primo, sticking it out through the 10 rounds and losing the decision.

It was a beautiful "fight!" And the Italian press did not spare its sarcasm.

As for me after grazing catastrophe through my own fault I had the cheering consolation of having found out that—besides his qualities of courage and ambition that I had already discovered in Primo—the latter also possessed a resistance and a stamina rarely found in a novice.

In each bout, the Italian had shown new qualities, to say nothing of his actual pugilistic progress, which exceeded my hopes.

PROMOTER A SUICIDE

Unfortunately, as I had only too clearly anticipated, the real victim of that Islas affair was the promoter who, after having loyally settled all the expenses of his organization, found himself with a considerable deficit. I had done everything, however, to dissuade him from running such a financially burdensome fight.

It was with a profound sorrow that Primo and I learned several weeks later that the poor Carpegna had committed suicide, not being able to further fulfill all his obligations.

That tragic event permits me to testify to another good quality in Carnera and that is: His Heart.

More than a year later, when we were in America, we learned that a group of friends in Milan were trying to get together a sum sufficient to raise a funeral monument to Carpegna. Primo subscribed by himself, cabling to Italy a donation so generous that it probably completed the collection in itself.

Carnera's disappointing win over Islas had in no way dimmed the already extraordinary popularity of Primo in France, while it had allowed me to prove that the giant Italian was capable of "staying" 10 rounds of three minutes each in case of need.

With that Islas match our first troubles with the boxing authorities began. In order to be allowed to fight in Italy (since Primo had been naturalized a French citizen more than six months before), it was necessary for him to get an Italian professional license at Milan.

Henceforth that Boxing Federation of Rome had us under thumb; that unfortunate license was to deprive us of tens of thousands of francs, and the troubles were to begin:

Before that Milan misadventure, Carnera had boxed three times in Paris under the jurisdiction of the French Boxing Federation.

Eight days after his return from Italy, Carnera boxed the Marseillian, Barick, at the Velodrome d'Hiver, winning as easily and as free from dangers as he did in his first three matches. This time the Carnera K. O. occurred in the fourth round.

RIDICULOUS SITUATION

The French newspapers did not restrict their eulogies on the progress of Carnera. His reputation grew from day to day. Each fight increased his experience in the ring—his confidence in himself, his precision and the technical qualities of his ringmanship. Everything, therefore, seemed for the best in the best of all pugilistic worlds when suddenly we received a letter from the Italian boxing federation fining Primo 1,000 liras for having boxed in a foreign country without having received permission from Rome.

One will appreciate how ridiculous and fantastic such a fine was if one considers that Carnera was a French citizen by naturalization, and that he had already boxed three bouts in France without having received the slightest warning. I remember that, at that time, Primo said to me:

"Well, send the 1,000 liras to the Italian Federation; they need it more than I, but this is the end; I will never again fight in Italy."

Times and conditions change, luckily for Carnera, who as a world's champion is welcome indeed in his beloved Italy.

Alas, if we had decided not to show in any country where we had been, or would become, victims of official injustice, Carnera would have had to hang up his gloves for good!

Moreover, Primo was not to be through so easily with the Italian Federation, for the latter, as we will see later, counted on taking from him almost 60,000 francs more, and this on conditions absolutely revolting.

I will skip rapidly over the exhibitions and minor matches during 1929, except to confirm that my idea of manufacturing a champion continued to follow its course, inexorably, and in a most mathematical way. Carnera won all his combats without ever receiving a genuinely damaging punch. He trained unceasingly, acquiring more nimbleness, more speed and more precision.

FIRST GENUINE TEST

If my line of managerial conduct had not been decided upon a long time before, the following experience would have led me back infallibly to the method which I employed from the first appearances of my fistic foal. This fight caused Carnera and me much woe, late in April, 1929. Here is the story:

An offer had come to me from Leipzig, Germany, to match Primo with the German, Franz Diener, for a most interesting purse. Learning that Diener was a boxer on the decline who wanted the money from one last fight before quitting the ring in order to buy a butcher shop, I resolved to make a trial and to let Primo fight on his own merits.

Diener, moreover, did not hit hard enough to do the slightest harm to my man and I was certain that the straight lefts of Carnera, which were growing each day more effective, could not fail to whip the ring-worn German after several repeated blows.

Carnera had been trained in a most thorough manner in order to be sure that he could fight 10 rounds in good form, in case he was not able to stop the German before the limit.

This first serious test in Carnera's career was to me, therefore like a sort of halting point—a means of measuring the progress accomplished, of casting a look behind over the road covered with a speed that I considered remarkable.

Largely because Primo has never received a truly dangerous punch since his ring debut and escaped severe punishment, he had improved twice as fast as the average green heavyweight. His morale, his confidence, his stamina, were entirely intact.

The night of the Diener fight I was in Carnera's corner completely tranquil, except for the inevitable restlessness which is only natural in a manager before a serious battle, no matter how probable victory may appear. If I had thought of the events that were to follow, I would certainly have been in a different state of mind.

HORSE TRAINER ARRESTED

International News Service.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Jan. 23.—The arrest of Harry Cooper, a well known Canadian horse trainer, by federal narcotic officials here today was accepted as a determined bid by the Florida State Racing Commission to drive all users of narcotics and drugs from the ranks of local horsemen.

Cooper was arrested early today when a federal and state authorities raided his home at Hialeah. Besides Cooper, the authorities arrested Miss Catherine Treon, who was in the house at the time of the raid. Both were immediately arraigned before Justice of the Peace Henry L. Oppenborn. Cooper's bond was set at $5,000 and that of Miss Treon at $2,000.

More than 100 grains of alleged narcotics, hypodermic needles and other equipment and alleged formulas with directions for use on race horses were seized, officials reported.

WALLACE BEATS KLICK

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, got the nod from Referee Tommy Mulgrew in a free slugging affair with Frankie Klick, of San Francisco, at Public Hall last night after 10 fast rounds. The recent conqueror of Kid Chocolate shook the Clevelander twice with blows that looked good for victory. Klick weighed 132¾; Wallace 131¾.

COACHES TO SPEAK

Max Hannan, coach at Carnegie Tech, and Jonas Ingram, coach at Taylor Allderdice High school, will address the members of the Beth Shalom Junior Men's Club tomorrow evening at the Beth Shalom Social Hall. The meeting is listed for 8:30.

NET TEAM SELECTED

[illegible] Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Four Davis Cup players, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, of Paris, and Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, of Arcachon, have been chosen to form the French lawn tennis team to represent France in the American indoor championships. The team will sail for the United States February 21.

FAVORITES WIN IN SQUASH TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Favored contenders breezed through third afternoon of play yesterday in the annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation singles squash racquets tourney. Picking up loose ends of the first and second brackets, aspirants representing various city clubs reduced the field by 11 until today, with seven round two and three tussles looming for the dinner period, the unwieldly original starting group of 44 has shrunken to little more than a score.

Four of Pittsburgh's inter-city standard bearers are slated for action this evening. Henry Blaxter, Keystone stylist, opens the card by tangling with Alan Humphreys, home contestant, while Dave Gilmore, crack Allegheny Country Club portsider, engages cagy Quizzer Woods of the same organization. Charley Fagan, K. A. C. strategist, engages the writer, Paul Sullivan, and Ed Seifert battles George Lockhart, P. G. C. luminary.

McCook Miller, surprise victor over Joe Oliver on Sunday, led the pack into frame four last night when Irvin Goodman, tennis flash, defaulted just one point shy of triumph. The summary:

First round—Charles A. Fagan, Jr., defeated A. W. Schmidt, 15-9, 15-10, 15-13; D. M. Gilmore won from W. S. McClintock by default; Stan Quay won from T. Howe Nimick by default; Henry V. Blaxter, Jr., defeated Robert T. Lampus, 15-9, 15-10, 15-11; Edward E. Seifert won from L. W. Young by default.

Second round—W. McCook Reed won from Graham McCargo by default; J. K. Ebbert defeated James Bovard, 15-8, 15-13, 15-9; Frank S. McClintock won from Stan Quay by default; William D. Bickel defeated Dr. Jean L. O'Loughlin, 15-6, 17-16, 15-11; Dr. David L. O'Loughlin defeated Robert McClintic, 15-7, 15-8, 15-7.

MATCHES TODAY

5 p. m.—H. V. Blaxter vs. A. S. Humphreys, C. A. Woods, Jr., vs. D. M. Gilmore.

5:30 p. m.—Charles A. Fagan, Jr., vs. Paul G. Sullivan, Lawrence Semans vs. W. C. Robinson, Jr.

6 p. m.—Karl G. Wolfe vs. G. C. Kennedy; J. K. Ebbert vs. W. B. Wolfe.

Time to be fixed—George Lockhart vs. E. E. Seifert.

GROVERS BEAT ALLEGHENY

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Battling on even terms until six minutes from the finish, Grove City's Crimson five last night put on a late scoring drive to pull out to a 37-25 basketball win over Allegheny College.

Allegheny led through most of the first half until three quick goals just before the whistle tied the score at 15-15. The lineup:

Former Cue Champ Wins in Tourney

Earl White, North Side cueist, who held the West Penn pocket billiard title in 1922 and 1926, advanced in the current championship tournament last night by defeating James Williams, of Squirrel Hill, 125 to 44, at the Ritz parlors.

White had a high run of 16, with Williams getting one of 11. The match went 30 innings.

In tonight's play Ed Andrews, of McKees Rocks, takes on E. J. McMinn, of East Liberty.

Bobcats Defeat Waynesburg, 42-37

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—West Virginia Wesleyan College basket shooters won a brilliant game from the Waynesburgh Yellow Jackets here last night, 42 to 37, after being defeated at Waynesburg a few days ago, 51 to 34.

Early in the second period Leonard Barnum, Wesleyan's freshman center, scored nine points in rapid order to give the Bobcats a comfortable lead. The

It has been y'ars and y'ars since a Wash-Jeff basketball varsity has been able to win a game here in Pittsburgh or to defeat a Pittsburgh team, but this year's Prexy has a swell chance to pop the old jinxer tonight.

The Presidents meet Carnegie Tech in the Skibo gymnasium this evening and the outlook is distinctly of a rosy hue as far as the Red and Black is concerned. Just when it appeared as if the Techs might finish out in front, an attack of grip laid low Capt. Red Silverman. He was ordered to bed last night and will remain there for an indefinite period.

In Silverman's place, Coach Max Hannum has decided to start Fred Freedel, a veteran on the squad, who has been kept out of the varsity lineup for the past two seasons only because of poor eyesight. Freedel is a smart head and a good shot, but he can't see 'em so well.

Otherwise, the Carnegie lineup will be the same as started against the Dukes last week, with Macalka and Gibson at the forwards, Ewalt at center and Ted Rigg at guard.

Coach Adam Saunders, Wash-Jeff's young mentor, is expected to stick by the lineup he's favored so far this year, using Lieber and Headley at the forwards, Barkell at center and Davis and Grable at the guards. The varsity game will get under way at 8:30 o'clock, preceded by a clash between the rival freshman fives at 7:15.

In other games tonight Westminster entertains Edinboro Teachers at New Wilmington, though it will be no pink tea for the Teachers, and Waynesburg continues its swing into West Virginia by bucking into Glenville at Glenville.

Wes Bennett, of Westminster, retains his lead in the Tri-State Conference scoring race last week. He shows 42 points.

In the meantime, the University of Pittsburgh track team is hard at work for the first indoor meet of the season Thursday and Friday when the cream of the district will compete at the Pitt track house.

Names in the News

SPORT VIGNETTES

Pittsburgh is host to one of those outside-the-pale rasslers, John Evko, Croatian, who says he stands ready to meet Jim Londos, Jim Browning, Joe Savoldi or any of the others. . . . He has been appearing on the mat for 13 years and has met Lewis, Joe Malciewicz and Wladek Zbyszko, among the stars. . . . But what's the use of wasting words? . . . If he doesn't join up with the troupes, he won't get any work, and, if he does, he'll have to lose to what he terms "bums" any time it's his turn to lose. . . . That's what wrestling is. . . . It's a business in which the so-called outlaws just don't eat cake with the other fellows and there is neither rhyme nor profit in being an idealist or a guy who is too proud to lose when to lose is the thing.

Max Schmeling, back in the good old United States of American dollars—what's left of them—comments upon the sorry condition in the heavyweight ranks. . . . They're all a bunch of hams, himself included, is his observation. . . . Carnera's the champion, and even Mussolini wasn't such a much-a pleased over his sorry exhibition of 15 rounds with Paulino in Rome recently. . . . Baer, he thinks, is just as good as Schmeling made him look in their fight last summer and won't improve, and the reason he looked good that night was because the German Maxie was so terrible. . . . Tommy Loughran is washed up, but, say, after that Paulino fight, you have to give him a chance against Carnera. . . . As for Schmeling, he says if he doesn't beat Steve Hamas in their bout in Philadelphia next month he'll take the next boat back to Germany and hang 'em up. . . . Beg pardon, that should read he'll let the next boat take him. . . . Silly to think of Maxie taking a boat.

Uhlan, the old champion trotter, is still alive and well, going onto his thirtieth year, retired to graze on the C. K. G. Billings farm in California . . . Amateur tennis authorities are girding for a fight on the open tournament proposition, which will come up at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association here next month . . . The reason Jim Londos will not wrestle here next Friday night is because he has been ordered to go through with a bout with Joe Stecher in Detroit that night . . . They do say Ellsworth Vines netted himself more than $20,000 as his bit for his first week as a professional tennis player . . . Who wants to be an amateur, anyway?

Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, is doing a comeback in the hard coal region . . . He lost his first bout to Harry Fuller last week, and wants to meet him again . . . Jack King, well known to the local fans, boxes a return bout with Solly Dukelsky in Chicago tomorrow night . . . He won their first meeting . . . Believe it or not, Maxie Rosenbloom says he's going to save his money from now on, and that he had a good time on what he squandered, which is more than a lot of folks who were ruined in the stock market can say.—HARRY KECK.

Petrolle 'Made' Ross a Champion, Now Fights Him

By BILL CORUM

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Up in the Bronx Coliseum on Wednesday night, Old Man Billy Petrolle and Lightweight Champion Barney Ross battle before what promises to be a whopper crowd. And thereby hangs a tale, told by Art Winch, part manager of the champion. It goes back to the days when Winch was a trainer. Manager Jack Hurley was in the habit of sending Petrolle to him to train now and then.

Petrolle would be scheduled to fight in Chicago. Hurley would have business elsewhere. So he would send him down to Art, telling him:

"Now don't you have anything to do with anybody in Chicago but Winch. You go to him and you stay with him until I get there."

STICKS TO ORDERS

The first time it happened, when Petrolle reported in Chicago, Winch said:

"Okay, Bill, I'll get you a room here in the hotel."

Insisted the Fargo Express:

"No, Jack said for me to stay with you and I'll sleep right here."

Which would have been okay, says Winch:

"Except there wasn't but one bed in the room and Bill would go to bed at 9 o'clock and roll up in all the covers."

The years rolled on. Petrolle and Winch drifted apart, the latter became part manager of Ross, and then one night Bill and Barney were fighting on the same card in Kansas City. Ross was just a kid and up to then had been inclined to take the fight business lightly. After the bouts Petrolle came over to Ross in the dressing room and told him:

ADVICE TO BARNEY

"You've got a fellow here who is heart and soul with any fighter he handles. You handle yourself like a good prospect. If you'll do what Art tells you and keep yourself in shape, you might one day be the lightweight champion."

Which caused Winch to remark:

"From that night on Barney was more serious about his boxing and training and paid more attention to advice. I have always thanked Petrolle for it, and so does Barney."

PIRATES FARM JACK CONNOLLY

The Pirate roster was reduced to 31 players today in the announcement by the home office that Pitcher John Connolly, a native of Duquesne, had been farmed out to the Springfield (O.) club of the Mid-Atlantic League.

The Pittsburgh club announced Saturday it had made a formal hookup with the Springfield team. Connolly starred on the slab for Springfield last year when the club was under the leadership of Jake Pitler, a Pittsburgh youth and a former Pirate second baseman. Jake will lead the Scranton club of the NYP League this year.

The Duquesne hurler has so much promise that Manager Gibson wishes him to be situated in a spot where he will be sure of regular mound duty.

It is reported that Grover Hartley, a Pirate coach of the past two seasons, would manage the Springfield team.

FIGHT RESULTS

At McKeesport—Joey Bazzone defeated Domonic Mancini, 10 rounds; Billy Holt defeated Joey Speigal, 6 rounds; Josh Illings, Perry, defeated Jess Adams, 6 rounds; Farmer Bill Schwerin defeated Kid Berry, 4 rounds.

STOCK MARKET PRICES MOVE IRREGULARLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Financial markets continued to undergo some minor adjustments today but, on the whole, the speculative approach was still optimistic and most prices displayed an upward slant.

Stocks were a bit irregular in the early hours, dipping and rallying moderately. Leading issues, though, found buyers on the reactions. The activity was somewhat under that of the previous session. The dollar performed sedately in foreign exchange dealings and was only slightly lower in terms of sterling and the gold currencies. The grains were almost unchanged, but cotton, rubber and silver futures were a trifle heavy. Prime investment bonds were steady to firm and secondary loans lagged.

Share gainers of fractions to around a point included Allied Chemical, United States Steel, du Pont, American Can, American Smelting, United States Smelting, Douglas Aircraft, American Metals, Union Pacific, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Houston Oil, Standard Oil of California, United States Industrial Alcohol, Sears-Roebuck, Case and American Commercial Alcohol. American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, North American and a number of others were about unchanged.

Steps toward the enactment of the administration's monetary program were being watched closely in brokerage houses and, in some boardrooms, the opinion was expressed that market hesitancy might be expected until the gold bill gets final congressional approval.

Details of the treasury's new financing, expected to be made public tomorrow, were being awaited with interest by the financial sector which has been doing considerable guessing on the amount and terms. Estimates of the total ranged from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 and it was generally believed that orthodox methods would be used in the borrowing with issues of securities maturing in not more than two years. One-year maturities, it was figured in some banking quarters, might be on a 1⅞ to 2 per cent basis, with slightly higher rates for two-year paper.

Earnings reports of 1933 continued to bring cheer to trading circles. The United States Leather Company, for instance, had net profits for the year of $981,019, compared with a net loss in 1932 of $1,806,385. On top of Southern Pacific's sharp earnings recovery, reported yesterday, Norfolk and Western was another bright spot with a net profit for the year of $22,301,140, equal to $15.20 a common share, as against a 1932 net of $16,811,918, or $11.30 a share. The declaration of a $2 extra dividend by the Norfolk and Western directors was, consequently not entirely unexpected.

Flurries in some of the stock groups were attributed partly to renewed hopes of the early settlement of some of the NRA codes. The approval of Secretary Ickes, with minor modifications, of the oil purchasing and marketing agreement was viewed as constructive, as was the apparent progress being made in Washington discussions of the copper code.

GRAINS TAKE NEW SLIDE

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—A fresh downward trend developed in grain values early today. Predictions of a cold wave in northern areas failed to stimulate buying. Opening unchanged to ½ off, wheat later sagged all around. Corn started unchanged to ¼ down, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Wheat soon suffered setbacks of nearly a cent a bushel.

Corn and oats averaged slightly lower with wheat.

Provisions derived steadiness from talk that falling off in western receipts of hogs indicated the end of enormous country marketings.

Public Debt America's Handicap

By B. C. FORBES

LOOMING AHEAD of America is a public debt enormously greater than the total piled up even during the World War.

Mr. Forbes

The interest bill, to say nothing of the principal, which you and I, as taxpayers, will have to meet will reach unprecedented figures.

Where must the money come from?

From business activities of one kind or another, broadly speaking.

Is it not clear, therefore, that a main concern of Washington should be the well-being, the health, the prosperity of business?

NOT EVERYBODY at Washington, however, realizes that elementary fact.

MANY THEORISTS now reveling in temporary authority at Washington act and talk as if the government can, by and in and of itself, manufacture and sustain prosperity.

The government is not an earner. It pays no taxes, only levies, collects and disburses them. The government, by and in and of itself, earns nothing to support people; it first has to be supported by the people, by you and me.

The government can give employment to millions only temporarily; permanent full-flood employment is dependent upon sound, vigorous, profitable business.

THAT THERE was the most urgent and direst need for governmental intervention on a large scale to ameliorate the appalling unemployment, which stalked the land in 1932-33 no sane citizen can deny.

President Roosevelt, in taking office, lost not one day in launching heroic battle against the threatening forces of destruction. His dynamic leadership electrified the nation.

THE TIME has now come, however, to take stock calmly of what is now happening, of what is planned, and of the probable outcome—no disrespect to the President is entailed by accepting his repeated plea for honest criticism of governmental policies and practices.

Questions are being asked privately by responsible citizens which should be asked and aired publicly.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Has the governmental decree to put four million idle to work, in the space of a few weeks, been carried out efficiently and economically?

Have those entrusted throughout the country with the spending of this money exercised as great prudence as they would have exercised had they been using their own money?

What happened to cause the wholly unexpected announcement that drastic curtailment be effected almost as soon as the spending machinery attained full steam?

Has something undisclosed to the public happened?

Or, does Washington reason that business conditions and prospects have improved sufficiently to warrant the conclusion that the hundreds of thousands to be dropped hurriedly from public payrolls will be absorbed by employers?

HAVE WASHINGTON officials formulated definite plans for raising the ten billions—the ten thousand millions—called for by pressing recovery plans?

If so, why aren't the existing uncertainty and speculation on this score removed? Is it the Treasury's intention to dissipate a great part of its two billion "stabilization" fund in efforts to hold down the international value of the dollar to approximately 60 cents if the rest of the world persists in attaching a greater value to the American dollar?

Or, will attention be confined for the most part to domestic currency developments?

WHAT DOES the President, what does Congress propose to do about our uncollected war debts? Simply forget them? Or institute as earnest efforts to collect them as you or I would if debts were owed us? As a matter of fact, it is to you and I, the taxpayers, that the debts are owed.

What does the President, what does Congress, propose to do about the present problem of tariffs?

FINALLY, does the President feel disposed to impress upon all officials and bureaucrats that, since last recovery is dependent upon revival of business, every governmental department, commission, bureau and officeholder should give first consideration to doing everything possible to hearten and help business?

How about it?

CHAPTER XVII

"Have you anything else to ask?"

"Just one thing more. Who is Cat's-Eye Annie?"

Paige caught his breath sharply and for a moment his confusion was perfectly apparent. Then he recovered himself.

"I have no idea," he said coldly. "That sounds more like one of your friends than one of mine."

Paige rose and reached for his hat, but Anderson motioned him back.

"There are a number of questions which I must insist upon your answering," he said.

"Now, Paige," began the inspector abruptly. "An extremely important and serious matter has been brought to our attention. If you have any explanation which will account for it, we should like to hear it."

Paige blanched at the cutting quality of Anderson's voice. But the inspector contented himself with pulling a jewel case from his pocket and snapping back its lid.

Synopsis

Sonia (Sunny) Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph (Ranny) Paige, is found hanging by a silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. An autopsy reveals that Sunny had been suffocated first with the tassel of the cord and then hung. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, says the night of the tragedy was her night off and that Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, was to spend the evening with Sunny. Inspector Anderson is furious when Ranny employs Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, to investigate the tragedy. Anderson and Judson decide to forget their antagonism and work together. Anderson questions Mrs. Phelps. A face peers in the window. Anderson thinks Mrs. Phelps tampered with Sunny's desk when the police sought the intruder. Paige is questioned again.

Now Go On

Pressed for Money

The light played over a magnificent pearl pendant set in a cluster of diamonds. Carroll and I both leaned forward with a murmur of involuntary admiration.

"What did you estimate its value to be, Mr. Paige?" asked Anderson, his voice a soft purr but his eyes as hard as steel.

Paige shook his head.

Anderson drew a paper from his pocket.

"Here is a record of your transactions on the stock market for last Friday, Saturday and Monday. On Friday, I find that your brokers called upon you for $10,000 collateral. You begged for 24 hours' grace. On Saturday you were informed that there had been a further and more serious break in the market and that you would be sold out if you did not deposit $50,000. Again you begged for time, assuring them that you would positively have the money there on Tuesday morning. And because your credit is good and out of regard for your father, your brokers themselves advanced this amount. On Tuesday morning—yesterday morning, that is—and only a few hours after your wife's death, I find that you did deposit this amount in cash. Mr. Paige, where did you get that $50,000?"

"I have nothing to say," answered Paige stubbornly. "You found out all this. Find out some more."

Accused of Theft

Then Anderson rose to his feet and towered over the younger man.

"You cur," he thundered, each word cutting like a blow of a whip. "You thought we wouldn't find out the truth—that we wouldn't appraise this jewel and find that the pearl is nothing more than cheap paste although the diamonds are genuine.

"And you, to get yourself out of your troubles on the stock market, stole the real pearl and substituted this one in its place!

"Did you kill your wife when she discovered the trade—or did she go to her death ignorant of the fact that her husband was a thief?"

Randolph Paige was as white as a sheet and he trembled like a leaf.

"I didn't kill her! I didn't kill her!" he protested. "I know nothing about it."

"Very well," said Anderson coldly. "What are the answers to my questions?"

But Paige shook his head like a man in a trance.

"I will tell you," he said, "but let me consult my lawyer first. Surely I am permitted to have the advice of counsel."

"Of reputable counsel, yes. But I suppose you mean the advice of that old reprobate Kirk Judson. Now I begin to see why he's in this case. What's he supposed to be doing for you, Paige? It's crooked, I know, or Judson wouldn't be mixed up in it. Is he blackmailing you or are you paying him to help you out of this mess? I assume that he's been to Mrs. Brooks trying to recover the pearl before we found it out."

Paige did not reply.

Paige Warned

Then Anderson did a surprising thing.

"I'm not going to arrest you right now," he said quietly, "although I have plenty of reason to. You're being followed so there's no use for you to try to run away. I could make you tell me all I want to know right now, but I don't want you to come into court and say you were threatened into a confession. You can consult this third-rate detective or a good lawyer, if you wish, but I can advise you that the only thing for a man in your place to do is to make a clean breast of it. The truth alone can help you now, whether you are innocent or guilty.

"I want to see you again sometime tomorrow afternoon. I will let you know exactly where and at what time. If you don't show up I shall order your arrest and charge you with the murder of your wife. As to what I shall do when you do come—well, that depends entirely on how reasonable an answer you can give to my questions."

Paige grabbed his hat and literally fled from the room.

"Whew," exclaimed Anderson, pulling out his handkerchief and mopping his brow, "I think we've done a good day's work, boys. Suppose you both run along. I still have my reports to make out and I'm almost dead now. You put in some good work at Washington, Carroll. You have the makings of a good man if you will keep your head."

Carroll flushed with pleasure.

"I imagine that Mrs. Brooks referred to the pearl," continued Anderson. "It's reasonable to suppose that Paige got money out of her, maybe left the pearl as security.

"Do you think Paige really killed his wife, Andy?" I asked, my curiosity getting the better of my tact.

"Well, Kay," answered the inspector, pulling out a late paper from his coat pocket, "see this headline from your sheet: Arrest Due in Paige Case! I think it's not so far wrong, at that. The next 24 hours will see our first arrest. Unless something very unexpected happens, it will be Mr. Randolph Paige!"

When I awoke the next morning I found myself in a gray world of mist and fog. There was a chill wind blowing in from the Chesapeake and I shivered as I grabbed for my dressing gown. It was a dismal day, in keeping with the dreary thoughts of what was in store for me.

Day of Funeral

This was the day of the Paige funeral—the day when beautiful Sonia Paige was to be laid away in the earth and forever shut off from all the pleasures of youth and happiness and love. Queer that anything as fragrant and joyous as this young girl could die! Impossible to imagine those laughing eyes and that smiling mouth twisted into the agony of death—and such a death!

The morning papers carried the whole story—Paige's shattered alibi, his indiscreet romance with the questionable Mrs. Brooks—but, oh, so skillfully worded with so many "it is alleged's" and "it is said's"—for the Paige family was very rich and very prominent and there must be no chance of offending this aristocratic family if events should prove that Randolph was unjustly suspected.

But of the substitution of the pearl in the Czarina's pendant there was not a word. Anderson evidently was moving with equal caution and conducting his inquiries in silence.

I lost no time in dressing and driving out to the scene of the murder. Anderson was already there, minus his customary pleasant smile and frowning with anxiety. Dickey Carroll was tagging along after him as urbane and genial and as full of exuberance as if the thermometer were not hovering around 40 degrees and everybody's else spirits close down to zero.

Someone had built a great roaring fire in the library and the officers stationed on duty at the various entrances were making as many excuses as possible to come in and snatch a bit of its warmth.

The Inspector had drawn a table and an armchair up in front of the glow and was reading a sheaf of papers as I entered.

Anderson Puzzled

He said good-morning to me and then seeing that the others had withdrawn for a moment, he laid his papers aside.

"Kay," he said confidentially, "just what do you think about Paige? Do you think that we have enough to justify holding him? I swear I don't know what to do. It is perfectly clear to me that he knows a lot that he hasn't told us."

"Andy," I answered, terribly flattered that he should have consulted me in the matter, "of course, a lot of married men, and particularly young society men carry on these 'affairs.' They mean infidelity, naturally, but not necessarily murder. You can hardly blame Paige for lying under the circumstances; he could hardly tell on the lady, you know. And the Paiges are awfully prominent people. You wouldn't want to get in Dutch with them. Ranny has some powerful friends who would rally to his aid. He strikes me as being a weak fellow, even dissolute, but not vicious. I imagine that he quarreled with his wife and stole her pearl and all that—but I doubt that he had any hand in her murder."

"I'm not so certain," replied Anderson. "He's just as bright as a brand new penny, and he's the very one to have arranged that thing to look like suicide. We have no idea what his relations with his wife were; apparently she knew of his infidelity and she may have been getting ready to take some kind of action against him."

At this moment, the others joined us and we dropped our conversation. Then there came a knock at the library door and Carroll sprang to open it.

FIRST AID, WESTERN FRONT

The World War was fought not only on European soil. The supremacy of the Allies on the sea resulted in the loss of Germany's colonial possessions. Those in Africa were seized by the British and French, with the aid of Belgians and Boers.

Australia and Japan conquered German colonies in the Pacific. Japan also captured the German naval base, Kiauchau, in the Far East. Great Britain sliced portions off Turkey, Germany's ally, by liberating Arabia, Egypt, Mesopotania, Palestine

For the first time was experienced warfare in the air. Dropping bombs with poisonous gas is a horrible possibility which might wipe out whole civilizations

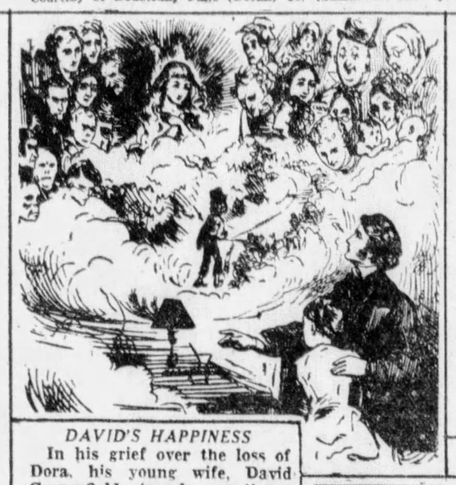
RESPIRATION—IMPORTANT PHASE OF METABOLISM

Respiration is the process by which the cell protoplasm takes in oxygen for combustion and releases the waste products, chiefly CO_2 and water. The air after passing through the nose to the pharnyx, is drawn through the windpipe (trachea) and its branches (bronchial tubes, left and right) toward the lungs: bags of elastic, spongy tissue. The bronchi divide into countless bronchioli, these into microscopic twigs, ending in tiny sacks, the alveoli (above right). Each alveolus is supplied with thin-walled blood vessels, capillaries, receiving from pulmonary artery, the blood which gives up CO_2 and H_2O into the alveolus, and takes in O_2 instead. This blood passes then into the pulmonary vein which carries it to the heart for distribution in the body.

Air is taken into lungs by extension of thoracic cavity (inhalation) raising ribs and lowering diaphragm when vacuum is created in lungs. Air is forced out by opposite movement (exhalation), compressing the lungs. These two phases of breathing are performed by rhytmical contraction, relaxation of muscles of ribs and diaphragm according to stimuli from respiratory center of nervous system (in medulla, lower part of brain). If diaphragm contracts out of harmony with ribs, hiccoughs result. (Gen. Science)



DAVID'S HAPPINESS

In his grief over the loss of Dora, his young wife, David Copperfield travels, continues writing and becomes famous. Later, he discovers his true feeling for Agnes Wickfield, his childhood playmate and guiding spirit. Their marriage is blessed with children. Reviewing his life, all characters he has met pass in his memory. He is happy with Agnes at his side. (English Literature).

PROPER LIGHT IMPORTANT

We see an object when light rays travel from it to our eyes. Too strong light (glare) is injurious. Pupils of eyes, by contraction, expansion (above) regulate amount of light admitted. Homes need 0.5 (hall), 4 (desk) up to 12-foot candles (sewing) light intensity. Lighting must be suitable in color and steady. (General Science)

CELLULOSE, MAIN CONSTITUENT OF WOOD-PULP MANUFACTURE

Wood is made up of cellulose [$(C_6H_{10}O_5)$ X], carbohydrates, cemented together in long fibres by lignin, a gummy substance.

Paper pulp (basic material of paper), is made mostly of wood cellulose dissolving, removing lignin and other undesirable matter by "digesting," cooking chips of unbarked wood under pressure with solution of calcium, bisulphite, Ca (HS03) 2 (sulphite pulp), sodium hydroxide, NaOH (soda pulp); or caustic soda (NaOH) and sodium sulphide (Na2S), sulphate pulp. Cheaper paper deteriorating in air, light is made from mechanical pulp obtained by separating wood fibres by abrasion.

Above: A three-pocket pulpwood grinder which reduces wood to pulp. Water admitted under high pressure upon a piston forces pulpwood against revolving grindstone.

Cotton is nearly pure cellulose and shows as flat twisted band under the microscope (left); it is readily distinguished from wool (a nitrogenous substance) and from silk (an emulsion secreted by silk worm). (Chemistry)

No Happy Days From a Judge

Official opinion of New York's court set in that legal figure in the form.

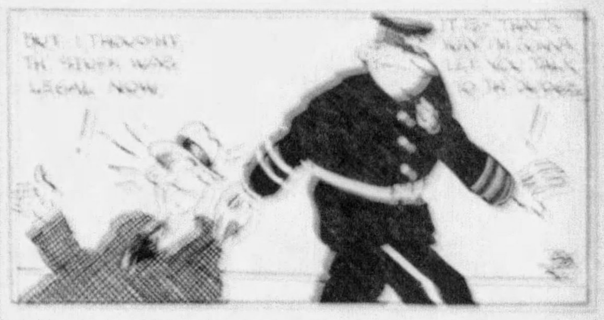
The avenue names its rank, the crushing form of doom, the breaking of crockery and the hearse, formal conclusion of the definitive expeditions.

There was Factory Worker Nat Gallop in the three minutes that was in the hands of the Judge Yeah. There was a minister, Rev. Dear, a fat cashier, Isadore Dear, the loving parent in the cases particular.

And finally, there was respect and social recognition in the Judge's indictment. Okay, it's The Bug the leather Nut.

We shall never forget the night that Nottingham said, "Keep it clean, Lower as I can recognize you."

We pushed our pen right up to the cashier's cheek. Nottingham's hat darted forth from the dining waist and rested on Hess.



on the beaver. It was the time a man actually cut a black eye from running into a door.

With 50,000 pedestal speaks rolling the way of all flesh we don't know what New York will do with its brownstone fronts.

Once again they become a vacant real estate problem. They will have set back on their American basements and await another prohibitory amendment to the Judging Constitution.

The ultimate consumer is also in for a change of venue. When the police back you up for loitered footwork you are in worse than a salamander on an icebox. They call an ambulance all right. But you don't travel in gorgeous Oriental style to a hospital. They take you to the station house.

The precinct surgeon smells your breath. If he pronounces you man and whiff you are carooned into a cell. In the morning the magistrate stakes you to 30 days on The Island.

That's because it's legal now. They give you 30 days in which to mourn for the same number of good old nights. Things have changed in New York. We just give you a little tip on decorum and etiquet in case you are thinking of coming on and defiecking the town.

If you walk slowly and tread softly you are all right. But if you rock on your heels they put you in a jug until your contents evaporate.

Let's Go the Limit!

The Roosevelt Birthday Ball to Aid Infantile Paralysis Patients Deserves Strong Support.

Children who have been crippled by infantile paralysis touch the hearts of all who see them and inspire the wish that something might be done to help them.

Something can be done.

And something will be done if the people of Pittsburgh respond heartily to the appeal for support for the Roosevelt Birthday Ball to be held at the William Penn Hotel on January 30.

The proceeds of this and the 4,999 other entertainments that are to be given in the United States on that date in honor of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's fifty-second birthday are to be used in establishing physiotherapy departments in hospitals for the treatment of infantile paralysis sufferers.

Physiotherapy has worked wonders in improving the condition of the victims of this cruel disease. But as yet comparatively few hospitals are equipped to give the treatment. And the hospitals are in no shape right now to finance the establishment of new departments. So we must come to their aid.

Let us aid them to the limit of our ability through our support of the Roosevelt Birthday Ball.

Here is a splendid opportunity to do honor to the President of the United States—one of the most popular of all our Presidents—by contributing to a philanthropy that is very dear to his heart.

We shall be paying a tribute of respect on his birthday to a great and beloved leader who by his vision and courage is leading us out of the slough of despond.

We shall be helping to restore to health and happiness a multitude of little children, afflicted as Mr. Roosevelt was, but lacking at the present time the facilities for treatment.

And we shall be treating ourselves to a very smart and agreeable entertainment that is likely to be memorable—for the prospects are that this will be the largest social function of comparable character ever given in Pittsburgh.

There will be other amusements—amusements of the first quality—in addition to dancing. Music will be furnished by the leading band in the United States Army; it is being sent to Pittsburgh to serve as an orchestra.

We heartily recommend to Pittsburghers that they buy tickets for this attractive philanthropy—as many as they can afford—whether they can go to the entertainment or not.

Politics vs. Aviation

Feeble Explanations Fail to Justify Raid On Splendid System Which Is Nation's Second Line of Defense.

When Daniel C. Roper, the Secretary of Commerce, assures the public that the summary removal of nearly all the veteran experts throughout the airways division of the aeronautics branch are "furloughs and not dismissals," he stoops to a disgraceful quibble.

To remove these veteran experts from their highly technical tasks and condemn them to AN INDEFINITE FURLOUGH WITHOUT PAY, deprives the federal government of their services, stops their salaries and forces them to seek immediate employment elsewhere for the support of themselves and their families.

To hold out to these experts the indefinite promise that somewhere, somehow, and sometime they may be given temporary employment under the Public Works Administration, the Civil Works Administration or some other temporary agency is not merely to insult their intelligence, but also to attempt to quiet the public with a fabrication which is nothing less than a falsehood.

Even Secretary Roper does not seem to be wholly satisfied that this platitudinous explanation will be swallowed by the public, for he hastens to reinforce it with another.

His second explanation is that "if at any moment" he finds that "the proper safeguard of human life and the efficiency of the service are in jeopardy on account of lack of employes, such need will be immediately met by necessary appointments or reappointments."

Does Secretary Roper mean that he intends to wait until the splendid federal system of airways, built up during the last seven years, has deteriorated to the point where disasters multiply in order to be convinced that "human life and the efficiency of the service are in jeopardy?"

Does Secretary Roper expect the veteran experts of the airways division slated for "indefinite furlough without pay" to wait for reappointment until enough transport planes have crashed to convince Mr. Roper that the federal airways require constant inspection and maintenance by the most experienced experts the government can find?

It is hard to believe that so astute and confirmed a politician as Secretary Roper is obtuse enough to labor under any such hallucinations. Ultimately the veteran experts who are being forced out of the airways division and other divisions of the aeronautics branch will be replaced by less experienced men owing their appointment TO POLITICAL RECOMMENDATIONS OR PERSONAL "PULL."

This is exactly the way that a flock of so-called "assistants" to the superintendents of the airways division's field force were appointed several weeks ago.

This is the way Secretary Roper has been disrupting the aeronautics branch of his department since he eased out the able Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, Col. Clarence M. Young, last June by abolishing his office.

This is the way Secretary Roper, under the pretense of "reorganizing" and in the name of "increased efficiency and economy," has been replacing experienced experts, originally selected in complete disregard of political influence, with inexperienced experimenters backed by powerful political or private influences.

It is always easier to break down than it is to build up a highly efficient governmental agency. New proof of this fact is to be found in the record of Mr. Roper as Secretary of Commerce.

It took seven years to build up the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce and its splendid system of federal airways to the high standard of efficiency that has made American air transport the eighth wonder of the world.

When Secretary Roper injects his practical politics into this situation he not only unintelligently interferes with the development of this great American commercial system, but unpatriotically injures America's second line of defense in the crucial division of aeronautics.

The Democratic party cannot afford to accept the discredit which Secretary Roper's cheap political tactics imposes upon it.

The truth is that Secretary Roper has no qualifications for his official position and should be removed.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Broadway's two most notoriously "unsolvable crimes" appear definitely pigeon-holed. Now and then the faint hue and cry, but because two sinister figures were removed from the world of treacherous intrigue the public seems little interested in tracking down the murderers.

There are wise men who declare the killers of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, and Dot King, the blackmailing lady, are protected to save higher-ups from disgrace. But such rumors are nebulous, careless whispers of the cafes, night clubs and underworld.

Innumerable times it will be heard: "Everybody knows who killed them!" Followed by ex-officials living in splendor here and abroad. Yet none names the guilty right out. Dot King was found garroted in a "love nest" 10 years ago.

Rothstein rushed from a hotel, fatally pistoled, in 1928. He refused to name his slayer. The facts are, of course, that both murders involved many in high places. It's all frightfully fishy, but that police drew herrings across the trails has never been successfully proved.

Sigmund Spaeth likely knows more musicians and their quirks than any person of the day. His father was a Lutheran minister with 11 children, for all of whom he provided unusual education. Sig's was musical and he has transmuted its classics into simplicities for devotees of barber shop harmonies. As a tune detective he has with rare good humor exposed many Tin Pan Alley heroes as filchers from the masters.

Mrs. Gene Tunney, after a prolonged convalescence, is now seen in the gorgeous chinchilla which she affects at such social doings as the horse show, opera and first nights. Her presence is remindful, too, that many women are returning to the social activities and fineries they have been dodging for three years. Style writers declare New York has not been so fashionably groomed in years.

Jim Tully is reputed the most precise differentiator between the phoneys and the real things in Hollywood. It's a trick he learned in the hobo camps where every newcomer is the target for acute suspicions. Chicane, he discovers, shines through the gloss of fine clothes as well as underworld muck. And Tully accomplishes his sum-up with a single appraising glance.

The famous old Astor, long the hub of Broadway life, has acquired a fresh perk with repeal. For a few languishing years the going was rough. Now its dining rooms, including the Hunting Room, where movie people used to gather, are packed. The Astor's "star boarder" is Charles B. Dillingham who has maintained quarters there since its opening.

The most spacious, unusual and magnificent drawing room in New York is that of George Blumenthal, octogenarian financier, at Seventieth and Park avenue. Two and a half stories high and 100 by 60 feet, it is lighted entirely by candles, ranging from eight feet in height to the size of one's little finger. There is a candle lighter with snuffer whose sole duty is to keep the tapers in perfect trim. The vaulted room is hung with Titians, Rembrandts and priceless tapestries and a personal organist plays softly upon a double echo organ while guests partake of coffee.

With Gene Buck I waited this morning for a mutual friend who was a passenger arriving at the Newark airport. Far out in the sky appeared a dot and in a few moments a plane roaring overhead, making wide circles, then turning and skimming across the field. Through the window strip a row of excited faces. A girl with a red toque, a man in a camel's hair coat, and mechanics rush out. The pilot heaves up a lid, raises his goggles, steps out in belted leather coat and idly lights a cigaret. More fun than watching a train thunder in.

Fannie Brice, after several sabbatical years, ran away with the Winter Garden's version of the Ziegfeld Follies. The especial tickle for the Broadway risibilities was her travesty of Sally Rand's fan dance, rowdily dirty but funny. At Lindy's after the premiere someone commented on her increasing weight, suggesting she must weigh 160 pounds, "Not that much soaking wet, a rock in each hand and a goitre," she chirped.

HER TRUE NATURE

By Winifred Black

I've known her for a good many years, and I have always liked her.

She's had a lot of trouble, this woman I know, and she's been brave about that trouble. She has never whined once, or asked for pity, or even sympathy, not by so much as a mournful droop of the head.

She's frank and honest, too, or I always thought she was, this woman I know. She's a good wife, a devoted mother, and a true friend. She's intelligent, more than usually so—yes, I've always liked her very much.

But the other day this woman I have always liked, did something spiteful, something very small and mean spirited.

I couldn't believe it at first, and the more I thought about it the more I saw that there was no mistake.

This woman was peeved about something she didn't like and she took her peeve out by trying to spoil a little vacation one of her friends was having.

This friend has been ill and she had had a lot of trouble, too. She needed that vacation to help her get ready for the next rush of anxiety and care.

The woman I know thought this friend was having a little too nice a time—she was too pleased with herself, and her surroundings—so the woman I know started to make the woman she called her friend uncomfortable.

She talked about things that she knew were distressing.

She took pains to bring up unpleasant ideas and when she succeeded in turning the little house of refuge for the vacation people into something a little unpleasant, and a little worrisome—she was distinctly pleased.

The friend gave up the house and came home, tired, a little discouraged, and more than a little sad.

I wish I hadn't heard about it. I just can't seem to feel the same way about this woman I thought I knew.

I never really knew her at all, did I?

I thought she was frank, and honest, and kind, and all the time she was sly and spiteful and a little envious.

But stop—why do I assume that the mean woman was the real woman?

Why don't I say to myself, "Oh, well, nobody's perfect. I'm asking too much from this woman. I'll just remember the nice things about her, and go on liking her and trusting her."

But just as I get into this sweetly reasonable frame of mind something hisses like a snake and I draw back.

Am I unjust, do you suppose?

Or am I right in feeling that this poor soul had envy and spite hidden in her heart all the time?

How would you feel about it?

ISN'T IT SO?

Some husbands are as easily spoiled as babies.

Sometimes a mountain of truth can be crowded in a sand hill.

Some folks never exercise their judgment enough to keep it in training.

Sometimes a decided blonde is one who used artificial means to reach her decision.

If parents give their son lots of money he usually turns around and gives them lots of anxiety.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

What and Why Is a Defeatist?

That new word which you're hearing everywhere lately—in columnists' chatter, over political broadcasts, even in your Sunday Sermon—that seemingly simple word "DEFEATIST"—what's it all about?

Why has "defeatist" suddenly become a term of reproach? Why do people speak of "defeatist" as they'd speak of robbers or kidnapers? After all, isn't a "defeatist" just a person who is easily discouraged—and shouldn't we pity rather than blame him?

No, he isn't—and we shouldn't!

A Defeatist isn't just someone who is easily discouraged. HE IS SOMEONE WHO MAKES A RACKET OF DISCOURAGEMENT.

A defeatist starts out wanting that which we all want—power, popularity, a place in the spotlight. These things have always been hard to achieve. They're particularly and increasingly hard to achieve in these chaotic times when modern competition is raising Cain with human laziness, stupidity and conceit. So the moment the Defeatist starts to put himself on record he, like the rest of us, faces grief.

Now, if the Defeatist were a regular egg, he wouldn't like that prospect any better than the rest of us do, but he'd go ahead, take chances and face consequences. But he isn't a regular egg. He hasn't what it takes—and in his peevish heart he knows it. Yet, the smaller he feels inside, the bigger he wants to seem outside, as compensation. So what does the Defeatist do?

SINCE HE CAN'T MAKE A RECORD AS A GAME SPORT, HE PROCEEDS TO MAKE A RECORD AS A GROUCH.

Since he won't build up, he tears down. Everything and everybody, according to the Defeatist, is going to the dogs.

There's no good in anyone, "nowhere, nohow." The world's a madhouse. Our times are rotten. Our customers are vile. Youth is degenerate. There is no decency left in the human race.

And, accompanying these yells, roars, snarls, sneers, burps and belches are Big Wet Tears of longing for the Dear Old Days when the world was filled with honorable gentlemen and tender ladies, and Everything Was Lovely!

All of which looks like obvious sour grapes when you see it in cold print; doesn't it? But does it sound like that to thousands of citizens who listen to the Defeatist's broadcast? Indeed, it doesn't! To the contrary, it sounds Perfectly Wonderful, and they flock around him with gurgles of gratitude and delight.

But why? That's easy.

THEY ARE GRATEFUL AND DELIGHTED BECAUSE THE DEFEATIST HAS PROVIDED THEM WITH A PERFECT ALIBI FOR INDULGING THEIR OWN COWARDICE AND CUSSEDNESS.

BY BLUBBERING ABOUT THE VANISHED VIRTUES OF "THE GOOD OLD DAYS," HE ACTUALLY MAKES IT APPEAR NOBLE TO DUCK THE FIGHTING LINE OF 1934—AND DO A HIDE-AWAY IN THE DEAR, DEAD PAST!

That's the Defeatist's racket. And if you doubt that it's a profitable one, listen in sometime when he's doing his stuff and hear the big hand he gets in return from the other Soreheads.

Why has "Defeatist" become a term of reproach? That's why. Because the Defeatist is not only a quitter himself, but he makes a cult of it and encourages countless other timid or irritated souls to join the ranks.

What's the worst menace to America today? The greedy Capitalist? The red-eyed Communist? The gangster, racketeer, panhandler or bum?

NO THE WORST MENACE IN AMERICA TODAY IS THE BIG CRYBABY WHO WON'T SEE ANY GOOD IN ANYTHING—AND KEEPS THE OTHER FELLOW FROM DOING SO!

Human Side of the News

Billy Sunday's First Memorable Campaign in New York—A Fortune for a Manuscript

By Edwin C. Hill

A VOICE out of the past is heard again in New York. It cries on hell-fire, penance and salvation. But as I listened to this aging acrobatic evangelist, I did not see him as the man of 72 he is today showing the years and the trials which have come to him in the winter of his life . . .

No, the pulpit faded and with it the pews, the windows and the brick walls. In their place was a huge, barnlike structure, roughly hewn and filled with camp chairs. There was, too, a large platform with green carpet, and on it a man ran up and down, waving his arms, shouting, turning handsprings and somersaults, taking off his coat and his vest, throwing himself at length on the floor.

And he was saying:

"No man can pray 'Thy Kingdom come' and then look through the bottom of a beer glass."

Then again:

"Don't go home to the woman who darns your old socks unless you can smile. Give her something decent to wear besides those old Mother Hubbards which make her look like a bale of hay tide with wire."

And turning to the sisters, he screamed:

"Lots of you women have not got religion enough to go home and burn that pack of cards, take that beer out of your cellar and dump it into the sewer, or take back that dish you won at the card party, you blackleg gamblers."

On he went into the night, putting on a show the like of which New York had never seen before and has never seen since. Fifteen thousand men and women in the crude tabernacle laughed and wept, were scandalized or found religion, while he played the roles and mimicked the voices of the hog-jowled bartender, the grafter, the society woman, the Comanche Indian, the rube and the outcast. For 13 weeks he ran on Broadway, packing them in his campaign which drew down $350,000 and led 65,000 men and women to hit the sawdust trail of repentance.

April, 1917, and January, 1934. The world has been changed inside out. And Billy Sunday returns after 14 years, older, as I have said, but pretty much the same as he has always been in his 45 years of evangelism. There is even some of the spring left in those legs which made him the talk of the sporting world when he was one of the fastest players in baseball on Anson's great Chicago White Sockings.

He left the ball field for the camp meeting and as he told me:

"I got out the old gospel gun, loaded her with rocksalt, dynamite, ipecac, sour buttermilk and horseshoe nails and pulled the trigger, and the gang has been hunting its hole and the feathers have been flying ever since."

A Fortune Paid For Key Manuscript

A GROUP of men and women press around an auction block in an art gallery in up-town New York. The auctioneer, with all the arts of showmanship, shows them a sheet of ordinary note paper, yellowed, time-stained. On that sheet of paper are 32 lines of verse, written in a small, neat hand. The 32 lines at the third rap of the hammer go for $24,000. Those lines form our national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The young man who wrote them, under the excitement and inspiration of terrific drama, was Francis Scott Key. He was a lawyer, as well as a poet, and was fighting the British as a volunteer in an artillery battery.

The Red Coats had captured Washington and burned the White House, and were bent on taking Baltimore, Francis Scott Key's city. But in the roadstead of Baltimore the British fleet was bringing its guns to bear on Fort McHenry. Francis Scott Key, under a white flag of truce, got into a small boat and had himself rowed to the British flagship to appeal for the release of a friend, Dr. William Beanes, who had been captured and was a prisoner.

The British officers greeted Mr. Key courteously. When it was proved to them that Dr. Beanes had treated their own wounded, the Admiral promptly ordered the doctor's release.

But they were not permitted to return immediately to Baltimore. They must await the attack, the result of the bombardment which was about to begin.

* * *

'Our Flag Was Still There'

WHEN the guns began to rain shot and shell against Old Fort McHenry, Francis Scott Key watched the fleet close in on the fort and saw the bursting shells crash against its bastions, from which flew the flag of the young Republic, the flag of red and white stripes and 15 white stars.

Throughout the afternoon and the night of September 13, 1814, Francis Scott Key, with breathless interest, watched the shells falling on Fort McHenry, his heart contracting at every roar of the cannon for fear that the fort and the city were doomed.

And then, just before dawn, the bombardment ended. In silence and the dark Young Key paced the deck in painful suspense, peering through the blackness toward the fort, and the first beams of the rising sun bathed in glory the shimmering stars and stripes. The enemy were hastily retreating to their ships. The attack had failed.

And Francis Scott Key, returning to shore, put down on scraps of paper the lines that had burned into his brain as the British cannon hammered Fort McHenry. And that night, in a Baltimore hotel, he wrote down, upon the very sheet of notepaper that auctioneer is vending, the 32 lines that became the anthem of the Republic.

"The Star Spangled Banner, O long may it wave, o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Blunder in Porto Rico's Governorship Rectified

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PORTO RICO'S new Governor vindicates anew the faith of Abraham Lincoln in the power of public sentiment.

"Public sentiment is everything," said Lincoln. "With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed."

Retirement of Robert H. Gore, of Florida, from the governorship of Porto Rico and the appointment in his place of Blanton Winship, of Georgia, is a triumph for public sentiment throughout the island of Porto Rico and on the mainland of the United States.

The excuse given for the change is that the climate in Porto Rico has not been "conducive" to the retiring Governor's health or that of his family. But the fact remains that the public atmosphere of Porto Rico was increasingly inimical to the continuance of Mr. Gore as Governor.

Readers of this column will recall that the revolt against Mr. Gore's administration was herein described several months ago.

* * *

Students Protested Against Unfairness

THE students of the University of Porto Rico were then on strike in protest against the obvious unfairness to the people of Porto Rico of using their governorship as a political hush-darling to a contributor to the Democratic national campaign fund who sought a much more powerful office in Washington—and came near getting it.

As was said at that time:

"The people of Porto Rico are well aware that the appointment of Mr. Gore is entirely political—in the nature of a reward for political service rendered. They know that this appointment was not recommended by those who had at heart the welfare of Porto Rico. This is the reason why protests against the appointment are still made in spite of the fact that the Roosevelt Administration is striving to pour oil on the troubled waters by offering Porto Rico assistance toward economic relief and recovery.

"President Roosevelt has made so many excellent appointments, he has disregarded so completely in many cases the inordinately greedy demands of the pork barrel politicians of his own party, that in fairness to him it should be remembered that the way in which the Porto Rican governorship was filled is an exception to the rule."

Certainly no greater contrast could be offered than that to be found in the pre-eminent qualifications of Blanton Winship and the lack of qualifications of Robert H. Gore to be Governor of Porto Rico.

Gore knows little about the insular possessions or territories of the United States. He has had no experience with the administration of the affairs of dependent peoples. He was not recommended for the governorship by anybody who knew anything about Porto Rico or had the welfare of the people of Porto Rico at heart. In fact, his appointment was vigorously protested by those members of the administration charged under the law with the responsibility for the supervision at Washington of insular affairs.

* * *

The President Ignores Spoilsmen

WITHOUT partisan political recommendations, without experience as a practical politician, with no fat campaign contribution to his credit on the spoilsmen's books, with only a long and brilliant record in the service of his country in peace and war to his credit, Blanton Winship has been selected by the President as Gov. Gore's successor. This was done in disregard of the spoilsmen and on recommendation of those best qualified to supervise Porto Rican affairs, because they have at heart the honor of the United States and the welfare of Porto Rico.

A native of Macon, Ga., a veteran of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, the Army of Cuban Pacification, with Gen. Funston in Vera Cruz in 1914, staff officer and judge advocate of the Rainbow Division in the Great War, Gen. Winship also has to his credit a brilliant record of peace-time service that peculiarly qualifies him as Governor of Porto Rico to restore the friendly relations that formerly existed between Porto Rico and the United States.

An able lawyer, who saw service under Gen. Wood when he was Governor of Cuba, chief of staff and Governor-General of the Philippines, an assistant to Gen. Crowder during the American administration in Cuba, a legal adviser to two governor-generals of the Philippines, Gen. Winship brings to his new post a knowledge of Spanish and intimate acquaintance with insular policies and a deep sympathy with the aspirations of the Porto Rican people.
